CITY SANITARIUM PATIENT BEATEN; TWO ATTENDANTS ARE UNDER ARREST

William Steffen, 48, Is in Serious Condition After an Alleged Unprovoked Attack in Ward, Following the Disappearance of Keys Carried by Guards.

ASSAILANTS SAID TO HAVE BEEN DRINKING

After Officials Succeed in Rescuing Victim, Employes Jailed on Complaint of Superintendent on Assault to Kill Charge.

William Steffen, 48 years old, a patient in the City Sanitarium, was beaten by two attendants yesterday afternoon, so severely that he was in a serious condition last night in the hospital attached to the institution. The attendants, Thomas G. McAuliffe and Cornelius E. McCalvey, were arrested on complaint of Dr. Charles H. Shumaker, superintendent.

Dr. Shumaker said that the attendants were under the influence of liquor, that their attack on Steffen appeared to have been unprovoked, and that he would give all the assistance in his power in prosecuting them. At the Magnolia Avenue Police Station, a charge of assault with intent to kill was entered against them.

Assistant's Orders Ignored.

The supervisor of attendants received a telephone call at 4 p. m. from a patient in one of the wards, who said that two attendants were beating a patient. The assistant superintendent, Dr. Harry Pecaut, went to the ward with the supervisor, and found Steffen lying on a bench, trying vainly to shield himself from the blows of the two men who bent over him. The men paid no attention to orders shouted to them by the two officials, it is said, and the assistant superintendent and supervisor then pulled them away by main force.

They found Steffen in a pitiable state, his face bruised and bleeding, his eyes blackened, and the upper part of his body bruised. He is of medium size, thin and rather undernourished.

Story Told by Patients.

Other patients related that the beating went on several minutes before help was called. They said the attendants were angry because one of them had laid down a key, which a patient, not Steffen, had picked up. They seemed to think Steffen had it, and when he could tell them nothing about it, they attacked him. The patient who had the key, on seeing this, threw the key out of a window, and it was found outside later.

The ward in which the assault occurred is one for patients whose mental maladies are of a mild character, as distinguished from violent insanity. The superintendent said he considered the patients, though not mentally sound, to be reliable witnesses as to what they saw before the two officials of the institution arrived.

Steffen formerly lived at 2709 Shenandoah avenue. He has been a patient in the Sanitarium four times, beginning in 1915, and his present stay there began last March.

25 PERSONS ATTEND MEETING FOR FORD-FOR-PRESIDENT CLUB

Missouri Organization Formed Here With Election of Sheridan Carlisle as President.

A Missouri "Ford-for-President" Club was organized last night by 25 persons who attended a meeting at 3333 Pine boulevard, called by Sheridan Carlisle, an attorney, Missouri National Committeeman of the Farmer-Labor party. He was elected president and then appointed W. W. Murrell, Webster Groves, an insurance man, as temporary secretary, and T. J. Wolfley, real estate man, as temporary treasurer. Carlisle said 75 other persons have signed membership cards.

Belief that Ford would "sweep the country" if nominated by a new party was expressed by Carlisle, who added that he expects formation of a third party soon. A membership fee of 25 cents was voted. A number of those present purchased membership cards for resale to others. The club was announced as a nonpartisan organization. Temporary headquarters are 606 Central National Bank Building.

MOONSHINERS ENJOINED FROM ANNOYING HUNTER

St. Charles Judge Grants Plea of Herman Henry Laumeier Against "Nos. 1-5."

Moonshiners Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 must hereafter refrain from annoying Herman Henry Laumeier, St Louis real estate dealer, while he is on his duck-hunting preserve in St. Charles County, Circuit Judge Woolfolk, at St. Charles, yesterday granted a temporary injunction forbidding the illicit liquor-makers designated by those numbers, for want of exact information as to their names, from repetition of acts of which Laumeier complained.

The chief parties enjoined are Agnes and Oliver Sammelmann against whom Laumeier also filed suit for $10,000 damages. He states in his petition, that he acquired five tracts of land and that a lake was formed on his property. The Sammelmanns, he alleges, tried to sell him an adjoining tract of land, and when he would not meet their price a series of annoyances began.

One of these annoyances, he charged, was that the Sammelmanns permitted the building, on their property, of shacks containing a still and quantities of whisky. As he has seen at least five men about these buildings, he named them as Moonshiners Nos. 1-5 inclusive.

He alleged that the Sammelmanns and the "hooch" quintet trespassed on his property and annoyed him and his guests, and that when he sought to sell his holdings of land, they made a demonstration which caused the deal to fall through. He said shots, fired on the Sammelmann's land, sometimes appeared to be directed toward him and his guests.

SADDLE HORSE VALUED AT $5000 KILLED BY STREET CAR

"Masterman" Hit by Laclede Car When He Shies Upon Track —Was Entered in Coliseum Show.

"Masterman," a five-gaited saddle horse, valued by his owner at $5000 was killed at 3:30 p. m. yesterday when an east bound Laclede avenue street car hit him as he was being led to the Coliseum horse show stables. His back was broken.

Witnesses told police that James Gray, a negro of 3138 Pine street, was walking with the horse beside the track and the car came up from behind. The motorman clanged the bell. "Masterman" became frightened and shied into the path of the car, which struck him on the flank. The horse died within a few minutes.

Walter Krenning of 5186 Maple avenue, who owned "Masterman" had entered him in several events at the show which will begin tomorrow.

SUES HER BROTHER FOR $5000 FOR HURTS IN AUTO COLLISION

East St. Louis Woman Alleges His Negligent Driving Caused Her to Be Disfigured.

Suit for $5000 damages against William A. Horstman, a clerk, of East St. Louis, was filed yesterday in East St. Louis City Court by his sister, Miss Lillian Hostman, who alleges that she suffered serious injuries and was permanently disfigured through "the negligent manner in which Horstman drove an automobile" in which she was a passenger.

In her petition, she alleged that on Sept. 21 she was riding in her brother's automobile, at his request, when the machine collided with another near Springfield while they were on their way to the State Fair.

CASPIAN SEA GEYSER SPOUTS OIL

By the Associated Press.

BAKU, Azerbaijan, Nov. 3.—Due probably to shifting strata in the Caspian Sea, an unusual phenomenon in oil wells was noticed recently near here. A geyser began erupting from the sea, two miles off the coast, and for two hours spurted to a height of 70 feet throwing off gas and oil. The eruption was accompanied by flames.

On the spot a small island formed after the "gusher" died down.

WINDOW AUDIENCE WATCHES ROBBERS GET $500 PAYROLL

Women Dodge Back, Fearing Shooting, When Wife of Contractor Kicks Stool in Auto at Highwayman.

BUT GANG REFRAINS FROM ROUGH WORK

Negroes Carry Off $2200 From Foundry Office Where Policeman Usually Has Been Detailed.

Of two week-end payroll robberies yesterday, the more spectacular was that in which Andrew I. Schaefer, building contractor, was held up in his automobile at Garrison avenue and North Market street and robbed of about $500. Factory employes and residents of the neighborhood viewed the proceedings from windows and doors.

More remunerative to the robbers was the indoor banditry at the A. Kilpatrick & Sons Foundry, Bulwer and Carrie avenues, where more than $2200 was taken. The robbers in this case were negroes.

Schaefer, who is president of the Schaefer Supply and Wrecking Co., was on his way from his office, Natural Bridge and Clarence avenues, to pay off men working on a building at Washington boulevard and Garrison avenues. He had drawn $1800 from a bank, but because of the rain, most of the men had drawn their pay at the office. Mrs. Schaefer and their 12-year-old son, Russell, were with him, the boy sitting on a stool.

Audience for Holdup.

At North Market street, a large touring car, occupied by five men, drove up alongside and crowded the smaller car to the curb. A man, whose face was covered by a handkerchief, got out of the touring car and held a revolver to Schaefer's face, commanding him to "hand over that money."

Mrs. Schaefer began screaming when she saw the revolver and employes of the blowpipe factory of Pecco, Inc., which is at the corner, looked out while housewives appeared at the windows of dwellings.

Two more men, also masked and carrying revolvers, got out of the large car, and one of them told Mrs. Schaefer to "shut up." But she continued to scream and the child cried loudly. As one of the men made a move to search Mrs. Schaefer she kicked the stool on which the child had been sitting into his face. Seeing this, women withdrew from the windows, fearing that shooting was about to begin.

But there was no shooting. Schaefer handed over a package of pay envelopes, and the robbers got back into their car and drove south. Of the two who remained in the car, one held a shotgun across his knees, Mrs. Schaefer observed.

The payroll was insured, Schaefer said.

Negroes Rob Foundry Office.

At the Kilpatrick foundry, where a policeman usually has been detailed on Saturday afternoons, no policeman was present yesterday. A negro entered the company's office about 3 p. m., and, after making a casual inquiry, went out. Two other negroes then entered, displayed revolvers and ordered the cashier, Chris Munsch, into a corner near the safe. A light over the safe showed them the employes' pay envelopes, and one of the negroes began filling his pockets with the envelopes while the other barred a door which led into the office from the foundry, where nearly 100 employes were working.

The same man jerked a Bell telephone instrument from the wall.

He also pulled at a Kinloch instrument, but it remained in place. Then he went to the safe and helped to empty it of pay envelopes. The two men ran out and got into a waiting automobile, and drove west on Carrie avenue, then on Prescott avenue, and later were seen driving south on Broadway.

The cashier, as soon as they had gone, pulled a cord which sounded the factory siren.

FORMER CROWN PRINCE TO HASTEN RETURN TO GERMANY

(Copyright, 1923.)

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm has decided to hasten his return to Germany. He has Chancellor Stresemann's written permission to come back and he is going to take advantage of it, fearing that Stresemann may fall and his successor may be less indulgent.

Once across the German border, Friedrich Wilhelm is confident he will not be exiled again. He plans to go to his family estate in Oels, to which his title has been confirmed. Former Crown Princess Cecilie has sent the following telegram to her children: "Happy tidings. Father is coming back."

GEORGIA GOVERNOR QUOTED AS BEING KLAN SUPPORTER

Address, Said to Have Been Delivered by Executive, Read Into Court Record at Trial of Dissolution Suit.

PROMISED ORDER ALL AID IN HIS POWER

Former Grand Sovereign of Scottish Rite Masons in South Also Speaker; Receivership Denied.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 3.—A copy of the proceedings of the first "imperial klonvocation" of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, filed as evidence in the suit to dissolve the klan, which was brought by David Rittenhouse of Philadelphia, and others, has just been brought to light here. In the record is an address by Gov. Clifford Walker, of Georgia, and one by George Flemming Moore, of Washington, D. C., former Sovereign Grand Commander, Southern jurisdiction of Scottish Rite Masons, both of whom are quoted as promising the klan aid in their power in furthering the organization.

The proceedings were introduced by W. S. Coburn, attorney for the Rittenhouse faction in the recent suit and were put in the record, according to the attorney, to show that William Joseph Simmons was deprived of the office of "imperial wizard" through trickery. They were admitted as evidence by the Judge.

The suit, which sought to have a receiver named for the klan, was disallowed by the Judge, but the plaintiffs announced they would file and appeal.

Other Details of Meeting.

The record of the proceedings says the first "Imperial Klonvocation" was called to order on Nov. 27 1922, that Judge Henry Grady, address not given, presided. The Rev. C. A. Ridley, at that time pastor of the Central Baptist Church of Atlanta, and "Imperial Kludd" or lecturer, of the Klan opened the meeting with prayer and scriptural reading, interspersed with remarks of his own, concerning the activities of the Klan throughout the United States.

Clifford Walker, at that time Governor-elect of Georgia, followed Dr. Ridley, and the proceedings quote him as declaring that "if, when he was sworn in as Governor of the State, he found any Klan violating the law he was coming to the Klan leaders and talk it over with them."

The Governor also said that "if I find any one obtaining an indictment against a Klansman or Klan itself for being made up of a personnel of high minded, noble gentlemen, I am going to write out a pardon immediately."

Remarks of Moore.

Moore told the Klansmen how he had witnessed the steady growth of the Order throughout the United States; of the representatives he knew the Klan had in the national Senate and House of Representatives and the White House, and the attitude Masonry throughout the country took towards the Klan. The proceedings also tell of several calls being made for the appearance of Walter A. Sims, Mayor of Atlanta none of which were answered.

The Rev. Mr. Ridley in his remarks told of a hunting trip in Arkansas, on which there were more than 15 ministers of the gospel of all denominations, all of them Klansmen.

He also said the "Imperial Wizard" told him he would have to stop calling the klan anti-Catholic.

Gov. Walker Quoted.

Gov. Walker is quoted as saying: "Now there is a fight being made on you and I think—I have had no conference with the big men, I am just speaking out of my heart—I think the sensible and wise thing to do is to take notice of the fight that is being made right here. The Mayor of the great city of New York says the klan, 'hasn't a chance in New York, it is non-American and a conspiracy against law and order.'

"Now you are a liar, or you are not. I am not here to suggest that you think or live along the line of law and order but I do appeal to you, without any suggestion, from anybody, that you interpret his order in your everyday life, whether or not you stand for law or order. I have sworn to preserve the Constitution of the State of Georgia, and so far as I, a little country boy can do, I am going to do that.

"If I find that a klan within the State of Georgia is violating the law, or if I find incidentally more probably that somebody in the guise of the klan is violating the law, I am going to—no I am not going to the newspapers; I am not going to formulate a platform for a political race; I am not going to denounce any-

Zev Beats My Own, but Long-Shot, In Memoriam, Defeats Them Both

IN MEMORIAM

Kentucky Bred and Owned Three-Year-Old Upsets Calculations of Astute Easterners by Carrying Off $50,000 Purse and Gold Cup While They Are Settling Dispute as to Superiority of Their Thoroughbreds.

By GEORGE DALEY.
Sports Editor of the New York Morning World.

LATONIA RACE TRACK, Ky., Nov. 3.—Zev beat My Own and settled definitely and conclusively an acrimonious racing controversy at the track here today, but In Memoriam, a western 3-year-old, beat them both.

The big, rangy son of McGee-Enchantress won the Latonia championship stakes at one mile and three-quarters, $50,000, to say nothing of a gold cup valued at $5000 and stood the racing world on its head.

Harry F. Sinclair, owner of Zev and Sam Hildreth, his trainer, stood in a club house box as if struck dumb as In Memoriam raced around the conqueror of Papyrus at the head of the stretch and came away to win easily by six lengths. It mattered not that My Own was staggering home in third place, ten lengths further back, legweary and soundly beaten. That was a matter of only secondary consideration. The big thing, the numbing thing, was the fact that Zev was beaten.

Mrs. Earl Sande, wife of the jockey who rode Zev, broke into uncontrollable sobs, tears streamed down her face. Few in that little party heard the wild cheers and shouts which greeted the unexpected victory.

Winner Given an Ovation.

Hats flile dthe air. The joy of beating the two Eastern stars was uncontrolled. It seemed as if the 30,000 who looked on joined to the last man in giving voice and doing honor to the Western horse.

Hundreds rushed out on the track from the infield and surrounded In Memoriam as a floral blanket was tossed over his withers and a huge bunch of roses handed to Mack Garner, who had the mount. Again the cheers broke loose, and the cameras clicked while In Memoriam kicked at everybody who approached within striking distance. The adulation was an annoyance to him.

Carl Wiedemann, owner of the winner, was the proudest and happiest man in the cheering throng unless perchance it was Bob Gilmore, his trainer. Both had the utmost faith in In Memoriam and have shown it a number of times in offering to match their colt against any 3-year-old for $20,000 a side.

Owner's Faith Justified.

Their faith was strong today. It was justified.

Wiedemann is a brewer of Newport, Ky., just across the river from Cincinnati. He purchased In Memoriam as a yearling from Mrs. Phil T. Chinn for a price said to be $12,000 and named him in memory of a devoted friend. The thought of that friend made victory the sweeter.

Former Gov. Cox of Ohio—they call him Jimmy Cox out here—presented the gold cup, of graceful design, to Wiedemann to more cheers.

After congratulating Mack Garner, Bob Gilmore and Wiedemann and expressing satisfaction over the Western victory he said:

"I am here performing this happy duty at the request of Matt J. Winn. I love horses and horseracing and if my presence in Kentucky will in any way help the sport and set back the wave of hypocrisy and fanaticism which has manifested itself lately, my services are at the command of all horsemen."

Four horses went to the post and to a good start by Bill Hamilton. In Memoriam raced to the front with Zev second, Rialto third and My Own last. Sande quickly took command, however, and forced a fast, even pace. Garner took back with In Memoriam so that Earl Pool moved up with My Own and dropped in behind Zev.

At the end of a mile the same order was maintained but Rialto had dropped far out of it and quickly was pulled up.

In the run up the back stretch the second time Pool made a move with My Own but to no avail. It was plain even at that point that Zev had him beaten. Then suddenly a new factor loomed up.

In Memoriam, which had been cleverly rated off the pace by Garner, raced around My Own and went after the flying Zev. Sande sensed the danger and called on his mount. For another furlong he held his place in front but In Memoriam raced up to him at the stretch turn and then after a short but decisive struggle came away to commanding victory.

The Fractional Times.

The time for the mile and three quarters was 3:00 4-5, over five seconds behind the track record of 2:55 1-5 set a year ago by Rockminster. The fractional times follow: :24, :48 2-5, 1:14 1-5, 1:40 3-5, 2:07 2-5, 2:34 and 3:00 4-5.

The race was truly run. Sande did not misjudge the pace, but Zev was not quite up to the distance. He responded gamely in the last furlong when Sande drew his whip but could not close the ever widening gap. For the day and the distance In Memoriam was the better horse.

My Own was badly beaten. Pool had him under a steadying hold for the first mile but when he called for more speed the colt had nothing left and after hanging on for a mile and a quarter dropped back beaten. He ran as if he had stalled off.

What Victory Meant to Zev.

Zev missed the chance to set the world's money records. Victory meant a place at the top of the leading money winners of all time. Isinglass, the English horse, still holds that proud place with $292,275. Zev is still $20,000 away.

Victory also meant a world's record for the Rancocas stable in winnings over a single season, but the

DRIVER IN AUTO FATALITY MUST NOT RUN A CAR FOR 5 YEARS

Man Also Must Pay $16,000 Damages to Parents of Students Killed and Girl Injured.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 3.—Ernest Grainger, a member of a prominent Lincoln family, was paroled today after he had pleaded guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Edna Borman and Carl Springer, Nebraska University students, who were killed when Grainger's car overturned near Lincoln recently. Grainger was paroled by Judge Stewart under the conditions that he shall not drive an automobile for five years and that he pay to Miss Borman's mother $10,000; to Springer's father $5000 and to Helen Stott, who was injured in the crash, $1000. Grainger also was fined $250.

ROBBED OF HIS $500 DAMAGES

Jacob Adams of 4390 Cook avenue, a negro, reported to police that he was held up by two other negroes when walking on Newstead avenue between Kennerly and Maffitt avenues at 6 o'clock last night and robbed of $500 in bills. He had received the money from the United Railways in settlement of a personal injury claim.

U. S. SAID TO GIVE POINCARE 48 HOURS TO CHANGE STAND

Herrick Reported to Have Told Him This Country Will Negotiate No Further, Unless He Recedes From Insistence on Restricted Reparation Inquiry.

ADMINISTRATION VIEW IS PREMIER WILL YIELD

American Envoy Believed to Have Warned Him U. S. Was Prepared to Engage With Other Powers in Independent Conference.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Ambassador Herrick is understood to have delivered a virtual ultimatum to Premier Poincare, on instructions from the State Department, notifying the French Premier that unless he recedes within the next 48 hours from his insistence on a narrowly restricted inquiry into the reparations issue, the United States will definitely refuse to consider further negotiations in the present direction.

Secretary of State Hughes meanwhile is keeping a strict silence. The State Department declined today to discuss the further, on the ground that the American position was entirely clear and nothing more need be said at present. No word was forthcoming concerning Ambassador Herrick's secret session with Poincare.

Thinks Poincare Will Yield.

The correspondent is reliably informed that Herrick's mission was to convince the French Premier that the United States declines to be kept dangling, and is prepared to engage with the other Powers in a conference independent of France if Poincare continues obdurate.

The administration view is that Poincare will yield, unless he can find some other means of prolonging the preliminaries or unless there is a break in public opinion supporting the movement in other nations.

Irreconcilable opposition, expressed by Senators Hiram Johnson and McCormick, of Illinois, is not frightening the State Department into weakening or pulling out of the enterprise, administration officials insist. Their stand now, it is declared, is taken solely to persuade Poincare that he must choose promptly between entering a conference with unrestricted powers of investigation or remaining aloof while the others proceeedes with the intended program.

More Than Mere Words.

The administration attitude, as thus informally and unofficially presented, is considerably bolder than that openly expressed, though it is understood Herrick was given carte blanche to speak plainly enough during his call on Poincare. Perhaps the main reason for the official moderation of tone is to keep isolationist sentiment as subdued as possible rather than to observe the diplomatic proprieties.

At all odds, Hughes, as his attitude is unofficially described now, is resolved not to leave himself open as a target for those who would charge him with having adventured timidly and retreated hurriedly, or for those irreconcilables who would credit themselves with inspiring the faint-heartedness.

It seems clear that the hint in the Hughes memorandum to Lord Curzon, that the United States would consider joining a conference with France left out if France remained obdurate, was more than mere words and that it might well have gone further and admitt d the United States would look favorably upon such an eventuality, if it came to that.

Sufficient time, given some two or three days more, will have elapsed to afford Poincare opportunity to get into line. It is felt, and if he is still procrastinating, the United States will definitely "pull out." Thereafter Hughes would look to England to advance the alternative suggestion for a conference without France.

Believe Allies Would Break Away.

It may be a toss-up whether the administration would not accomplish more in an unrestricted conference without France than would be lost through the animosity of those who are loyal to Poincare's policy. For even if Poincare now consents to the experts' meeting with a broad

GERMAN CABINET SITUATION STILL BADLY CONFUSED

None of Three Bourgeoise Ministers, Invited by Chancellor to Remain, Have Heard From Chiefs.

EMERGENCY MEASURES ARE CHIEF TOPICS

Official Denial Given to Statement That Bavaria Had Demanded Creation of a Dictatorship.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The parliamentary situation, in so far as it concerns the continuation in office of Chancellor Stresemann and his Cabinet, remains wholly unclarified.

None of the three bourgeoise Ministers whom the Chancellor invited to continue in the Goverment has received instructions from their respective parties, nor have the German Nationalists given any hint of their attitude toward a strictly bourgeois ministry.

Dr. Stresemann is not pressing the issue for the moment, and today conferred with his remaining Ministers over emergency legislation social disruption. Several measures made urgent by the financial and calculated to regulate prices were hastily put into effect, but the situation is so rapidly getting beyond control that even drastic makeshifts appear wholly inadequate to forestall further confusion, in money and prices ,or halt the widely ramified dislocation of food supplies.

Official denial was given in a Government statement issued tonight that the Bavarian Government had sent an ultimatum to Chancellor Stresemann demanding the creation of a nationalist dictatorship and threatening military measures in the event of noncompliance.

German Socialists' Fear Revocation of Laws for Workingmen.

Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Reports of an ultimatum from Von Kahr, dictator of Bavaria, followed promptly by an official denial that any such ultimatum had been received, perplexed Berlin today. But there is no doubt that Bavaria has started overtures that may lead Stresemann out of his present position.

If Von Kahr means business, there are many reasons for believing that the Stresemann cabinet will permit its hand to be forced. Stresemann's systematic baiting of Socialists, which finally obliged them to go into active opposition, leaves little room for doubt that he is ready to go over boots and saddle to the reactionaries.

By all his recent acts Stresemann has indicated that he is preparing to assume more power himself. If a dictator is named, it may be Stresemann would like the job himself. He would prefer it with the consent of the Reichstag. But all reactionary and industrial agencies are urging the dissolution) of this, the Reichstag on the ground that it was elected when Socialist and Republican sentiment was more powerful in Germany.

"The factory committees," the associations of workmen which their members regarded as one of the greatest gains from the revolution, have been ordered to dissolve. This move toward dissolving every organization with Socialistic or Communistic purposes, was made by Reichswehr Minister Gessler.

The first step was taken by Gen. Muller, commanding in Saxony, who forbade a meeting which the factory committees tried to hold a fortnight ago. Socialists foresee revocation of all laws passed in the interest of workmen since the revolution. Brandler, the communist leader in Saxony, has been arrested.

Matthes Declares Separatists Plan to Retake Aix-la-Chapelle.

By the Associated Press.

COBLENZ, Nov. 5.—Joseph Matthes, the separatist leader, announced today, in what he labeled an official communique, that it was the intention of the separatists to reoccupy Aix-la-Chapelle.

"We are planning to retake Aix-la-Chapelle," he said, "and within a few days our troops will be marching into the Palatinate and other of our forces will seize Essen. That is our answer to Belgium's action at Aix-la-Chapelle, in disarming our soldiers and bringng about our retreat."

In a note addressed to the Belgian high commissioner here, Matthes protested against the Belgian General's orders disarming his men, contending that the separatists were forced to take up arms because of the danger of an attack by their enemies, chiefly the Communists, the police and nationalists. He says he notified the Belgian authorities concerning his plans to capture the Rathus at Aix, and as there were no objections went ahead to carry out his program.

The protest was sent to the British and French commissioners also, but the British commissioner returned the copy still in the unopened envelope.

Treaty Doesn't Guarantee German Frontiers, Poincare's View.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The French Government is not interested in any Rhineland separation movement, is not involved in the present one and is not encouraging it. This is Premier Poincare's reply to the British note in which the question was raised whether it would not be a breach of the treaty of Versailles if the Rhineland was separated from the Reich.

At the same time, M. Poincare pointed out that, in his opinion, article 27 of the treaty of Versailles, which Marquis Curzon, British Foreign Secretary, interpreted as guaranteeing the German frontiers, simply fixed them, and that, as a matter of jurisprudence, that clause could not be construed as a guarantee of territorial integrity.

Aix-La-Chappelle Residents Celebrate Liberation From Separatists.

By the Associated Press.

AIX-LA-CHAPPELLE, Nov. 3.—The residents of Aix-La-Chappelle are celebrating their liberation from separatists' control, with its attendant riots. They sang British and German patriotic songs before the British consulate today, as an expression of thankfulness to the Consul for his intervention yesterday. When the Consul appeared in Rathaus Square, he was hoisted on the shoulders of enthusiasts and carried through the streets by singing crowds.

The more serious-minded took stock of the damage done to the public buildings by the fighting which occurred here. They found many art treasures damaged or ruined. The ancient painting of the Coronation of Charlemagne in the Rathaus, where the ceremony took place, was pierced by 21 bullets. The centuries old furniture in the Burgomaster's office was wrecked; famous frescoes by Alfred Rethel were riddled and rare books in the Government building and ancient official documents were torn and watersoaked.

Red Cross Budget for 1924 Placed at $12,000,000

Foreign Operations Allotment Under $1,000,000 for First Time in Five Years Due to Completion of Several Projects.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — The American Red Cross budget for humanitarian activities in 1924, will be $12,000,000, the Society announced today. The national and international program "for advancing the welfare of peoples and communities" was set at $5,543,177, the remainder being alloted to the three thousand local chapters.

Completion of several large foreign operations permitted a reduction of more than $4,000,000 from the last budget, the statement said, operations in Asia Minor being estimated to have cost $2,600,000 and relief work in Russia about $1,840,000. For the first time in five years the foreign operations budget is placed below $1,000,000.

For assistance to veterans of the world war, the new budget allots $2,065,000, an increase of $120,000 over the current year. The society estimated, however, that the expenditures for this work by headquarters and the local chapters will average $500,000 a month.

Liquidation of foreign commitments is expected to require $100,000 in 1924, in addition to the $394,303 alloted to close the work in Greece; $180,000 for support of the League of Red Cross Societies and $10,824 to aid nurses' training schools in Europe.

For service and assistance to the chapters, numbering 3000 in the United States alone the budget carries $1,282,524. This is $50,000 above last year's expenditure.

Other outstanding items of the domestic program are $80,000 for assistance to co-operating organizations, including child health demonstrations; $93,100 for junior Red Cross projects and service; $309,020 for hospital and other service to the army and navy; $150,000 for emergencies in chapter work; $100,000 for unforeseen contingencies, and $222,014 for supervision of service activities and general management.

The budget for domestic operations provides also for maintenance of the Red Cross National Nursing Service, which includes public health nursing, instruction of women in home hygiene and care of the sick, and nutrition instruction. Instruction in first aid to the injured and first aid to prevent death by drowning are constantly expanding activities. In volunteer service 1154 chapters are steadily engaged.

In appealing for a large membership enrollment during the roll call period, November 11-29, the American Red Cross has emphasized the necessity of continued support of the organization.

ZEV BEATS MY OWN BUT IN MEMORIAM WINS FROM BOTH

late James R. Keene still holds that mark with $397,342 won by his horses in 1907.

In Memoriam is a good-looking, well made bay colt by McGee-Enchantress and ran today like a natural stayer. He carries the same blood as Exterminator which also has McGee as his sire.

He had some followers this afternoon and paid $23.60 for a $2 mutuel ticket or a little better than 10 to 1. He was strongly supported to run second and paid only 9 to 10 a place. Zev paid 7 to 20 a place. In Memoriam has earned a place in American turf history.

Wiedemann said after he could catch a full breath and rest his hand:

"I'm too happy to talk or even think but I guess we showed today that Kentucky has the best three-year-old in the country—maybe in the world."

Sportsmanlike in Defeat.

Sinclair took the defeat of Zev in his usual quiet, sportsmanlike way. After the first shock of seeing his good colt beaten he said: "I think Sam will join with me in saying that we have no excuses and that the best horse won."

Sam Hildreth nodded his head. The defeat of Zev cut him deeply.

Admiral Grayson also accepted defeat with good grace. He said:

"It does not seem to me that My Own did himself justice, but while keenly disappointed I have no excuses to offer. My trainer insists he was in good condition and ready to do his best."

Earl Sande could not hide his disappointment. In talking of the race he said: "I felt sure of winning when Zev shook off My own in the middle of the back stretch. He was racing smoothly. Even when In Memoriam challenged I did not have any fear but Zev began to shorten his stride at the head of the stretch and then I suddenly realized he was beaten."

1358 BRITISH IMMIGRANTS LIKELY TO BE DEPORTED

Quota of That Nation Apparently Filled When They Reach New York on Leviathan.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGON, Nov. 3.—British subjects arriving in the United States today on the Leviathan, numbering 1358, probably cannot be admitted to the United States and may have to be deported as immigrants inadmissible under the quota immigration law. The Shipping Board was notified of the fact today by Commissioner-General of Immigration Husband.

Authorities at Ellis Island will be notified of the situation but the immigrants will be allowed to land and undergo examination, and the final decision as to their admissibility will not be made until reports from all immigration stations have been assembled. On the first examination of figures, however, Husband found that the British quota, which is slightly over 77,000 a year, was practically exhausted.

LLOYD GEORGE, ON OCEAN, CONFIDENT OF TOUR'S RESULT

Declares Effectiveness of Anglo-Co-Operation Depends on "Following Through" Hughes Reparation Plan.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—David Lloyd George, war Premier of Great Britain, is on his way home on the Majestic, confident that his plea for the linking of the United States and the British Empire for world peace was well received on his tour of Canada and the United States.

He sailed today noon with a final word on the reparations crisis. The effectiveness of Anglo-American cooperation, he said to newspaper men, depended upon whether America "followed through," the proposal of Secretary Hughes for an international commission to settle the sums that the defeated allies could and should pay.

France, he was confident, would heed the advice of the United States and Britain regarding German reparations.

"France would have been a vassal country but for your country and mine," he said.

Hindu Taken off His Ship.

A crowd of several hundred was on the pier to bid Lloyd George farewell after his month's visit to the New World. The police, who twice had foiled attempts of sympathizers with the Irish Republicans to insult the former Premier to his face, escorted him from his hotel to the Majestic and no untoward incident occurred.

Lloyd George sailed in ignorance of the fact that a Hindu, a disciple of Gandhi, originator of the non-co-operation movement in India, had been removed from the liner. The Hindu was reported to have followed Lloyd George on his tour and at one time to have been detained by Canadian officials.

"All Glad to See Me."

Speaking of his tour, he said: "Everywhere I went I was welcomed. That touched me most of all. They were all glad to see me."

He said that he found "the American people very interested in European affairs; very interested in the point of view. They wanted to hear, whether they agreed or not."

A delegation from the Sulgrave institution, designed to promote friendship among English-speaking peoples, presented Lloyd George with an insignia carrying honorary life membership.

A delegation from the American Bible Society presented him with a Welsh Bible, informing him that the society had its origin in Wales.

HIRAM JOHNSON TO ANNOUNCE SOON, SAYS HIS 1920 'ANGEL'

Statement on Presidential Candidacy Within Week Predicted by Pennsylvania Man.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A formal statement made here tonight, sponsored by Ralph Beaver Strassburger of Gwynedd Valley, Pa., chief "angel" of the Hiram Johnson campaign in 1920, says Senator Johnson will announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination for President within a week.

The statement is issued by the Norristown (Pa.) Times-Herald, owned and published by Strassburger.

Strassburger takes issue with published reports that A. D. Lasker financed the Johnson campaign in 1920, and insists it was he, Strassburger, who found the Californian's campaign flat on its back and put it through to the tune of $200,000. Lasker, he says, came into the movement only in its last two weeks.

HARVEY SAILS FOR HOME

By the Associated Press.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Nov. 3. —George Harvey, the retiring American Ambassador, his wife and their granddaughter, Dorothy Thompson, sailed for New York today on the Aquitania. Replying to newspaper men's questions as to why he was leaving England, Harvey said:

"The truth is that there is nothing left for me to do here. It is better that I should go home and work for the great cause of British-American friendship. If these two great countries do not hang together, there is nothing left for the world. That is my firm conviction and my countrymen are of the same opinion."

SWEDISH INVENTOR HAS NEW OIL LIGHT

Claims Whiter and Much Cheaper Light Than Electric or Gas.

Edison enabled us to enjoy the benefits of electric light, Count Welsbach's mantle made it possible to have the incandescent gas light, but it remained for a Swedish engineer named Johnson, now living in Chicago, to devise a lamp that would burn ordinary, everyday kerosene oil and produce a light said by the many scientists who have seen it to be whiter than electric. The lamp is as simple to operate as the old style oil lamp, burns without odor, smoke or noise and is proving a sensation where oil light is needed.

Mr. Johnson offers to send a lamp on ten days' free trial and will even give one to the first user in each locality who will help introduce it. A letter addressed to L. D. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, will bring full particulars about this wonderful new lamp. He has an interesting agency offer, too.

NEW SERIES OF ARTICLES BY LLOYD GEORGE TO BE PRINTED IN POST-DISPATCH

Contract to Write 30 More Signed by Former Premier—Three to Tell Impressions of U. S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—David Lloyd George has contracted to write 30 more articles, the first three dealing with his impressions of America for a New York syndicate. The price paid for the articles is said by the purchaser to be "one of the largest sums per word ever paid in the history of the world."

The series of articles referred to in the above dispatch will be printed in St. Louis exclusively by the Post-Dispatch. The former Premier will begin work on them as soon as he reaches his home, and the Post-Dispatch expects to begin publication of them early in December.

program he still will have many chances to smother the experts' findings after they are made to the Reparations Commission, and nothing can come of them unless France approves. It is this consideration thatsis causing widespread doubt of a successful outcome of the sessions, unless Poincare change or his ministry is succeeded by one with a different policy.

The State Department appears to be satisfied that no obstacles will appear in the way of a conference independent of France, and to be convinced that the other allies are determined to get at the real facts and to break with France, if need be, to do it.

Accordingly, Poincare is expected to exhibit a more conciliatory spirit than he is displaying in his speeches. Though the State Department has indicated receipt of exchanges with Poincare, these are being witnheld.

Ambassador Jusserand returned to Washington today after a long vacation in France, and is expected to discuss the situation with the State Department on Monday.

SLIGHT CONCESSION ALL POINCARE SEEMS WILLING TO MAKE

By FERDINAND TUOHY.

Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Following an hour's interview with Premier Poincare, Ambassador Crewe tonight sent to Foreign Secretary Curzon of Great Britain the Frenchman's last word as regards the phraseology of any joint reparations note destined for Washington.

Everything continues to revolve around Poincare's insistence that only the present capacity of Germany to pay should be determined. At most, he concedes only a decision for a short time in the future.

It is understood the British came forward with a compromise suggestion that while nothing be said by the expert committee as to the Reich's total debt, examination should be projected as far ahead as the committee found feasible.

There is nothing to stop this in the Versailles treaty and nothing except Louis Barthou's casting a vote against it in the Reparations Commission. Barthou is French representative on the commission. An editorial on governmental debts which this evening advocates this concession was written only after consultation with the Quai d'Orsay.

However, while M. Poincare himself might be inclined to cede the point, there is every chance of his falling if he does. The Tardieu-Daudet bloc of die hards and the Comite des Forges, the organization of the French iron industry, are watching for any weakening by their champion, who is expected in two speeches in the south of France Sunday, to stand resolutely to his guns.

There are indications that Belgium is pressing strongly for an unlimited period for the survey of experts.

Ambassador Herrick, while making a personal call this morning on M. Poincare, went fully over the whole ground as seen from Washington. The Ambassador is firmly of the opinion that now is the time for American intervention, but in the friendliest manner he outlined the grave objections current in the United States to the present French policy.

Britain Accepts Belgian Reparations Conference Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A report was current here tonight that the British Government had accepted a proposal by Belgium, that the allies' invitation to the United States for participation in a conference of experts be worded so as to set forth that the duty of the committee would be to estimate Germany's capacity to make reparations. This would widen the formula favored by Premier Poincare of France, specifying Germany's "present capacity." No official confirmation of this could be obtained tonight.

URGES OPPOSITION TO FORD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Addressing an audience in the Brooklyn Academy of Music tonight on anti-Semitism, its reason and its cure, Israel Zangwill, English author, urged all American Jews to prevent Henry Ford from becoming President of the United States.

"Henry Ford said he would run for President unless the country adhered to a dry policy," Zangwill said. "I am not in favor of a dry policy, but I would rather a dry country than Ford as President."

HERMIT ACCUSES MINISTER AND SON OF KIDNAPING CHILD

Declares He Saw Little Girl, Missing 2 Weeks, in Their Custody—Both Are Under Arrest.

By the Associated Press.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Nov. 3.—A minister named Corey and his son were arrested today by Sheriff Allen of Scott County on a warrant charging them with kidnaping Pearl Turner, three-year-old daughter of Lam Turner, a mountaineer. The child has been missing for more than two weeks.

The warrants were sworn out by Chalmers Ferguson, mountain hermit, who declares he saw her in the custody of the minister and his son.

The minister and his son will be taken to Waldron tomorrow, according to Sheriff Allen.

Plans for the most thorough search tomorrow of the mountains yet made were abandoned tonight when it became known that the roads and byways to the White Oak Mountains from Waldron were impassable.

body, I am going right here to your leaders and talk to you."

The Governor then made an appeal for the klan to consider its methods and to modify them if the occasion arose. He concluded his address by welcoming the assembled klansmen to Georgia, declaring the State was proud to welcome such a representative body of United States citizens to its doors.

"Spoke Like True Klansmen."

Mr. Moore, in following Walker, praised him for his address, declaring "The Governor has spoken to us, like a true Georgian, a true Continuing, Moore is quoted as saying:

"This great klan is growing all over the nation. That is true. The day before I left Washington, I noticed where a Washington newspaper declared the klan had a representative under the dome of the Capitol, and also one in the State Department and one in the Navy Department. I was talking to a man who writes "Kleagle" before his name, and I asked him if this were true, and he said it was and smiled and said, (and we also have one in the White House.)

Knew of New York Klan.

"The Governor read you something from a man named Hylan, of New York, who says he is going to eradicate the klan in New York. I happen to know in one of the outlying suburbs near New York, there is a nucleus of a klan that is going to be heard from, despite the New York executive.

"I am not here representing Masonry, because we have some members who see the fraternity from a different angle than the one I look upon it."

Moore told of how he had been unable to get passports to go to Europe until Senator Underwood sent a note to the State Department, declaring that if the passports were not issued by a certain time he would introduce a resolution in the United States Senate about it.

FAMOUS TENOR'S WIDOW WHO IS TO WED SOON

MRS. ENRICO CARUSO

MRS. CARUSO REPORTED TO BE ENGAGED TO WED SCOTCHMAN

Romance With Capt. E. A. Ingram Began When He Gave Her Swimming Lessons.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Paris reports that Mrs. Enrico Caruso, formerly Dorothy Park Benjamin of New York, was engaged to marry Capt. E. A. Ingram, a Scotchman, was confirmed by members of the Benjamin family in New York, the New York Times said today.

Mrs. Caruso's relatives declined to make a formal announcement of the engagament, on the ground that they had not been specifically instructed to do so, but admitted they had received word that the wedding would take place in about three weeks in England.

Mrs. Caruso first met Capt. Ingram last August, her relatives said, and added that the romance began when the Captain started giving her swimming lessons. They are in Paris at present.

The marriage of Mrs. Caruso to the famous tenor took place in 1916, when she was 25. Under Caruso's will his widow received a large estate and an annual income from his phonograph records of approximately $250,000.

ACCUSES WILLIAM R. HEARST OF AIDING THE REPUBLICANS

Gov. Smith Says Publisher Is Not Helping to Elect Democratic Assembly in New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—William R. Hearst was flatly accused tonight by Gov. Smith, speaking in the town hall, of trying to aid the Republicans to retain their plurality in the assembly through his activity in this and up-state cities.

"Of course, I need hardly say that for twenty years a politically ambitious owner of what very few intelligent people dignify as newspapers has been the leading agent for the dissemination of political buncombe," said the Governor. "Any time he wants to help himself he is strong in his advocacy of popular legislative reforms when there is no opportunity to get them. All during last winter he never lifted his voice or used his papers for five minutes to help any of the constructive reforms that were pending before the legislature.

"He knows that these reforms can only be brought about by the election of a Democratic assembly. Is he helping in the election of a Democratic assembly? He is not. He is giving comfort, in fact attempting to give real assistance, to the selection of Republicans to the assembly."

WILLIAM M. BRANDT, SECRETARY OF the Socialist party of St. Louis, will address a public meeting at 2:30 p. m. today at Eagles' Hall, Lafayette and Jefferson avenues, on "Rays of Light in American History."

MARK EXCHANGE OFF NEW YORK MARKET

Bankers and Foreign Exchange Houses Discontinue Handling It.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—German marks have become worthless and virtually all of the New York bankers and foreign exchange houses have discontinued handling them. A canvass of the financial district failed to disclose a single sale of German mark exchange. Nominal quotations ranged from thirty to 40 cents a trillion.

The passing of the mark as a medium of exchange, predicted long before it became necessary to make quotations in terms of trillions, has raised the problem of how to get money into Germany.

Most of the traffic is now in dollars, sterling and guilders. While there is no restriction in the amount of money that can be forwarded to a German destination, there are limitations on the amount of foreign exchange that can be received by the German individual or corporation.

The chief problem is that faced by the recipient in Germany in getting the dollar, sterling or guilder note or check "cashed" or changed into something which has a semblance of value in Germany. For this reason, bankers have advised customers to send money to Germany in small denominations—that is, to send ten checks or notes of $10 each instead of one of $100. This, at least, they point out, permits the recipient to get back a minimum of change as purchases are made.

Marks at 420 Billion to Dollar in Berlin.

Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The paper mark was officially established at 420 billion to the dollar today in spite of the fact it is worth one-third or one-fourth more than that as every bourse outside of Germany.

This action was taken at the cabinet meeting this morning, with the idea it would stabilize the mark in respect to the new gold loan issues. The plan is to redeem paper marks at a rate far below what thousands of speculators paid for them on outside bourses, knowing that a stabilization scheme was coming. The Government is powerless to prevent curb speculation, and it is estimated that more than 30,000 speculators in foreign moneys are busy here.

LIQUOR RAID IN KANSAS CITY LED BY GUS O. NATIONS

Sledgehammers and Crowbars Used. 50 Arrests Made Soon After Special Force Gets Under Way.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—City police co-operating with Federal agents carried out wholesale liquor raids here tonight, wielding sledgehammers, chisels and crowbars in establishments where liquor was believed to be hidden. Fifty arrests had been made shortly after the raid got under way. The raiders were armed with thirty-seven search warrants.

Action to dry up Kansas City is the result of the recent conference of Governors called by the President to discuss enforcement of the prohibition laws, it was said.

The offensive was directed by Gus Nations, Assistant Prohibition Director of Missouri, and Arthur Curran, Government agent group head in Kansas City. Local prohibition officers were augmented by five Federal agents from St. Louis.

SMILEY CRITICISES HIS COLLEAGUES ON COUNTY COURT

Presiding Judge Declares Situation Has Developed Into "an Open Split" Over Road Matters.

SHEERIN AND STEFFEN TO MINIMIZE TROUBLE

"We've Been Getting Along All Right, but Once in a While Smiley Flares Up," Latter Says.

Presiding Judge Smiley of the County Court, the administrative body of St. Louis County, in a statement to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday, attacked recent actions of his colleagues. Judges Sheerin and Steffen in matters concerning the county Highway Engineers' office and explained why he refused to approve certain pay vouchers yesterday. In reply, Sheerin and Steffen upheld their actions.

The presiding judge's statement bears out Clayton rumors of friction in the County Court. He characterized the situation as "an open split" and said his colleagues denied that it had come to this. All three were elected a year ago in the victory of the Citizens' Election League over the county machine. Smiley and Sheerin are Democrats and Steffen is a Republican.

Opposes Pay Increases.

Smiley referred first to the court's order of Oct. 1, made over his opposition by a 2-to-1 vote, granting the following increases of monthly salary to men employed under Engineer Elbring: F. M. Dozier and William E. Zimmerman, $200 to $220; Harry P. Ruck, Charles Nolte and Frank V. Kaatman $160 to $175; Oscar Temme, Walter Elbring, Carl P. Kronsberg and Ray E. Hilus, $150 to $165.

"I was opposed to those raises," Smiley said, "because I thought them inconsistent. Winter was coming on and there wasn't much outside work in sight. Yesterday I refused to sign October pay vouchers for Dozier and Zimmerman at the increased rate on the ground that the raises for them were illegal.

"They are assistant highway engineers. Section 10,787 of the Revised Statutes provides $2100 a year shall be maximum pay for an assistant highway engineer. The pay they are getting already was in excess of this, but I didn't find that out until I began digging into the law. We will have to take the matter to court. This whole matter was brought before the court by Dozier."

Says Smiley "Knew."

At the next meeting of the court Oct. 8 an order was made direct, it is said, the engineer to have the 58 district road overseers, who charged with keeping county highways in repair cease all work, except what might be necessary for public safety and what might be specially authorized by the engineer.

The other judges made this order in my absence," Smiley declared. "I had been in the court, but stepped out for a while, and they passed it without a roll call. It had been mentioned previously and I opposed the idea. There wasn't any reason for stopping road work, and our citizens were constantly urging us to put the roads in good shape."

Sheerin, in his reply, said he did not remember whether Smiley was present when the "stop" order was made, recalled that Smiley knew the matter was to come up.

Sheerin and Steffen Reply.

"It has always been customary," Sheerin said, "to order overseers to stop work at this time of year because the funds are about exhausted at this season. There's nothing to that talk of the wage raises going over the limit because Dozier and Zimmerman aren't assistant engineers. Dozier is in charge of surveys and Zimmerman is chief clerk. A split in the court? No, but I never saw three men who always agreed."

Steffen also pointed to the fact that ordinarily funds run low at this season, but are replenished with road money in January. Some of the overseers had been going "too strong" in the amount of work they were doing, he declared, and Engineer Elbring asked the court to order work stopped. Steffen asserted there was no roll call on the "stop" order and that Smiley was present and voted "aye."

Steffen added that one of the engineer's employes, Ruck, had talked of quitting because he could make more money elsewhere, so an increase was ordered for him, and it was decided to extend this to the others because they needed another employe but managed to get along without one.

As to the split in the court, Steffen said: "We've been getting along right, but once in a while Smiley flares up."

SMILEY CRITICISES HIS COLLEAGUES ON COUNTY COURT

siding Judge Declares Situation Has Developed Into "an Open Split" Over Road Matters.

HEERIN AND STEFFEN MINIMIZE TROUBLE

"We've Been Getting Along All Right, but Once in a While Smiley Flares Up," Latter Says.

Presiding Judge Smiley of the unty Court, the administrative dy of St. Louis County, in a state- nt to a Post-Dispatch reporter terday, attacked recent actions of s colleagues, Judges Sheerin and ffen in matters concerning the unty Highway Engineers' office d explained why he refused to ap ve certain pay vouchers yester y. In reply, Sheerin and Stef- n upheld their actions.
The presiding judge's statement ws out Clayton rumors of friction the County Court. He characte- ed the situation as "an open split" h his colleagues denied that it had n to this. All three were elected r ago in the victory of the an Election League over the nty machine. Smiley and Sheer- n Democrats and Steffen is a ublican.

Opposes Pay Increases.

Smiley referred first to the court's er of Oct. 1, made over his oppo- ion by a 2-to-1 vote, granting the owing increases of monthly sal- to men employed under Engi- Elbring: F. M. Dozier and iam E. Zimmerman, $200 to $220 ry P. Ruck, Charles Nolte and k V. Kaatman, $160 to $175; ur Temme, Walter Elbring, P. Kronsberg and Ray F. x, $150 to $165.
"I was opposed to those raises," ley said, "because I thought them nsistent. Winter was coming on d there wasn't much outside work ght. Yesterday I refused to n October pay vouchers for Do- and Zimmerman at the in- sed rate on the ground that the ies for them were illegal.
"They are assistant highway en- rs. Section 10,787 of the Re- d Statues provides $2100 a year all be maximum pay for an assist highway engineer. The pay they re getting already was in excess this, but I didn't find that out I began digging into the law we will have to take the matter to rt. This whole matter was brought fore the court by Dozier."

the next meeting of the court t 5 an order was made direct- the engineer to have the 58 dis t road overseers, who charged h with keeping county highways pair cease all work, except what t be necessary for public safety what might be specially author by the engineer.
The other judges made this order ng absence," Smiley declared. "I been in the court, but stepped for a while, and they passed it but a roll call. It had been men d previously and I opposed the . There wasn't any reason for ping road work, and our citizens constantly urging us to put the ds in good shape."
Sheerin, in his reply, said he did remember whether Smiley was nt when the "stop" order was de, recalled that Smiley knew the ter was to come up.

Sheerin and Steffen Reply.

"It has always been customary," rin said, "to order overseers to work at this time of year be- se the funds are about ex- sted at this season. There's noth- in that talk of the wage raises r over the limit because Dozier Zimmerman aren't assistant en- Dozier is in charge of sur- s and Zimmerman is chief . A split in the court? No, but r saw three men who always ee."
ffen also pointed to the fact ordinarily funds run low at season, but are replenished with money in January. Some of the ers had been going "too strong" the amount of work they were do he declared, and Engineer El- asked the court to order work ed. Steffen asserted there was call on the "stop" order and Smiley was present and voted ffen added that one of the en- 's employes, Ruck, had talked etting because he could make money elsewhere, so an in- was ordered for him, and it decided to extend this to the s because they needed another but managed to get along one.

to the split in the court, Stef- said: "We've been getting along ght, but once in a while Smiley s up."

St. Louis Society Women Who Will Engage in Business, With the Opening of the Curio Shop Tomorrow

From photographs made yesterday afternoon at the shop where they were preparing their stock for display.

FOUR SOCIETY WOMEN TO ENTER BUSINESS

Will Conduct the Curio Shop, Dealing in Antiques, Furniture and Silverware.

Society and Commerce will join hands tomorrow when The Curio Shop, 4535 Olive street, for the sale of antiques, modern decorative objects for the home and articles of personal adornment, will be opened by four women of the St. Louis social world.
In the afternoon tea will be served at the shop by the proprietors and a group of women friends, and thereafter customers will receive service. Properly speaking, two of the four commercial venturers, Mrs. John L. Johnston of 4474 Westminster place and Mrs. Richard S. Kennard of 4934 Buckingham court, are the proprietors. Their associates are Mrs. Oliver F. Richards of 4612 Maryland avenue and Mrs. Ephron Catlin Jr. of 15 Vandeventer place, who will use the shop as agents for certain articles.
Mrs. Catlin gave expression to the feeling that moved her and her associates to open the shop. "I was tired of this thing of going out perhaps five nights a week," she said, "with nothing special to do in day time. We wanted to do something worth while. It was really Mrs. Johnston who started the idea. Many women in the East are conducting shops of this sort."

To Observe Business Hours.

The four new business women expect to be in the shop daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Except for janitor service, they will have no assistants. The shop, which is in a new store building, is decorated in Colonial style.
Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Kennard will have for sale early American furniture, old mirrors, prints, glass and ornaments. It is said that they spent a number of months in gathering their stock.
Mrs. Richards will be agent for a Louisville firm of silversmiths, handling English silverware of early date. A collection of these objects recently was on display at the Buckingham Hotel. The silver pieces, many of which are for table service, bear the "hall mark" of Guild Hall, London, an official registry.
Mrs. Catlin's stock will consist of Japanese indestructible pearls made by putting grains of sand within oysters' shells, specially constructed mah jong tables and hand-woven bags and scarfs.

Financed Shop Themselves.

The proprietors financed the shop themselves. It was stated that the plan met with approval, rather than disapproval, from the husbands concerned. Johnston is president of the Liberty Central Trust Co., Kennard is connected with the Cupples Co. Richards is a vice-president of the Mercantile Trust Co. and Catlin is president of the Catlin Manufacturing Co.
An announcement card refers to Mrs. Johnston as "Ethel B. Johnston" and to Mrs. Kennard as "Louise Nugent Kennard." Mrs. Richards was Miss Evelyn Whitney and Mrs. Catlin was Miss Emma Drew.

GIRL COMES FROM ENGLAND TO WED FELLOW COUNTRYMAN

She and Bridegroom Lived in Same Town Before He Came to St. Louis.

From the quiet countryside of the little town of Bolton, over in England, to the noisy, ceaseless hurry of this very modern city, is quite a jump. And it is a long, hard trip—especially if you are all alone and a woman. On the other hand, the wise men say that love makes the miles fly away unnoticed.
At any rate, an English girl, Miss Florence Duckworth, hailing from that distant Bolton arrived in St. Louis yesterday and immediately embarked on another voyage which she hopes, naturally, will be even longer than the one she has just completed. But this time it is not the Atlantic, but what is often referred to as "the sea of matrimony."
Edward L. Compston, connected with a varnishing company in this city, was at the station to meet his bride-to-be. Together they made one more voyage, this time a short one. It was to East St. Louis where they were married by Rev. Thomas A. Minyard, pastor of the First Christian Church.
Compston is himself an Englishman and preceded his bride from Bolton by a few months. So that the romance that started in England was finally completed here yesterday.
Compston has been living at Hotel Laclede.

FINDS MISSING SISTER HERE

Indiana Woman Led to St. Louis by Telegram Signed "Mrs. McCarthy."

A telegram signed by a "Mrs. McCarthy" brought Miss Nellie Gilmore of Vincennes, Ind., to St. Louis yesterday, and led to her finding her sister, Maizie, 16 years old, who disappeared from their home in Vincennes last July. The telegram read: "Your sister Maizie is in grave danger. It is a case of life or death. Send $25 at once by wire. If you love your sister act promptly and secretly. Maizie G., Ideal Hotel. Mrs. McCarthy."
With a letter from the chief of police of Vincennes, the sister boarded a train and came to St. Louis police headquarters. Accompanied by detectives, the girl went to the Ideal Hotel, 2800 Locust street. The "Mrs. McCarthy" was not known, but a homesick sister was found. The sisters spent the night in the matron's quarters at Central District Police Station, and reurned today to their home in Vincennes.

JEWS FLEEING FROM BAVARIA

10,000 Fearing Pogroms Are Fugitives From Northern Towns.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.
WEIMAR, Nov. 3.—Fearing Bavarian pogroms, thousands of Jews are fleeing over the Bavarian frontier to safety. It is estimated that 10,000 Jews have fled from Northern Bavaria, where Capt. Ehrhardt, the Monarchist leader, and Adolf Hitler, the Fascisti leader, are in full power, through their anti-Semitic followers.
Hoarding of a single dollar is sufficient to cause a Jew to be expelled. Thousands have remained unmolested in Munich, Nuremberg, Augsberg and other places in the South of Bavaria, but in the northern frontier towns not one is to be seen.

RECEIVER FOR ANOTHER "SWINDLE PLOT" FIRM

Appointment Made in Bankruptcy Proceedings Against the Dickerson Mercantile Co.

Another bankruptcy proceeding as brought yesterday as a result o le "lawful larceny" plot in which . Louis merchandise swindlers have btained merchandise of estimated alue of $500,000 from wholesalers roughout the United States.
The proceedings were instituted gainst the firm known as the Dickrson Mercantile Co., 1217 North rand boulevard. The place was idded Wednesday by Postoffice Inpectors but no goods were found here were only bills which had not een paid. A. O. Dickerson, head of he concern, is being sought, a warant charging him with using the ails in a scheme to defraud having een issue. Judge Faris appointed rville Livingston receiver in the ickerson case.

Other Suits to Be Filed.

The first bankruptcy proceeding as against the Ludwig Remedy Co. 15 North Second street, goods of nich concern have been found in everal stores raided by postoffice ispectors and city detectives in their nvestigation of the fraud. More ankruptcy proceedings, it is said ill be filed against firms whose oods have been found in the places aided.
Adolph Koch, formerly in the retail drug business at Jefferson avenue and Olive street, whose business as been in the hands of a receiver ince May 24, now is a patient at the ity sanitarium. It is said that he became mentally unbalanced by financial losses resulting from activities of the "lawful larceny" gang.
His stock originally was valued at $7500 but following the appointment of a receiver it was disclosed that the assets had shrunk to about $600. Investigation disclosed that his interest in the business had been sold to a member of the gang for $100.

Statement of One Defendant.

Clay L. Schroeder, one of the men under bond charged with having used the mails to defraud states that the United Auto Supply Co., 715 Pine street, of which he is manager, was not involved in the scheme to obtain goods from merchants through fictitious credits. However, Post Office Inspectors say they obtained the warrant against Schroeder on affidavits that goods ordered by the St. Louis Merchandising Co., and the Central Mercantile Co., in the Jefferson Bank Building, were delivered to the United Auto Supply Co. John L. Schroeder, connected with the two concerns in the bank building, who also is charged in a warrant with misuse of the mails, is a cousin of Clay L. Schroeder.
Recent raids have disclosed that goods received by various concerns involved in the investigation were transferred to other firms and auctioned off to the highest bidder, although they had not been paid for by the original purchasers.

Train Robbery Suspects Held.

LASANIMAS, Colo., Nov. 3.—Four men were arrested today by Sheriff Thaxton and are being held pending word from California authorities who are seeking the men who held up a Southern Pacific passenger train near the California-Oregon line.

DENY THAT BOY WAS PUSHED UNDER WAGON

Playmates Say John Aguayo Was "Hopping" Ride—Accident Verdict Returned.

When John Aguayo, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerfes Aguayo, 100 Bremen avenue, was run over by a meat wagon on Bremen avenue, between Ninth and Eleventh streets, Tuesday, and fatally injured, he and his sister Anita, 10 years old, said he was pushed under the wheel by two older boys. But at the inquest yesterday, consequent upon the death of the boy Wednesday, playmates failed to bear out the statements of the boy and his sister and a verdict of accident was returned.
Mary Crowley, 14, of 813 Bremen avenue, was positive in her statement that the boy was not pushed. She testified that she and other children, returning from school, were walking a few feet behind John and his sister and she saw him run into the street and "hop" the side of the wagon. He slipped and fell and she turned her head to keep from seeing him run over. Questioned as to whether anybody pushed him, she said: "I know he was not pushed."
Orval Belt, 7; Richard Endsley, 10, and Joseph Billick, 7, gave similar testimony. They all said they saw John "hop" the wagon and fall in front of the wheel.
The driver, apparently unaware of the accident, did not stop. He is presumed to have been a driver for a packing company in the vicinity, but his identity has not been established.
The conclusion on which the accident verdict was based was that John and Anita, seeking to absolve him from blame for "hopping" the wagon, told that he had been pushed.

EARTH SHOCKS RECORDED HERE

Two violent earth tremors were recorded Friday evening and yesterday morning by the seismograph in the observatory at St. Louis University.
The first, recorded by Brother George R. Rueppel, lasted one hour and 37 minutes and is believed to have occurred in the southern part of Japan or China.
The second disturbance consisted of three distinct shocks between 2:42 and 3:04 a. m. yesterday. It was traced to a point in the Pacific Ocean, 2600 miles west of St. Louis.

THE tenth triennial convention of the Council of Jewish Women will be held in St. Louis for one week, beginning next Sunday, Nov. 11.
In a news account of the convention, printed today on Page 10 of part 5, it is erroneously stated that the convention will begin today and continue through this week.

PHAROAH'S THRONE ROOM ON WAY TO PENNSYLVANIA U.

Battle Monument of Set I and Treasures of Ancient Egypt Shipped to Museum.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Treasures of gold, silver and jewelry, tons of ancient battle monuments with priceless inscriptions, and the whole throne room of a Pharoah of Egypt, are on their way to the University of Pennsylvania Museum, according to Dr. George B. Gordon, its director.
Dr. Gordon returned Friday from a tour of all the sites university archaeologists are excavating in Egypt, Palestine and Mesopotamia. He arranged for the shipments, which will arrive about Jan. 11.
In Egypt, half of all that is unearthed goes to the Government. The British Museum works jointly with the Pennsylvania authorities, so a division was made. A toss of a coin decided ownership, but the divisions are of equal archaeological value.
Among the finest treasures coming here is a large "battle monument" erected by Set I, in commemoration of campaigns in Palestine. It was found at Belsan.
The throne room is so large that museum authorities considered building it into the new museum and using its columns to support the roof of the building. But this plan has been abandoned. The room is that of Pharoah Menapeth. Only two Egyptian palaces have been unearthed by archaeologists.
One of the most remarkable finds at Belsan was a jar of Roman silver coins, apparently a family bank. Some of the jewelry is of immense value. Many bronze statues in the shipment will contribute to knowledge of Egyptian art.

PASSENGER IN AUTO THAT UPSET GETS JUDGMENT FOR $5500

A compromise judgment for $5500 was entered yesterday by Circuit Judge Killoren in favor of Jesse A. True, 26 years old, a real estate dealer, residing at the Melbourne Hotel, against Daniel A. Hill of Webster Groves, president of the Western Advertising Co. The judgment was for injuries suffered when Hill's automobile overturned on the Olive street road the night of April 18. The car was driven by Hill, who had invited True to ride with him. True testified the speed was 65 miles an hour when the accident happened and that he had cautioned Hill to slow down. The sight of plaintiff's left eye was destroyed, several of his teeth were knocked out and he was otherwise hurt, it was alleged. He sued for $75,000.

COCKBURN MUST FACE TRIAL IN GRAFT CASE

Gov. Hyde Honors Requisition for Return of Veterans' Hospital Patient to Iowa.

Russell K. Cockburn, 28 years old, a patient at the United States Veterans' Hospital at Jefferson Barracks, must return to Des Moines, Ia., and stand trial for alleged embezzlement of $56,000 from city pay rolls. Gov. Hyde yesterday honored extradition papers for him presented by the State of Iowa at a hearing Thursday.
The physical condition of Cockburn did not enter consideration of the case, Hyde said, in explaining his decision. Counsel for the defendant had asserted that he is seriously ill of diabetes and his removal might result fatally.
There were but two points involved, the regularity of the requisition data and whether Cockburn was a fugitive from justice, the Governor held.
As Cockburn's counsel admitted the requisition was in proper form, Hyde had only to determine whether the defendant had voluntarily left the State of Iowa when under bond to appear for trial. The Governor based his conclusion that such was the case upon the fact that, before applying for treatment at the Jefferson Barracks hospital, Cockburn had been receiving the same sort of treatment at a private hospital in Des Moines.
The former soldier was indicted with 11 others in 1922, following an expose of graft in the city government of Des Moines. It was alleged that Cockburn, while acting as timekeeper in the Park Department, placed the names of dead men on the payroll and was guilty of other irregularities.
Sheriff Park Findley of Des Moines is expected to call at the hospital for Cockburn today.

THREE HELD AS WITNESSES IN ROADHOUSE SHOOTING INQUIRY

St. Louis County authorities are holding three persons as witnesses for the grand jury investigation of the wounding of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Fiener of Brentwood, Friday night in a roadhouse at 955 North and South road, Brentwood. Those held are Burt Hurt, proprietor of the roadhouse; Mrs. Effie Ermey, who resides upstairs there, and William Klauberg, the porter. They are expected to appear before the grand jury tomorrow.
Fiener is in a critical condition at the Jewish Hospital with a bullet wound in the chest, while his wife is there suffering from a shot in the left leg.
Fiener told authorities that after going to the roadhouse for a bottle of beer he got into an argument with a man he knew as James and was shot by the latter. Mrs. Fiener, who heard the argument, said she ran to the roadhouse from her home across the street and was shot by James when she interceded for her husband.

Eye Service That Satisfies
In a survey of industrial plants of U. S., it was found that of 42,000,000 workers, 25,000,000 have defective Eyes. Of the 25,000,000 school children in the U. S., a still larger percentage have impaired vision. Most of these could be made vastly more efficient in their work and studies at a trifling cost.

SWEDISH CROWN PRINCE WEDS ENGLISH WOMAN

Simplicity Marks Nuptials of Gustav Adolph and Lady Louise Mountbatten.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Before the ancient altar of the intimate little Chapel Royal in St James' Palace, where many a King and Queen have been married since the days of Henry VIII, Crown Prince Gustav Adolph of Sweden took as his second bride this afternoon Lady Louise Mountbatten, second cousin of the reigning sovereigns of Britain.

There was none of the splendor or grandeur about the ceremony, such as the weddings of royalty in vast Westminster Abbey have known. It was as simple as could be, considering the high estate of the bridegroom and the bride and the presence of so many royal witnesses, ambassadors and titled aristocrats. Fewer than 300 persons were able to find seats within the narrow confines of the chapel.

Prince Gustav wore the uniform of a General of the Swedish army. His brother, Prince Wilhelm, in naval uniform, was best man.

The bride, wearing a gown made from a fine piece of Indian silver gauze, which had been given her by her uncle, the Grand Duke of Hesse, was accompanied to the altar by her brother, Lord Louis Mountbatten. Her train was of the same material and her veil of horiton lace, was the one given by Queen Victoria to her daughter, Princess Alice, at her marriage to the Grand Duke of Hesse. The sleeves of the untrimmed bridal gown were long and close-fitting, so long in fact that the bride did not wear gloves. Her silver shoes had low heels. She carried a small bouquet of lillies, quaintly arranged.

Acting as bridesmaids were the four Princesses of the royal house in Greece—Margaret, Theodora, Cecilia and Sophie—daughters of Prince Andrew and nieces of the bride. The bride's train was borne by her little nephew and nieces, the Earl of Medina and Lady Tatiana Mountbatten, children of the Marquis of Milfordhaven, who is Lady Louise's brother.

The simplicity of the marriage ceremony was sustained after the church service. King George and Queen Mary and King Gustav and Queen Victoria attended the wedding reception in an informal manner, not as "their majesties." There was no monster wedding cake to fill the eyes and the mouths of those invited to the reception at Clock House, adjoining Kensington Palace—only an ordinary bridal cake of simple design prepared by an unpretentious cook who has been in the bride's family for many years.

Nor was there a glittering display of wedding gifts. From the first the bride had asked her friends to give her furniture and articles for her home, and as fast as these were received they were shipped to Sweden often in the packing boxes in which they arrived from the donors.

The reception did not last long and before nightfall the Crown Prince had taken his bride away from London on their honeymoon, most of which will be spent in Italy. They will arrive in Stockholm on Dec. 11.

Swedish People Eager to Meet Their Future Queen.

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 3.—News of the marriage of Lady Louise Mountbatten to Gustav Adolph, Crown Prince of Sweden, was read with deep interest here. The Swedes are eager to meet the woman who some day will become their Queen.

Scarcely had the news of Gustav Adolph's engagement been announced when it was reported that certain authorities in Sweden opposed the marriage on the ground that Lady Louise was not of sufficiently high rank to marry the Crown Prince. Then, while the genealogical experts were settling this question in favor of the bride-to-be, came the news that the press of foreign lands was broadcasting the tale that Lady Louise had changed her mind about becoming a Crown Princess and was going to marry an obscure English painter of modest income.

Lady Louise's father was Prince Louis of Battenberg, later known as the Marquis of Milford-Haven. The Blattenberg family has sprung from Germany by way of Austria, where the title of prince was bestowed, and because of strained feeling in England during the war the name was angilicized to Mountbatten. Lady Louise who is about 35 years old, is a typical aristocratic Englishwoman, gracious, generous, alert, fond of dancing and outdoor sport, and gifted with genuine charm.

The Swedish Crown Prince has been married before, his first wife having died three years ago. Crown Princess Margaret, daughter of the Duke of Connaught and Princess of Great Britain and Ireland, had borne five children, and her death was a great bereavement to the Swedish people. Gustav Adolph is 41 years old, more than six feet tall, as are all the men of the Swedish royal family, and vigorous as an athlete. Indeed he is the possessor of the "athletic medal" awarded only for high proficiency in at least five different branches of sport in Sweden.

SPENCER WALKS WITH COOLIDGE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Senator Spencer of Missouri had his second before-breakfast walk with President Coolidge today. The President, in his car, called for the Senator at the latter's apartment and the two walked back to the White House, a distance of about two miles, and had breakfast together. Senator Spencer declined to say what they talked about.

It is understood, however, that he took the opportunity to again urge the appointment of former Circuit Judge Vital W. Garesche as Federal Judge at St. Louis.

A Special Sale of 72 Chinese Porcelain and Pottery Table Lamps

(COMPLETE WITH SHADES)

The Porcelains of China

were discovered by them over a thousand years ago. In their efforts to imitate by artificial means the luminous beauties of jade, they evolved porcelain. To this day the Chinese possess a natural talent for its manufacture and decoration that cannot be surpassed. They have exquisitely expressed this art in beautiful porcelain and pottery lamps that, fitted with charming and colorful silk shades to harmonize, are veritable gems of artistic loveliness.

The Most Important and Timely Lamp Sale We Have Ever Conducted

Through several fortunate cash purchases from leading Importers we procured the pick of their Chinese porcelain and pottery lamps. As a result we have assembled a most exclusive and select collection. This great group includes about 72 lamps, but they are mostly "one of a kind" and you have about fifty different patterns to choose from. All complete with silk shades to harmonize and in some cases bases and shades are interchangeable. The bases come in sang de bouf, horizon blue, canary yellow, orange, mirror black, white crackled, celadon ware, Chinese figures, Chinese crystal and jade. The lamps range in price from $12.00 to $200.00 with a generous assortment of low priced lamps. (FOURTH FLOOR)

All Reduced 15% to 50%

We have one dozen antique Chinese silk runners ideally appropriate for table scarfs

REPUBLICANS STIRRED BY SPEAKERSHIP FIGHT

Plan to Keep Gillett Out Presages Conflict Over Party Organization.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A plan to keep Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts out of the speakership is stirring Republican members of the House.

It is the first rumble of the fight over organization that is to show the hand of La Follette Progressives and reveal the strength that the Republican organization will have to offer President Coolidge in the sixty-eighth Congress. Combinations of forces representing all sections of the country are being discussed.

The most formidable so far proposes to make Martin B. Madden of Illinois Speaker, and Tilson of Connecticut floor leader. Another would make Burton of Ohio Speaker and Graham of Illinois floor leader.

Either would have some advantage in the West, politically, over the Gillett regime. The Westerns say Massachusetts has more than her share in the big places at Washington. A report went out a few days ago that Gillett might be the next Ambassador to Rome. That office has not yet been tendered him but some have suggested the appointment to President Coolidge in the hope he would see its political wisdom.

RULES MISSOURI FIRMS FORMED IN DELAWARE MUST PAY TAXES

Attorney-General Barrett's Opinion May Result in Collection of Thousands in Fees.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 3.—Missouri business concerns cannot escape payment of Missouri taxes by incorporating under the laws of Delaware, it was declared in an an opinion issued today by Attorney-General Barrett to Secretary of State Becker.

Fenton R. Stockard, corporation counsel in the Secretary of State's office, on receipt of this opinion, said the department would make an effort to collect fees believed to amount to many thousands of dollars, payment of which has been evaded by the use of Delaware corporation charters. The Secretary of State asked for the opinion on fees that might be collected from Missouri concerns incorporating in Delaware rather than Missouri, when all of their property is located in Missouri, and all of the business of the corporation is transacted in Missouri. In such cases, it was said the corporation usually reports to the Secretary of State that only a part of its capital is invested in Missouri and no fees are paid on the remainder.

Assistant Attorney-General Henry Davis, who wrote the opinion, held that the Secretary of State was not bound to accept the affidavit as final, and that he might investigate to determine the true amount of property held by the company and its investment in Missouri.

DECLINES IN UNION ROSTERS

888,500 in Building Trades in 1921, and 829,100 in 1923.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The number of organized workers in the building crafts of this country fell from 888,500 in 1921 to 829,100 in 1923, according to compilations by the S. W. Straus Co. from official paid-up membership reports of the 17 building trades unions. The report, published today, shows that the largest drop in membership had occurred among carpenters and joiners, with a decline from 352,000 in 1921 to 325,000 this year. Since per capita tax was paid on a minimum membership, this may be somewhat larger, the report said. Bridge and structural iron workers dropped from 19,900 to 14,600.

The International Union of Steam Engineers had its numbers fall from 32,000 to 27,100, with membership in the Brotherhood of Decorators and Paper Hangers falling from 113,300 to 92,800. Other unions reported increases in their membership.

5 YEARS FOR STOCK OPERATOR

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 3.—Frank M. Young, local "blind pool" stock operator, convicted in United States Court here last Thursday of using the mails to defraud, today was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the Atlanta Federal prison. His counsel said they would not appeal.

Young, it was shown, had more than 5000 clients and liabilities of $3,500,000 when his "sure thing" financial scheme to beat the stock market collapsed in October, 1922.

BRITISH PREMIERS REVIEW WAR FLEET

Oldest of 72 Ships Was Completed in 1915—Number Smaller Than on Previous Occasions.

By the Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, England, Nov. 3.—The proud gray fleet of Britain that kept the seas clear for the allies and closed to the Germans during the war, assembled today at Spithead and steamed in review past the Premiers of all the dominions where flies the Union Jack. It was the first muster of Britain's naval strength at Spithead since the memorable day in July, 1914, when King George and members of his Parliament watched the going to sea of the ships which a few days later were at war.

Not one of the mighty men-o-war which passed out of the historic roadstead that day had a place in the armada which the statesmen from all over the far-flung empire—the delegates to the Imperial Conference sitting in London—watched in their operations this afternoon. Only a few of those pre-war ships ride the waves today. Some of them were sunk during the hostilities and others have been broken up in the carrying out of the voluntary scrapping of naval might, to which the nations agreed at Washington. Those remaining are stationed in foreign waters or are assigned to training and other subsidiary duties.

Today's entire naval assemblage from the Hood, the heaviest and largest man-o-war afloat, down to the tiniest auxiliary craft, numbered 72 vessels—the smallest number of naval vessels mustered at a formal British fleet review within living memory, and this fact is taken in England as a visible reminder of what the Washington agreements have meant. It was almost entirely a product of the war, the oldest ship in the line this afternoon being the Queen Elizabeth, completed in 1915.

The fleet of July, 1914, embraced 55 battleships. Now there are but 18 of this principal class in the entire navy, eight of which were in line in this afternoon's operations. Instead of four battle cruisers, as in 1914, there were but two, while the 26 light cruisers of nine years ago had been reduced to 12.

Individually the ships are more battleworthy, with heavier guns, greater speed and more driving power, but taken together they are actually less powerful than the fleet of 1914.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Admiral Beatty has asked to be relieved of the post of first sea lord of the admiralty at an early date and may quit within a few weeks, according to the Westminster Gazette.

SHRINE MOSQUE DEDICATION

7000 Members Take Part in Ceremony at Springfield, Mo.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 3.—Approximately 7000 Shrine members from a dozen States gathered here today for the dedication of Abou Ben Adhem's new $600,000 mosque. A total of 20 bands and patrols aside from a number of imperial officers took part in a parade this morning. During the morning seven bands gathered in the center of the square and played while patrols drilled in each corner of the square. Later all bands consolidated and played "The Star Spangled Banner." This selection was directed by R. Ritchie Robertson, leader of the largest Boy scout band in the world.

Imperial Potentate Dykeman dedicated the structure, which has a seating capacity in its auditorium of 5000, and one of the largest stages in the United States. An organ has been installed at a cost of $50,000. Novices in the afternoon initiation class numbered 500. A reception and dance tonight closed the program.

ACQUITTED TWICE IN 10 DAYS

James J. Coad Freed of Charge of Grand Larceny.

James J. Coad, 55 years old, of 8409 Michigan avenue, a carpenter, was acquitted of a grand larceny charge the second time within 10 days Friday, when a jury in Judge Calhoun's court adjudged him not guilty.

It was asserted by Emerson Manness, a timekeeper for the International Shoe Co., that he had certified names on a payroll after the employes had quit work and that he and Coad, who he declared suggested the plan, split the money. The amount in the latest charge aggregated $55. Coad testified he did not get any part of the mony and that he was being "framed."

Seeks Relatives of John Larson.

Mrs. M. DeLassus of Berkeley, Cal. is endeavoring to locate relatives of John Larson, a native of England, and one-time resident of St. Louis. Larson died, she believes, in Anchor Landing or Perryville, somtime between 1881 and 1883, leaving a daughter, Alice, who married a man named DeLassus. Mrs. DeLassus' address is School of Deaf and Blind at Berkeley.

Bids for 120,000,000 Feet of Lumber Opened.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Bids for 120,000,000 board feet of American lumber to be used in reconstruction work in the Japanese earthquake disaster were opened today at the Japanese embassy. No announcement of the terms was made. Other bids will be asked for later as the building needs of the stricken district are further developed.

NEW 1924 MODEL

Electric Clothes Washer

To increase the interest and good will in their splendid new 1924 Model Electric Washer in the minds and hearts of St. Louisans, the makers of the internationally known Universal Electric Home Appliances have authorized us to present one of their smaller appliances absolutely free with every Universal Washer sold during this introductory campaign. To this remarkably generous offer we can but add that the Universal Washer is a tried and proven product that we have given the most exacting and exhaustive tests—we heartily recommend it, and we urge you to Act Now—This Introductory Offer Is Good for a Short Time Only!

When the allotments of Universal appliances for this Introductory Campaign are exhausted, the offer will terminate without further notice. Hundreds have been awaiting just such a chance as this to secure a dependable Washer, and here is a double opportunity which none should overlook. This is the new 1924 model with solid aluminum swinging wringer and many other improvements.

Try the Universal at Home, FREE!

You need not obligate yourself to buy the Universal if you prefer having a trial at home first. We will reserve your choice of the appliances and deliver it after your free trial, when you are certain that you prefer the Universal to any other Washer. This is the new 1924 Model, just received, and you won't want any other Washer when you see it operate.

The UNIVERSAL Is Made and Guaranteed by Landers, Frary & Clark Backed by 50 Years' Reputation

The manufacturing integrity of Landers, Frary & Clark is well known—for more than half a century this name and the trade-mark "Universal" have been by-words in homes everywhere. This is a Washer you KNOW is right.

A Few Dollars Down —Balance Monthly on Your Light Bills

So easy is it to purchase that you don't miss the small monthly amounts added on your light bills—remember, the Universal is guaranteed by Landers, Frary & Clark for five (5) years against any mechanical defects, excepting motor and wringer rolls; we give you free service for one year and the entire resources of this great public service institution are guaranty of your satisfaction.

Choose the Appliance You Want Free

EASY TO OPERATE

The Universal Washer operates on the well-known cylinder principle. Two levers control its entire operation. It has full metal cabinet beautifully enameled, a safe Swinging Wringer, a large-sized smooth zinc cylinder, a full gear-and-shaft drive and numerous other features that will recommend themselves as worthy of the name Universal.

Bring in the Coupon or Telephone!

So that none will be disappointed who want to take advantage of this offer and are not able to call in person, we will, upon receipt of a phone call, send a representative to explain this very liberal proposition—do not delay!

$266,871 RAISED IN THE SYMPHONY FUND CAMPAIGN

Teams Disbanded but Will Do Some Voluntary "Mopping Up" Among Firms and Individuals.

LEADERS PLEASED WITH THE RESULTS

Although Goal of $500,000 for Thre-Year Period Was Not Reached They Still Are Optimistic.

With $266,871 raised in subscriptions, the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's intense six-day campaign to underwrite a fund of $500,000 through St. Louis business firms and individuals, with which to meet deficits of the orchestra for the next three years, closed enthusiastically with the daily noonday luncheon at Hotel Statler yesterday.

The enthusiasm was not based on the final sum reported, which was only slightly in excess of half the goal desired, but in analysis of the figures and in other collateral benefits of the campaign as viewed by Symphony Society officials.

Though the 51 teams of from five to 25 workers each, who have made the solicitation, were disbanded with the warmest praise of the campaign managers, all were asked to volunteer continued duty until the drive has been prosecuted completely. Announcement was made that the "mopping up" solicitation among the 6000 St. Louis firms and individuals listed as "prospects" will be directed from campaign headquarters at 604 Equitable Building.

Basis of Optimism.

The optimism of the campaign leaders was based on several grounds, chief of which was that many of the guarantors were disinclined to sign written pledges for three-year-annual subscriptions, but who could be reasonably expected, as was expressly promised verbally in a number of instances, to repeat the subscription each year. Further, a great many of the "prospects," especially large firms and corporations which require action by a board of directors, are "call backs," in the parlance of salesmen, as the subscription takers considered themselves. Also, a number of St. Louisans of ample purse and known to be friendly to the orchestra, are out of the city.

In disbanding the workers at yesterday's luncheon, General Chairman Frank P. Crunden and George D. Markham, chairman of the Big Givers' Committee, expressed themselves as well pleased with the response. The day's subscriptions, reported by team captains, totaled $34,071 a falling off of the average of about $50,000 of the previous days.

Prizes, yet to be announced, are to be awarded the four divisional commands and the individual teams, and announcement was made yesterday that the team captained by Oliver F. Richards had won the prize for the largest sum collected, with a record of $46,630.

Some of Largest Subscriptions.

As has been the daily custom, the team captains reported the givers of the larger subscriptions, and the following were mentioned:

St. Louis Clearing House Association, $2500; Mrs. Daniel Catlin, $500, and Catlin estate, $3000; the Globe-Democrat, $1500; Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Hill, $2000; Laclede Gas Light Co., $250; St. Louis Independent Packing Co., $500; Mrs. Newton R. Wilson, $3000; American Automobile Insurance Co., $500, and Mrs. David R. Calhoun, $1000.

Mention also was made that Mrs. Mary Lionberger had doubled her subscription of $300 and another individual, who asked that the name be not divulged, increased a subscription of $1000 to $3000. Chairman Markham also announced that Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Knight, both of whom are out of the city, had given assurance of a pledge of $5000 a year annually for the three-year period, which would constitute the contribution next largest to the $10,000 a year pledge of John W. Fowler, president of the Symphony Society.

Inspirational and "pep" speakers who addressed the daily noonday gatherings of the works throughout the week stressed the value of the orchestra as a commercial asset throughout St. Louis' trade territory, and the cultural benefits to the people of the community.

Conductor Ganz Heard.

Yesterday's speaker was Rudolph Ganz, the orchestral conductor, and the theme and subject matter of his brief address, was listened to with keen interest.

"We of the orchestra will help you insure the success for your drive," he said, "by the sheer merit of our work, which you inspire us to improve. This campaign, regardless of financial returns, can be viewed only optimistically. The biggest result is that the idea 'of the orchestra has been 'sold' to St. Louisans. Conductors and members come and go, but the orchestra lives on forever."

A suggestion that St. Louis might inspire to world symphony supremacy provoked the audience to vigorous applause.

"Let me call your attention," he said, "to musical history which has seen the metropolitan music centers shift from city to city. First it was Vienna, then Berlin, then Paris, London, Boston, New York. And today it may slip to Chicago. But Philadelphia, today, sets the standard for symphony music and it is ..... that we of the orchestra, with the aid of you and your subscribers, are striving to meet."

Ganz also made announcements of particular interest to symphony concert lovers. First, he announced that arrangements had been completed for broadcasting by radio the concerts again this season. Second, he declared a policy of briefer concerts would be carried, but that St. Louisans must be educated to arrive at concerts on time to avoid the dragging out of time between the opening numbers while latecomers are being seated. Lastly, he declared, it was the policy of the conductor and orchestra members at all times to "keep their ears to the ground" to respond to the public pulse.

A feature of the closing luncheon program was the volunteer appearance of the Peerless Quartet, who rendered two numbers. Its members are Mrs. Rose Mortimer Cox, soprano; Miss Alma Schulze, contralto; J. Glenn Lee, tenor, and B. E. Lemen, barytone.

Intercepted Forward Pass Beats St. Louis

Davis, Sensational Halfback, Catches Billiken Toss, Runs 80 Yards for Winning Touchdown.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 3.—A drizzling rain throughout the entire game marred what otherwise proved to be one of the greatest football games played in Cincinnati when St Louis University met St. Xavier this this afternoon and was defeated by the score of 20 to 10.

Capt. Herb Davis, St. Xavier's brilliant right half back played one of the best games of his career, scoring all of his team's points. He was responsible for three touchdowns, and two placement kicks after touchdown. One of these touchdowns, an intercepted forward pass, and a sensational run of 90 yards through the entire St. Louis team near the close of the game, were the outstanding features.

With the score 7 to 0 against them, St. Louis came through with a vigorous assault on St. Xavier's line in the second period, scoring a touchdown by Hannegan, a place kick after touchdown by Schaeffering, and a fine drop kick from the field from the 25-yard line by Schaeffering. Capt. Quirk, and O'Toole, who replaced Amarel at the start of the second period, and McKenzie, right half back, played a sterling game for the visitors.

Ramacciotti Called Upon.

Upon their entrance into the game the Billikens were suffering the loss of several of their best men, including Ramacciotti. "Ram" entered the game in the final quarter.

The Cincinnatis got away to a flying start in the first period, when Davis scored the first touchdown following a brilliant 20-yard run. St. Louis opened the game, kicking off. The kick, made by Hannegan, was bad, the ball rolling to St. Xavier's 10-yard line. Davis made five yards which was followed by a forward pass that was good for seven yards. Then Davis came through with his spectacular run breaking through tackle and running 20 yards for a touchdown, after which he kicked goal.

In the second period, St. Louis began to show signs of life. Hannegan's forward pass to Schaeffering was good for 16 yards. McKenzie and the rest of the back-field men followed with four bucks, making a first down. Hannegan plunged through five yards for the touchdown.

St. Louis again marched down the field and when the St. Xavier line held firm, Schaeffering dropped back to the 25-yard line and scored a perfect field goal, giving St. Louis the lead, 10 to 7.

In this portion of the game the Billikens distinctly out-played the home team.

Xavier Player Banished.

St. Xavier was penalized 15 yards in the third period after Muelle pounded rather hard on O'Toole, who subbed for Higt at left end. Muelle was also ordered from the game.

St. Xavier immediately opened up with an invulnerable attack with a series of rapid passes. Reynolds to Weiskittel for five yards, and Reynolds to Davis who successfully executed his famed side stepping of tackles and ran 20 yards down field for a touchdown. He also kicked the extra point. Score at the end of third period again favored St. Xavier, 14 to 10.

Then the final blow was administered. At the opening of this quarter, the fourth, St. Louis, in a desperate attempt to stop the onslaught of the "Saints," sent in their two injured stars, McConachie and Ramacciotti. The latter entered the game with an injured shoulder. Reynolds' punt was good for 60 yards. St. Louis after a series of end runs, brought the ball back to Xavier's 20-yard line.

The Saints held, and the Billikens filled at the critical stage. Xavier punted. St. Louis took the ball back again, this time to their opponent's 10-yard line.

Davis again proved poison for St. Louis. With the loss of the giant instrument, he intercepted a St. Louis forward pass, which for a moment looked good, ran through the entire St. Louis team for 80 yards to a touchdown.

He failed on the try for the extra point. The game ended with the ball in Xavier's possession on their own 20-yard line.

There were 5282 paid admissions to the grandstand. This is close to a record attendance for a football game in Cincinnati. The maximum attendance in the Queen City being 6000. The rain which fell at the opening of the game held down the throng.

BILLIKENS LOSE, 20 TO 10; ILLINOIS DEFEATS CHICAGO, 7 TO 0

Intercepted Forward Pass Beats St. Louis

Davis, Sensational Halfback, Catches Billiken Toss, Runs 80 Yards for Winning Touchdown.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 3.—A drizzling rain throughout the entire game marred what otherwise proved to be one of the greatest football games played in Cincinnati when St Louis University met St. Xavier this this afternoon and was defeated by the score of 20 to 10.

Capt. Herb Davis, St. Xavier's brilliant right half back played one of the best games of his career, scoring all of his team's points. He was responsible for three touchdowns, and two placement kicks after touchdown. One of these touchdowns, an intercepted forward pass, and a sensational run of 80 yards through the entire St. Louis team near the close of the game, were the outstanding features.

With the score 7 to 0 against them, St. Louis came through with a vigorous assault on St. Xavier's line in the second period, scoring a touch down by Hannegan, a place kick after touchdown by Schafferring, and a fine drop kick from the field from the 25-yard line by Schafferring. Capt. Quirk, and O'Toole, who replaced Amarel at the start of the second period, and McKenzie, right half back, played a sterling game for the visitors.

Ramacciotti Called Upon.

Upon their entrance into the game the Billikens were suffering the loss of several of their best men, including Ramacciotti. "Ram" entered the game in the final quarter.

The Cincinnatis got away to a flying start in the first period, when Davis scored the first touchdown following a brilliant 20-yard run. St. Louis opened the game, kicking off. The kick, made by Hannegan, was bad, the ball rolling to St. Xavier's 30-yard line. Davis made five yards which was followed by a forward pass that was good for seven yards. Then Davis came through with his spectacular run, breaking through tackle and running 20 yards for a touchdown, after which he kicked goal.

In the second period, St. Louis began to show signs of life. Hannegan's forward pass to Schaeffering was good for 16 yards. McKenzie and the rest of the back-field men followed with four bucks, making a first down. Hannegan plunged through five yards for the touchdown.

St. Louis again marched down the field and when the St. Xavier line held firm, Schaeffering dropped back to the 25-yard line and scored a perfect field goal, giving St. Louis the lead, 10 to 7.

In this portion of the game the Billikens distinctly out-played the home team.

Xavier Player Banished.

St. Xavier was penalized 15 yards in the third period after Mueller pounded rather hard on O'Toole, who subbed for Higi at left end. Mueller was also ordered from the game.

St. Xavier immediately opened up with an invulnerable attack with a series of rapid passes. Reynolds to Weikittel for 36 yards; Davis and Amarell, 11 yards on bucks; Rapp to Weikittel for five yards, and Reynolds to Davis who successfully executed his famed side stepping of tackles and ran 20 yards down field for a touchdown. He also kicked the extra point. Score at the end of third period again favored St. Xavier, 14 to 10.

Then the final blow was administered. At the opening of this quarter, the fourth, St. Louis, in a desperate attempt to stop the onslaught of the "Saints," sent in their two injured stars, McConachie and Ramacciotti. The latter entered the game with an injured shoulder. Reynolds' punt was good for 60 yards. St. Louis, after a series of end runs, brought the ball back to Xavier's 20-yard line. The Saints held, and the Billikens failed at the critical stage. Xavier punted. St. Louis took the ball back again, this time to their opponents' 30-yard line.

Davis again proved poison for St. Louis. With the close of the game imminent, he intercepted a St. Louis forward pass, which for a moment looked good, ran through the entire St. Louis team for 80 yards to his own touchdown.

He failed on the try for the extra point. The game ended with the ball on Xavier's possession on their own 30-yard line.

There were 5282 paid admissions to the stadium. This is close to a record attendance for a football game in Cincinnati. The maximum attendance in the Queen City being 6850, a mark which fell at the opening of the game held down the throng.

Among those who witnessed the contest were Patrick Moran, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, and Miller J. Huggins, the manager of the world's champion Yankees.

MISSISSIPPI AGGIES TIE VANDERBILT ELEVEN

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 3.—Although Vanderbilt out-ran, out-punted and out-passed Mississippi A. and M., the Coronados showed that they were better sailors in the run than their enemy, the two teams battling to a scoreless tie in a field miserable with mud and driving rain.

Every attempt at real football was upset by the inches of mud and water which covered the field. Vanderbilt gained twice as much yardage from scrimmage as the Mississippians, but fumbles prevented touchdowns whenever the Commodores were within striking distance.

Pikers Win From Drury Eleven, 6-0

Claypool's 12-Yard Pass to Goessling in Final Minutes of Play Gives Only Touchdown of Contest.

By Arthur Schneff.

The Piker proved himself to be a better player in the mud than the Panther, and as a result Washington University won from Drury College at Francis Field yesterday, 6 to 0. The winning touchdown came in the last five minutes of play.

On an exchange of punts, Kuhn, Drury halfback, fumbled Lyle's kick and Capt. Cantwell recovered for Washington on the Panther 10-yard line. Three plunges at the line gained only two yards, and with one more down to go it looked like the Pikers were stopped.

But on the fourth down, Claypool, forward passed 12 yards to Goessling, who fell over the goal line for the only score of the game. Lyle's attempt at goal failed.

The game was played in a sea of mud and water, and half the time the players were so besmeared that the rivals could not be distinguished. Secure footing was impossible, and the wet ball was too heavy and slippery to be handled safely.

There were 15 fumbles during the game. The kicking average was only a little better than 20 yards, and it was possible to complete only two passes, one by each eleven.

Floun Stops Panthers.

The visitors really had the upper hand for the greater part of the game. Most of the playing was in Piker territory and the Panthers were always threatening. Twice the Panthers were close to the 20-yard line and seemed headed for a score, but each time Sammy Floun, Piker fullback, intercepted a forward pass to check the advance of the enemy.

The Panthers had a marked advantage in the kicking, and it was this superiority that made them the Pikers' equals. Levy and Schnaus, Washington's regular punters, were not in the battle, and the burden fell on Weil, who was making his first appearance in the difficult role of punter. The visitors, when they didn't fumble the ball, gained on practically every exchange of kicks, until Lyle took over the task for the Pikers. Kuhn, Drury punter, handled his punts with exceptional ability, averaging better than 30 yards.

The sensational plays of the game were wide end runs made by Capt. Mathews, Drury quarterback. On a trick play early in the first period he circled right end for a 35-yard gain, and again in the third quarter he carried the ball 32 yards to the Piker 30-yard line.

OLYMPIC CLUB OFFERS NOTRE DAME RECEIPTS FOR GAME ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—The Olympic Club football team of San Francisco is so anxious to meet the Notre Dame University team that the local outfit will give "anything they ask," "Babe" Hollingberry, the club's football commissioner, said today.

The statement was prompted by a telegram from Coach Knute Rockne asking the club to "make us a definite proposition."

"Notre Dame is endeavoring to raise $1,000,000 for an endowment fund," Hollingberry said. "The Olympic Club is willing to turn over the receipts of the game here to the fund. We want Notre Dame and will do anything within reason to have them play in San Francisco."

HAROLD E. GRANGE

The Illini Sophomore, who was responsible for the only score of the game. He personally made 48 yards and also went over the line himself to complete his good work.

Cleveland and Soldan Victors In High School Double-Header; Mud Badly Handicaps Kickers

Yeatman Loses When Boot From Behind Goal Line Fails to Reach Field of Play and Sheller Drops on It for a Score—Forward Passing Almost Impossible, Owing to Wet Ball.

By Frank Gaffney.

Cleveland High School defeated Yeatman High 6 to 0 and Soldan registered a triumph over McKinley by a 19 to 0 margin, yesterday, at High School Field, in contests which were supposed to be tests of strength at the college game of football but which, in reality, were endurance races in mud-crawling.

The terrible condition of the gridiron made real football impossible and the games, especially the first, was one of the most uninteresting exhibitions seen in St. Louis in many years. The second game was an improvement on the opener.

In the Cleveland-Yeatman swim the ball, players and officials were coated with mud during the entire game. The ball was difficult to handle and Yeatman used a relay pass from center on all kick formations. Forward passing was entirely abandoned until the last few moments of play. Every attempt to gain was a straight lunge at the rival lines and the play degenerated into a so-called kicking contest. But this is a misnomer for it was a rare punt which traveled over 15 yards, as the heavy ball and slippery footing made it a bad job for the rival kickers.

Unlucky Kick Costs Touchdown.

The lone score of the game resulted from one of these kicks. The Cleveland team had driven the Yeatman attack back to the North Enders own two-yard line. Hannegan dropped back behind his own goal for the kick. After the ball was relayed to him his foot ascended feebly into the air. At the start of the kick a Cleveland player touched the ball slightly but did not knock it down. The ball rose straight into the air and descended into the waiting arms of Sheller, the right end of Cleveland, who dropped in his tracks for a touchdown, behind the Yeatman goal line.

Cleveland outplayed the Yeatman machine throughout the game and kept the ball in the Blue territory almost entirely. Yeatman failed to make one first down during the game. The slippery condition of the field prevented any form of an open attack by the Yeatmanites and apparently the backfield could not keep its feet. Any attempt to for-

Zev's Owner Wagers $63,000 in Latonia Betting Machines

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.

HARRY F. SINCLAIR, owner of Zev, evidently was convinced that Zev could not be beaten because he plunged $63,000 in the pari-mutuel machines.

Sinclair first wagered $30,000. Then he dumped $20,000 more. As the hour for the start drew near he wagered an additional $9000 and finally $4000 more.

Carl Weidemann, owner of the winner, is reported to have wagered heavily on In Memoriam. Before the race was arranged he offered to bet $15,000 that In Memoriam would defeat both Zev and My Own. His friends say he had this sum down in the mutuels.

He was so well satisfied with the result that he gave Jockey Mack Garner a check for $10,000 for his fine ride on the victor. Weidemann himself received $50,000 in cash and a gold cup for his victory in addition to his wagers.

IN MEMORIAM, KENTUCKY BRED, COST HIS OWNER $8400 AS A YEARLING

By the Associated Press.

LATONIA, Ky., Nov. 3.—In Memoriam, winner of today's $50,000 Latonia championship and conqueror of Zev and My Own, first saw the light of day on the Kentucky breeding farm of Col. Phil Chinn. He was purchased by Carl Wiedemann of Newport, Ky., as a yearling, for $8400, but was regarded as only an ordinary racing performer as a 2-year-old.

After losing to Zev in the Kentucky Derby, his first important victory this year was in the Illinois Derby, run at the Hawthorne track in Chicago early in July. His only stake victory of importance was in the opening day $5000 feature event of the Latonia meet.

In Memoriam is the son of McGee-Enchantress II and is the second great horse sent to the track by McGee, Exterminator being the other.

Mack Garner, who rode In Memoriam to victory, is rated as the riding star of the Kentucky tracks, and only a few days ago signed a $10,000 contract to ride for Peter Coyne for next season. Garner lives in a pretty little home in Covington, is married, and has two children. He is about 26 years old.

ST. LOUISANS WIN WHEN IN MEMORIAM GALLOPS HOME IN FRONT OF ZEV

Information from Louisville received here by St. Louisans early yesterday caused quite a plunge on In Memoriam, despite the fact that professional turfmen advised all their friends that Zev could not lose.

One layer of bets here, after taking in several thousands of dollars, laid off several hundreds of dollars of his bet although he himself had invested in In Memoriam's chances at 8 to 1 odds.

The expected short price on Zev caused most of the followers of races here to seek among the long shots a horse to beat the two choices. Rialto came in for some play but the tip on In Memoriam was strong enough to make the bookies hedge. Most of these took 6 to 8 to 1 for their own investments on In Memoriam, and had to pay off at the rate of over 10 to 1.

ZEV OPEN FOR RACE WITH EPINARD, SAYS HILDRETH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 3.—Sam Hildreth received a cable message from a French newspaper today, asking if he would race Zev against Epinard in France next spring.

Hildreth said: "Such a race is open to negotiation, but the United States is the place to run a race between the two. Then, too, under the rules over there American bred horses can race only over the jumps.

"When I was there I had to run Novelty, my futurity winner, in steeplechases."

PRINCETON RUNS OVER SWARTHMORE, 35 TO 0

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 3.—In a game featured with the broken-field running of Vangerbig, Beatti, Newby and Caulkins of Princeton, the Tiger eleven swamped Swarthmore, 35 to 0, at Palmer Memorial Stadium this afternoon.

The visiting array proved no match for the determined Princetonians who began scoring with Ken Smith's 25-yard field goal early in the first period and did not allow a period to pass without adding one or two touchdowns to their total.

CALIFORNIA U. HELD TO 0-0 SCORE BY NEVADA

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 3.—University of Nevada upset all prognostications today by holding the University of California to a scoreless tie in a non-conference football game here.

Because of delay in starting, the periods were shortened to 10 minutes each. The Nevadas kept the ball in California territory a fair half of the game but played mainly a safe, defensive game.

Grange Crosses Line For Only Touchdown In Third Quarter

Zuppke's Star Gains 48 Yards in Drive That Nets Score—60,000 Persons Witness Game.

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 3.—Illinois students and alumni paid a million and a half dollars to make possible their 7 to 0 victory over Chicago here today in the biggest homecoming the Illini have ever known. More than 60,000 jammed into the mammoth new memorial stadium, saw Harold Grange, Zuppke's phantom piledriver crash across the Chicago line in the third quarter for the only touchdown of the game.

In spite of the cold driving rain which drenched all spectators not seated under the upper decks of the stadium the game was a lively one for spectators and players alike.

Chicago made a good start in the first quarter and seemed to have found a vulnerable spot in the Illini line and carried the ball to Illinois' six-yard line before Zuppke's eleven rallied and took the ball on downs. From that point the game was fairly even with both teams opening momentary offenses which promised without delivering scores.

Grange Plays Star Game.

Harold Grange fulfilled the expectations of the alumni, many of whom came miles to see him, by intercepting a pass and tearing off a 42-yard run in the first quarter and adding a spectacular 30-yard run in the second quarter. The Chicago defense was unable to solve his twisting advances and he frequently shook off five men or more before being stopped.

He also pierced the line several times for good gains and it was his slicing drive at center that won the game for Illinois.

It was after the teams had battled to a scoreless tie in the first half with most of the play in the center of the field that Illinois opened a real drive for the goal. In the third period taking the ball on their own 37-yard line, Grange opened the drive with a 3-yard plunge at the line and McIlwain added five. Grange added five for first down and then wormed his way through the Chicago team for 23 yards around end and placed the ball on Chicago's 22-yard line. He added 15 on the next play around end and Illinois had 7 yards to go for a touchdown. After McIlwain had added two more, Grange took the ball straight through the center of the line for the only touchdown. Britton's placement was perfect for the extra point.

Chicago Attempts Passes.

Chicago cut loose with passes in an attempt to win in the final quarter but after three had grounded in succession Illinois took the ball and the game ended shortly afterward.

Owing to the slippery field most of the play was straight football, very few passes being attempted.

Miller Stars as Rockne's Eleven Defeats Purdue

Notre Dame Scores in Every Period, Gaining 34 to 7 Victory.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 3.—Don Miller, star Notre Dame back, continued his brilliant work today and was the stellar performer of the Notre Dame 34 to 7 victory over Purdue. Miller scored two touchdowns, made four runs better than 35 yards, gained 50 yards by completing forward passes, and another 30 yards on a run after a pass, but the play was called back. Miller was the individual star of the Notre Dame in its victories over Princeton, Georgia Tech, and Purdue.

Jimmy Crowley, running mate to Miller, ran flashily for shorter gains all day with Stuhldreher, was on the throwing end of Miller's passes. Layden pierced the Purdue line for 23 yards at one try and added other strong gain as well as averaging 48 yards on his punts. Maher scored a touchdown after a sharp run. Enright plunged through for the last score in the final quarter.

Crowe, Bach and Walsh started defensively for Notre Dame and Wellman and Claypool for Purdue. The Boilermaker offense was stopped except in the second quarter with a second string Notre Dame line in the game, when Gladders broke through the line for 33 yards and after an exchange of punts, Prout made a brilliant run of 65 yards and the only score.

Lineup and summary:

Notre Dame (34)	Position.	Purdue (7)

HARRY RATICAN RELEASED BY NEW YORK TEAM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Harry Ratican's career as center forward for the New York Giants was brief and inglorious. His performance in his one game against New York last Sunday so impressed Owner Buslik that he gave Ratican the air before another game came around. Ratican was fat and in poor shape last Sunday and played a miserable game, the Giants being beaten 10 to 0. Gillian succeeds Ratican as the pilot of the rush line.

OLD ST. LOUIS "GRADS" OF ILLINOIS GET LETTERS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 3.—Scattered about the spacious, uncompleted stands that surround the playing field, the St. Louis alumni of Illinois and Chicago and hundreds of Mound City rooters saw "Red" Grange lead Illinois to a 7 to 0 victory over their ancient rivals of Chicago.

The hundreds of St. Louisans, who arrived in Champaign by automobile or train, unprepared for the consistent rain that started early this morning and continued throughout the day, availed themselves of every protection, after the available supplies of raincoats, slickers and umbrellas had been exhausted. Huge rolls of oil cloth were brought out and cut into squares with a hole cut in the center. These were used as slip-overs.

At a mass meeting this morning in the gymnasium C. J. Moynihan delivered an address to varsity athletes of 1896 and years before. His talk was on the upbuilding effect of amateur athletics and on the character of the man of various institutions of this country. Following his address he presented the "Old Grads" with the letters they had failed to receive during their time at school.

All four of the St. Louisans, who were entitled to their letters were present. They were: W. H. Burke, Charles W. Cross, L. E. Fisher and Don G. Scott.

NAVY ELEVEN DEFEATS COLGATE TEAM, 9 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 3.—Displaying more sustained power of attack and a defense that stood up like a veritable stone wall after the enemy had advanced well within the crucial zone, the Annapolis Midshipmen beat down the strong Colgate football team on Farragut Field today by a score of 9 to 0. It was one of the bitterest as well as one of the most closely contested games ever witnessed in the Government reservation.

Two Safeties Enable Missouri To Defeat Kansas Aggies in Missouri Valley Game, 4 to 2

Tigers Gain 102 Yards to Losers' 23 in Contest Played on a Muddy Field — Bad Passes Enable Victors to Count All of Their Points.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 3.—Playing in mud ankle deep, Missouri University and the Kansas Aggies settled the annual football dispute in favor of the visiting eleven before a home-coming crowd of 8000 persons here this afternoon. All the scoring was from safeties, Missouri counting four points to the Aggies' 2.

Line plays and punting were the only offensive weapons effectively brought into play, and the team that won the game had slightly the better in both departments. It was a game without outstanding stars, although the line smashing of Bond for Missouri and Stark and Mildrexer for the Aggies and the kicking of Faurot for the Tigers contributed generously to yards gained.

Missouri scored in the third and fourth quarters. The Tigers took the kickoff at the start of the second half and worked the ball into Aggie territory on off-tackle smashes. On an exchange of punts the Aggies lost heavily. It was the Aggies' ball on their 8-yard line. Mildrexter dropped back to kick from behind his own goal line, and when the ball was passed high he failed to catch it, falling on it for a safety.

Bad Pass Gives Safety.

The second Missouri safety resulted from a bad pass by the Aggie center. Faurot had kicked to the Aggie 10-yard line. Webber dropped back to kick out of danger. This time the ball was passed low and Webber was obliged to attempt to run with it, being downed by Missouri players behind his own goal.

An Aggie offensive in the fourth period carried the ball into Missouri territory. Webber kicked from near the center of the field and a Missouri lineman touched it in an attempt to block. The ball carried to the Missouri 35-yard line where an Aggie player recovered. A pass, Stark to Webber, netted first down. Bond intercepted a pass, but on the next play Missouri was off-side and took a penalty which put them on their own 8-yard line. Faurot, standing behind his own goal line, received the ball and allowed Aggie tacklers to down him for a safety.

The summary shows slight superiority to the victor in yards gained and kicking. Statistics on the game follow:

First downs earned—Missouri 5, Aggies 5.

Offensive plays—Including forward passes—Missouri 48, Aggies 41.

Total net gain of offensive—Missouri 102 yards, Aggies 23 yards.

Forward passes successful—Missouri 0, Aggies 3.

Yards gained by forward passes—Missouri 0, Aggies 24.

Number of punts—Missouri 15, Aggies 21.

Penalties—Missouri 4 times for 50 yards, Aggies two times for 20 yards.

Field goals tried—Missouri 1, Aggies 0.

Fumbles—Missouri 3, Aggies 4.

from the 45-yard line for Oklahoma's only score. The ball had been carried to the Kansas 10-yard line three times before Bowles succeeded in kicking. Each time it seemed that the Oklahomans were bound for a touchdown, but the Hawkers dug their toes in the mud and could not be moved.

Kansas came back strongly in the third quarter and fought Oklahoma to a standstill. With the ball on the 50-yard line, Smith smashed the Sooner line for 17 yards and after two more plays, Black, Kansas captain, went around right end for 26 yards and the winning touchdown.

The final period was evenly fought with the ball most of the time near the center of the field.

The game was played before a large home coming crowd that braved a light rain.

CLEVELAND AND SOLDAN ELEVENS WINNERS OF HIGH SCHOOL GAMES

ward pass was rendered unsafe for Yeatman because of the fact that the oval was in close proximity to their own line, from shortly after the first kickoff, when Cleveland carried the ball a total of 65 yards to the shadow of the Yeatman goal by line plunging, only to be held on the 10-yard mark.

Fumbles Mar Game.

The second game was a vastly superior exhibition, at least as far as the 2500 spectators were concerned. The Soldan players appeared to be good mudhorses and on several occasions cut loose with some open field running. The game was marred, however, by innumerable fumbles of passes from the quarterbacks to the backfield runners and some dropping of forward passes which under ordinary conditions would have been sure catches.

McKinley fumbled on its own 20-yard line right at the outset. Then Soldan failed to score when the slippery ball slid through the arms of the receiving player who was standing on the McKinley goal line. McKinley booted the ball out of danger and succeeded in repulsing the Soldan attempt to score, although the West Enders advanced the ball to the Crimson five-yard mark just as the quarter ended. Soldan scored on three line plays after the start of the next period. The mud held both elevens from further scoring during the second quarter but Soldan added another touchdown in the third frame when the three Union Avenue backs, Rawdon, Link and O'Hanlon, ripped the McKinley line wide open following a 25-yard return of the kickoff by Craig.

In the final quarter both teams opened up a forward passing game. Passes were being hurled in all directions and styles, some with a two-arm shove, some in shotputting style and some very few in the orthodox manner. But few of them were completed. One pass by Soldan resulted indirectly in the third Soldan touchdown, when McKinley intercepted the toss of its own five-yard line but failed to clear its opponents with an attempted punt on the next play. Ashby, a tall substitute, fell on the blocked kick for the score and then completed a forward pass for the extra point.

Drake Batters Ames, 21-0.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 3.—Brilliant end runs by Capt. Bill Boelter and faultless passing and kicking of Orebaugh today won a 21-to-0 victory over Iowa State College of Ames, for Drake University. Although the Aggies threatened several times, Drake turned them back and had little trouble penetrating the visitors' line, except in the final period.

Drake scored a touchdown and point by a kick in the first, second and third periods, Boelter carrying the ball twice and McLuen once. The famous Drake captain, however, was largely responsible for the marker scored by McLuen, his rushes down the field being rarely interfered with, so well was the way opened for him.

All three of the Drake scores followed threats by Ames. The Aggies each time worked the oval well into Drake territory only to have passes intercepted and the tide turned against them.

The lineup and summary:

Drake (21).	Position.	Ames (0).
Krueger	Right tackle	Watts

Kansas Vanquishes Sooners.

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 3.—Overcoming a 3-point lead in the second period, the Kansas Jayhawk today turned mudhen and wallowed its way to a 7 to 3 victory over the Oklahoma Sooners in a Missouri Valley Conference game here.

Opening with a smashing attack, the Oklahomans drove the invaders to the Kansas 8-yard line where the defense held. Hammert, Oklahoma captain, led the offensive with consistent gains.

The Sooner assault continued in the second period and Bowles, substituting for Wilcox at right guard, overcame the mud handicap and booted the ball through the uprights

OHIO STATE WINS FROM DENISON ELEVEN 42 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 3.—A revamped Ohio State football team today defeated Denison, an Ohio Conference school, 42 to 0. With "Hoge" Workman, star halfback, switched to quarterback, the Buckeye offensive worked consistently and they scored in each quarter.

PENNSYLVANIA BEATS PITTSBURG, 6-0; FIRST TIME IN NINE SEASONS

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—An infuriated Pitt Panther fought desperately on Franklin Field today but could not surmount the one obstruction touchdown that the University of Pennsylvania football team had thrust into its path, the final score being, Pennsylvania 6, Pittsburg 0.

A smashing, battering attack with McGraw, Thomas and Hammer, Pennsylvania backs, furnishing the driving power, in the second period took the ball from the 35-yard line over the goal. McGraw in a lunge off tackle carried it over.

It was Pittsburg's first defeat in nine years by Pennsylvania, the latter having lost seven straight engagements and tied one.

Pennsylvania played alert football today, despite some fumbles. On the other hand, the visiting players, appearing here for the last time under the tutelage of Coach Glenn Warner, flashed brilliant football at times only to discount it at critical periods by unfortunate fumbles.

JOE STECHER, FORMER WRESTLING CHAMPION, SHOWS HERE TOMORROW

Former World Champion Joe Stecher will be the chief attraction in a wrestling program at the Odeon tomorrow night. His opponent, Ivan Mikiloff, is not rated with Champion Lewis, Zbyszko, Londos or Caddock, but he is in the top strata of the second raters.

Stecher is engaging in frequent bouts in the hope that he will get a match with Champion Lewis, whom he has defeated in four out of six matches.

Other matches on tomorrow night's card include Bill Demetral vs. Carl Schulz, heavyweights, and one other bout.

Utah Scores 16 Touchdowns.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 3.—Sixteen times did Utah University crush through the weak defense of the College of Idaho for touchdowns this afternoon and run up a score of 105 points, thought to be a record for college football this year. The College of Idaho scored but three points, the first counters of the game, early in the first period.

Trainer DeForest States He Never Finished Developing Firpo's Left

"Maker of Champions" Gives Views on Training

Boxers Who Try to Copy Style of Some Old Ring Hero Are Discouraged—Harmful to Teach Knockout Artist Cleverness.

No. 7 DE FOREST SERIES.

By Jimmy de Forest.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

I think I will break in on my narrative of ring experiences right here in order to answer a question which has been addressed to me thousands of times by letter and word of mouth. This question is:

"Just how do you go about training a fighter—what do you do?"

Of course, that is a pretty big question and can't be answered offhand and generally, for each fighter presents his own problem of training. No two men are exactly alike in body any more than they are facially. Each has his special weakness to overcome as well as the qualities of brawn and agility that may make him an aspirant for ring honors. However, these are cardinal principles of training that I can readily describe.

Frequently when I take a man in hand he has some ring hero of his own in mind whose style he wants to copy. I discourage him immediately. No man can successfully adopt completely another man's methods and points of handling himself. And I point out to my pupil that what has made his hero successful is the fact that he has a style all of his own, and that the pupil should develop the same himself along the lines which his physical qualities dictate.

The first thing I do with him is to put on the gloves with him. A round or two tells me how much he may have learned of the game and whether he is an instinctive boxer—how quick are his hands, eyes and feet. The next is to find out how good he is on the receiving end of the game—how much punishment he can take. For on this much depends as to his future training.

Nothing Fancy for Firpo.

If he is a rugged boy to whom a few hard punches are not serious, I concentrate on teaching him attack. It is not only a waste of time, but decidedly harmful to attempt to teach a big, strong fellow who packs good, hard swings and hooks with the K. O. in them, cleverness. It's not his game. All such a line of instruction would do would be to lessen the force of his punches and teach him a caution he is much better without.

Take Firpo, for instance. The idea which seemed to be current that I was trying to burden him with a knowledge of the fancy tricks of the game has given me many a smile. If I had got hold of him when he was a kid I certainly could have worked up his speed and given him a defense ample to protect his most vital spots. But he had come too far along in life to attempt any radical change of his style. His value to himself was his hitting power. The training I gave him was all that way. It was to show him how to shorten his blows from wide to close swings and hooks and get him to push out straight blows with his left.

Shortening the distance a punch travels increases its force and power. And then, banking on his height, I taught him what became his most damaging blow. The critics called it the "rabbit" punch, but it was not. He is taller than almost any man he might be called on to face, so the punch I developed for him was a swinging chop to be aimed to come down right back of his opponent's ear. That blow strikes on the occipital bone and has the same paralyzing effect as the commoner knockout blow which lands on the point of the chin, except that it does not produce unconsciousness.

He was so wholly dependent on his right arm that he gave his left no part in his game at all. He didn't even keep it up, and it was next to impossible to get him to guard properly. He complained that his left arm tired quickly when he tried to hold it up and in use.

LUIS ANGEL FIRPO.

But I soon caused that trouble to disappear by the simple process of making him hold the left up for a guard with a light weight clamped on his wrist or held in his hand, and increasing the weight gradually, until finally when the hand and arm were relieved of the weight, the arm went into proper play unconsciously and without any weariness coming into it. However, I never had a chance to finish the development of Firpo's left.

Main Features in Training.

The main fetures of my training, speaking in a general way, are the wheel, the wrist pole, the wands, the treadmill, dumbbells, road running, stomach exercises, shoulder and forearm developing, the light and heavy bags in conjunction with an elaborate method of rigid breathing exercises originated by myself, and the use of scientific massage.

The wheel is just like that used on a ship for steering, only instead of turning a rudder you are winding up a heavy weight. It is not only invaluable for developing shoulder and arm muscles but also the clasping of spokes teaches a man how properly to close his hands when he is fighting.

The wrist pole is one of the best assets of my gym, for no man can become a stiff, hard puncher whose wrist muscles are not hardened to the fiber of steel. In my training of Dempsey I made him use the wheel two and three times a day, and I guess Jack will tell you himself how considerably it increased the force of his blows.

The wrist pole is vertical and of hard, polished wood. It looks like a telescope drawn out. That is to say, it has three circumferences. The hand clasps around the first rung entirely, two-thirds around the next and only half way around the upper section. You grasp the pole and turn it, winding as you do a weight on a rope upward from the floor. The exercise brings into play the muscles of the fingers, wrists and entire forearms. Wrists so developed can support all the force that the shoulders can throw into a blow and the peril of broken bones and torn tendons of the forearm, which have ruined many boxing careers, is practically eliminated.

Treadmill for the Legs.

The wands are two light poles with knobs for handles on each end. The poles are about three and a half feet long. Boxer and trainer stand facing each other with the poles between them, the hands held straight down at the sides. Then they push the poles back and forth at each other, one arm pushing forward as the other resists the push with the other pole from the man opposite. It is a more vigorous exercise than reading of it may perhaps make it appear. It is not only excellent for the shoulder muscles, but is good in steeling the muscles of stomach and thighs.

Every one knows what a treadmill is, and equally it must be plain that its use is for leg development. The light bag has only one use, and that is to train the quickness of the eye. The first light bags used were pig bladders blown up. Then came the English leather bags with the pig bladder inside. In so far as I know, I was the first man to think of making the heavy bag more resilient and less liable to injure a fighter's hands. The first heavy bags were constructed of canvas and sand. They were dead weights and fighters often came by wrist and hand injuries when using them. Then sawdust was used for a filler, but when I constructed a leather bag with a packed compound of my own for the interior I found myself in possession of the ideal thing on which to allow a man to expend his punches with all the force he could put into them.

The funny men of the newspapers have had lots of quips from time to time kidding about the use of shadow boxing, which is the exercise of fighting a fancied opponent. But to fighters of the imagination and intelligence of McCoy and Corbett the stunt is tremendously valuable in increasing speed and accuracy. Every fighter derives more or less advantage from it, but the boxer who can really imagine a foe in front of him while he is at it gets the most out of it. Properly performed, it isn't "looking-glass" fighting by any means.

Strong Abdomen Essential.

The English are pretty wise in training fighters and have been at it for centuries, but one phase of training which they lack is that of the stomach muscles. Whenever I send one of my boys, or men, against an English fighter it is always with instructions to play for the stomach. They are usually found to be soft and tender in the midriff.

I would send no man into the ring unless I had developed a good "washboard" of muscular resistance on his stomach or abdomen. There are numerous exercises to accomplish it, the principal one being lying on the back and lifting the legs rigidly until they are vertically in the air.

In training Kid McCoy I developed an exercise for broadening the chest, increasing the shoulder muscles and at the same time developing the strength of the forearms, which went far to making him champion of his weight of the world.

This exercise consisted in having him stretch on his back with his arms flat at his sides and then to lift his body in the air without changing posture and without removing his heels from the mat. It is a strenuous performance, but the Kid took the dose gamely for months; but that did not surprise me any, because he never was anything else than game.

Cornell Crushes Dartmouth Team By 32-7 Score

Dobie's Machine Proves Too Strong for Conqueror of Harvard Eleven.

By the Associated Press.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 3.—Four times the great Cornell football machine rolled down the field today with its crushing tackle attack and each time carried the ball across the Dartmouth goal line, and at the end of the game the Dartmouth team, conqueror of Harvard, was routed and beaten 32 to 7. For Cornell it was the twenty-first consecutive victory. For Dartmouth it was a taste of the same bitter "Dedication medicine" that the big Green administered to Harvard, to the University of Washington, and again to the University of Vermont when their athletic fields and stands were inaugurated.

Conclusive as the victory was, it was not Cornell's offensive power alone that counted in the final result, for the first two touchdowns followed Dartmouth fumbles, both just inside the 25-yard line. A third fumble, inside the 20-yard line, figured in the last goal from field. Yet, in each case, Cornell, in possession of the ball in Green territory, proved irresistible.

Combining aerial assaults with its amazing battering-ram smashes through tackle and four bullet-like runs by Capt. Pfann, Cornell clearly established its margin of supremacy and earned is victory. Repeatedly the Green line sagged and broke before the off-tackle hammering of the Red offense, while Dartmouth was seldom able to gain consistently against Cornell.

The lineup and summary:

Cornell (32).	Position.	Dartmouth (7).
Affeld	Center	Ellis
Beran	Right guard	Aschenbach
Sundstrom	Right tackle	Hatch
Kneen	Right end	Hagenblack
Pfann	Quarterback	Dooley
Patterson	Left half	Kelley
Ramsey	Right half	Haws
Cassidy	Fullback	Leavitt

Southwestern U. Wins.

By the Associated Press.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 3.—Bad breaks, fumbles and the great playing of Cagle for Southwestern University, defeated Springhill College in their annual football clash this afternoon on Maxon Field, 40-7. Cagle and E. McEvoy, Perron and Browne were the outstanding men in the game. Cagle's work stood out with two 50-yard runs to his credit.

Simplify Your Swing—Forget Wrists, Sarazen Urges Golfers

"Pronating the Wrists Is Worst Bunk I Know of," Writes American Professional Champion—Short Swing Reduces Chances of Error.

By Gene Sarazen.

American Professional Golf Champion.

(Copyright, 1923.)

Some people, whom I know, make the game of golf as hard for themselves as they possibly can. They are constantly trying out new ideas, changing their grip, their clubs, and their entire swing practically everytime they play.

I have often seen a golfer stand over a shot several minutes waggling the club and pronating the wrists, as it were. Pronating the wrists is the worst bunk I know of. My advice to all who are so inclined is to forget the wrists and hit the ball. If you swing the club properly the wrists will take care of themselves.

When I began to develop my game I watched all of the great players closely. From each one I learned something. And every time I saw a golfer like Hagen, or Jones, or Ouimet play I was able afterward to discard something from my own swing. I first started by shortening the stroke. I realized at an early age that there is less chance for error in a half or three-quarter swing than in a full swing which wraps the club around the back of your neck. And so I kept cutting until now I have stripped down my swing, so to speak, as closely as possible, eradicating all such extra motion as pronating the wrists.

Sweetser's Easy Style.

Consider the styles of some of our leading players. Jess Sweetser, for instance, gets wonderful results from a very simple swing. He takes the club back directly and uses only a three-quarter stroke. You never see him waggling the club, shuffling his feet or changing his stance. He simply brings the club back with scarcely a turn of the wrist and with a very straight left arm. Yet few can outdrive him and none is straighter from the tee or through the fairway.

Bobby Jones wastes no time in hitting the ball. He simply steps up and swings the club. So do most of the other good players. In hitting your shots in this manner you are less apt to miss than when you take time to waggle the club over the ball and to shift your feet. These things are distracting and prevent your concentrating on the shot.

Forget About Wrists.

But to return to this business of pronating the wrists. Some instructors, in order to make their game more imposing and confusing, it seems to me, introduced the idea of pronating the wrists when that simple procedure can be accomplished just as well by turning the left hand well over, also the right, in gripping the club.

There is no doubt that more power can be got into the stroke if the wrist or palm is held down. In other words, the forearms ought to feel the strain of the shot and in order to do their best work should be in such a position as to render power to the blow.

But my contention is that there need be no thought about the work of the wrists if the left hand is turned well over on the grip so that the four knuckles of the hand are in full view. This position of the hand also aids in keeping the left arm straight throughout the swing and greatly simplifies the swing. What is more, if the hands are held on top of the club the wrists will take care of themselves.

Take the club straight back but see to it, if you can, that the left wrist is held down and underneath the right when the hands are at the top of the swing. Before starting the swing through, forget about the wrists. Again I repeat, that if the left hand is turned over so that the left arm is practically in straight line with the club you will have no need to worry about the wrists and that you can then think only of hitting the ball.

Michigan Wins From Iowa, 9-3, Kipke Starring olverine Machine Hard Pressed to Win—Fumble Leads to Score.

RTHWSTERN BEATEN

nnesota Overwhelms Purple Warriors, Piling Up 34 Points.

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Nov. 3.—Michigan's football team scored enough points in the first quarter today to beat Iowa, 9 to 3, remaining in the Western Conference title scramble after a afternoon of the most exciting football seen on Iowa Field this season.

The Wolverines scored early in the opening period when one of Capt. Wallace's drop kicks fell short and the ball grazed an Iowa back's uniform as it bounded over the goal line, a free ball, Blott, Michigan center, was there to fall on and Michigan had scored a touchdown before the crowd realized what had happened. Blott missed the try for point after the touchdown, but Wallace came through with a successful drop kick from Iowa's 40-yard line a few minutes later after Gantz had made a fair catch of Fisher's punt.

Iowa retaliated in the second period when Fisher drop-kicked a goal from a few feet behind Michigan's 10-yard line. There the scoring stopped, and it became a question of Iowa's ability to break through the Wolverine defense or get a critical touchdown, which would decide the game.

Several times in the last half it looked as if Iowa was off to a touchdown. Once, after some brilliant running by Scantlebury and a long pass from Scantlebury to Hanson, Iowa's chances looked good. Michigan intercepted a pass and ended the rally. Another time a fumble a Michigan punt and Iowa recovered, stopping a Wolverine attack.

The lineup:

Minnesota Wins Easily.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 3.—Led by Captain Martineau and Malcolm Graham, Minnesota's powerful football machine trampled Northwestern underfoot today in a game of many thrills at Northrop field. The 34 well earned points to Purple's 14

Northwestern scored its initial touchdown on the first play of the game before the 18,000 fans had time to settle comfortably in their seats when Capt. McElwain heaved a long pass on his 20-yard line which was blocked by Graham. Minnesota's safety back, Minnesota's ground. Herman, Purple right end, had nabbed it and raced 55 yards for a touchdown.

The break transformed the Minnesota warriors and within three minutes after receiving the second kickoff, scoreless than a half dozen plays. Gophers had tied the count and then on were unstoppable.

OMAHA, Nov. 3.—Superior line play and team work by the Haskell Indians football team of Lawrence, Kas., enabled them to defeat Creighton University eleven of Omaha here today by a score of 26 to 0. The Indian team depended on line plunges for most of their gains, but were frequent. Haskell tried three forward passes and two of them were successful. Creighton threatened to score.

European Cue Title Winner.

EDOUARD HOREMANS.

Horemans' improved work in the current balkline title event has been one of its surprises. By defeating Hagenlacher and Conti of Germany and France, respectively, he clinched the European championship. He has won two and lost two games and meet Cochran tomorrow.

St. Leos Oppose Trumbulls Today

Municipal Soccer Teams Battle for Third Time in U. S. F. A. Cup Game.

The St. Leo and Trumbull teams will meet for the third time today at Fairground No. 2 in an effort to reach a decision in their first round National Challenge Cup competition game. The elevens have played four hours without deciding the issue.

Both teams will show slightly changed lineups for the third game. The Trumbulls will have Le Baume in goal, and Bus Conners will show at center forward in place of Steve Creamer, who twisted his knee last week. The Leos will have Jerry Kavanaugh at right fullback. In last Sunday's game McSkimming suffered a hip injury.

The game will be played as the second part of a double-header with the Ben Miller and Stag teams playing at 1 o'clock. The cup game will start at 2:30 p. m. Both games will be counted as regularly scheduled games of the Municipal Soccer League.

The lineups:

Scott at Fullback For Vesper Team

Suspension of Fitzgerald Forces Change in Lineup for Today.

The Vesper Buicks, crippled by the absence of "Eggy" Fitzgerald who is under suspension, will meet a Tartar in the Ben Millers in the first game of the St. Louis Soccer League double-header at High School Field this afternoon. The opening game will start at 2 o'clock and thirty-five minute halves will prevail.

The Millers will be strengthened by the addition of Al McHenry and Pilly Quinn, both of whom were absent last Sunday. Hap Marre and Johnny Redden may also play.

Scott, a half back, will play at fullback in the place of Fitzgerald. Foley's Hoovers will have Jerry O'Shea back in the forward line.

League officials announce that the system of numbering players will be in force. Free souvenirs containing lineups and numbers will be distributed.

LAFAYETTE AND W.-J. PLAY TO 6 TO 6 TIE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Two well matched Pennsylvania college elevens, Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson, battled to a six to six tie at the Polo Grounds today before a crowd of 30,000. Each team crossed the goal line on a forward pass and each team failed in the attempt to kick the goal.

The game was strikingly similar to last year's contest between these colleges on the same gridiron, except that then the Presidents won by a single point after a touchdown, 14 to 13.

Lafayette had somewhat the better of the argument today. Twice the Easternians were within a few yards of the goal line, but on each occasion the Presidents presented a magnificent defense and the long, hard marches up the field went for naught. Washington and Jefferson never seriously threatened Lafayette after scoring its touchdown.

Yale Comes From Behind to Whip Army Team, 31-10

Cadets Lead at End of First Half — 77,000 Persons View Game.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 3.—Sweeping to gridiron glory it has not known in recent years, Yale crushed the Army, 31 to 10, today and stamped itself as one of the greatest elevens the East has turned out this year. A colorful throng of 77,000 witnessed the smashing triumph.

A bewildering, irresistible attack in the second half swept the rugged Cadets off their feet. West Point left the field at the end of the first half with a margin of 10 to 7, chiefly by virtue of a sensational 60-yard run for a touchdown by Quarterback Smythe, after the rival teams had battled on close to even terms.

But the Soldiers came back unprepared for the rush of the Blue horde, a dashing onslaught that carried all before it for the rest of the game.

Two touchdowns were rushed over by Yale in the third quarter, one on a spectacular 17-yard dash by Neidlinger, an outstanding star of the game, and the other on a forward pass, Neale to Luman. Doggedly courageously, the Cadets tried to rally, but they found themselves up against a stone wall defense and a driving attack that they could not stem.

One more touchdown, the result of a brilliant 26-yard run by Richeson after he intercepted a forward pass, and a dropkick by Mallory in the last quarter completed the Cadet disaster.

Yale Outrushes Foe

If any further evidence of Yale's overwhelming superiority throughout the last half was needed, the figures supply it. For in the final two periods, the Blue's forces gained a total of 155 yards by rushing, while the Army was able to advance but seven on straight plays.

Yale made eleven first downs to but three for the Cadets, whose only effective show of offense came by the aerial route in the closing moments of the game the final whistle ending West Point's last desperate rally.

Throughout the second half Yale outplayed and outgeneraled the Army in every department and followers of the Blue tonight pointing to the fact that it had downed the Cadets by a far more decisive margin than did the great Notre Dame eleven, hailed Tad Jones' combination as a leading championship contender.

Standing out against the background of Army defeat were Smythe's great run for touchdown in the second quarter and the defensive work of Gilmore and Garbisch, who also accounted for the remaining four cadet points with his toe. Smythe made his successful dash after receiving one of Neale's punts on his own 34-yard line and with the aid of fine interference. Sprinting first down the side line, then reversing his field, as his pace setters cut down would-be Eli tacklers, Smythe twisted and side-stepped his way across the goal line.

The lineup:

Yale (31).	Positions.	Army (10).
Ingham	Left end	Baxter
Lovejoy	Center	Garbish
Eckart	Right guard	Farwick
Blair	Right tackle	Mulligan (C.)
Luman	Right end	Doyle
Richeson	Quarterback	Smythe
Pond	Right halfback	Gilmore
Mallory (C.)	Fullback	Wood

Score by periods:

Yale	0	7	14	10	—31
Army	3	7	0	0	—10

Yale scoring: Touchdowns—Blair, Luman, Neidlinger (sub. for Neale), Richeson. Points from try after touchdown—Pond, 2; Stevens (sub. for Pond), 2; goals from field—Drop kick by Mallory.
Army scoring: Touchdown—Smythe; point from try after touchdown—Garbisch; goals from field—Drop kick, by Garbisch. Referee—Crowell, Swarthmore. Umpire—Thorpe, Columbia. Head linesman—Henage, Dartmouth. Field judge—Tyler, Princeton. Time of periods—10m each.

HARVARD ELEVEN WINS FROM TUFTS TEAM, 16-0

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 3.—Two touchdowns, one with kicked goal, and a goal from the field from placement by McGlone, gave Harvard a 16 to 0 victory over the Tufts eleven in the Harvard Stadium today. Harvard's line was stronger than in previous games and her backs made two

Cochran Wins From Schaefer, 500-54, Setting High Average Of 62 4-8 for 18.2 Tourney

Los Angeles Star Now Tied for First Place—Horemans Defeats Hagenlacher, While Hoppe Is Victor in Match With Roger Conti.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Welker Cochran, of Los Angeles, upset the "dope" in the international 18.2 balkline tournament at the Hotel Pennsylvania here tonight, when he defeated Jake Schaefer, of Chicago, 10 to 54, in 8 innings. As a result of the victory, Cochran is now tied with Willie Hoppe and Schaefer for first place with three victories and one defeat.

In the other matches today, Edouard Horemans, the Belgian, won from Erich Hagenlacher, the German champion, 500 to 201, in 16 innings, while Hoppe handed Roger Conti, the French title holder, his fifth successive reverse, 500 to 361, in 17 innings.

Cochran, who now has the honor of having defeated both Hoppe and Schaefer, established a new high average record of 62 4-8 for the tournament. The previous mark was 41 8-12 set by Schaefer in his match with Hagenlacher last night.

Cochran Plays Brilliantly.

The defeat handed Schaefer was one of the worst ever suffered by a title contender. In the Chicago tournament two years ago, when Schaefer dethroned Willie Hoppe, the young Chicago star won from Hoppe, 500 to 26, in the final match of the tourney.

Cochran played better billiards in his match tonight than he did Wednesday when he won from Hoppe. In only one inning, the third, did he fail to score. He started with 12, came back with 87 and then missed. After counting two in the fourth, he scored 124 and followed this with 141—his high run of the game. He then counted 52 and went out in the eighth inning with an unfinished 2.

The match was played in the shortest time on record for 500 points, 1 hour and 50 minutes.

The score:

COCHRAN 12 87 0 2 124 141 52 82 Total, 500.
Average, 62 4-8; high run, 141.
SCHAEFER 16 1 0 16 21 0 0. Total, 54.
Average, 7 5-7; high run, 21.
Referee—Albert G. Cutler.

Hoppe Defeats Conti.

Hoppe added another victory to his record when he outplayed Conti by the tally of 500 points to 361. It was the fifth consecutive defeat for the player from overseas, who finished third to Hoppe and Schaefer a year ago. The match completed his series.

Hoppe treated the spectators to one of his most pleasing feasts of open table billiards. His best runs were 135, 103 and 98 and his average was 29 7-17. Conti's top runs were 97 66 and 55. His average was 22 9-16.

In the other game Horemans easily defeated Hagenlacher, 500 points to 201. The winners average was 31 4-16. He had a high run of 130. Hagenlacher, suffering from illness completed his part in the tournament with two victories and three defeats. He is certain to finish in the prize money.

The scores:

HOPPE—1, 54, 8, 0, 7, 0, 3, 103 35, 26, 98, 7, 1, 6, 4, 11, 38. Total 00 points; average 29 7-17; high uns 135, 103 and 98.

CONTI—1, 55, 3, 5, 2, 97, 6, 13, 11, 29, 19, 1, 66, 0, 0, 33. Total 361 points; average 22 9-16; high runs 97 66 and 55.

Referee—Albert G. Cutler.

HOREMANS—3, 0, 1, 16, 27, 41 5, 57, 42, 117, 2, 130, 7, 2, 0, 20 Total 500 points; average 31 4-16; high runs 130, 117 and 57.

Referee—Albert G. Cutler.

In the final games of the tournament, Monday, Cochran will play Horemans, while Schaefer plays Hoppe.

Murice Brocco of Italy and Willie Coburn of Kearney, N. J., were second and Percy Lawrence of San Francisco and John Kopsky of Bohemia were third.

Syracuse Defeats Penn State, 10 to 0

Nittany Lions Suffer First Setback of Current Season—McBride Leads Orange Attack.

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, Nov. 3.—Syracuse, unleashing a mighty offensive and displaying an impregnable defense, kept for decisive victory against Penn State, hitherto undefeated on the gridiron this season, here this afternoon. The score was 10 to 0. All of Syracuse's points were credited to MacBride, Orange fullback.

Starting its irresistible drive immediately after the opening kick-off Syracuse ploughed through Penn State's line and skirted the Nittany wings for four consecutive first downs, MacBride carrying the ball over on a jab at the visitors' line. He added the point after touchdown.

A Penn State fumble captured by Capt. MacRae of the Orange team on the Nittany 15-yard line, gave Syracuse its second chance to strike, in the second period. After the Orange eleven had made one first down, Penn State held firmly, and MacBride was called upon to attempt a placement goal. His kick was good and marked his fourth successful field goal of the season.

SEWANEE ROMPS OVER CHATTANOOGA, 26 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 3.—Sewanee's hard charging line, gave its backs a tremendous advantage over the University of Chattanooga today and Sewanee won an easy victory, 26-0.

The first Sewanee touchdown was made by a steady march from the opening kick-off through the Chattanooga line without losing the ball. The second on an 80-yard run by Harris, the third on a blocked kick by Miller, the fourth on a blocked kick by Kent, followed by a few rushes.

Miller, Millard and Kent shone in the play of the Sewanee forwards, and H. Powers in the open field. The game was played in a driving rain.

Card Officials To Go East to Discuss Trades

Rickey and Breadon to Confer With McGraw and Braves' Owners, Is Report.

By Joseph F. Holland.

Whether Rogers Hornsby is to be traded to the New York Giants probably will be decided within the next week, although it may not be announced until the National League meeting in Chicago, Dec. 12. Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon are departing for the East tomorrow and conferences with John McGraw and the owners of the Boston Braves are expected to consume most of that time.

The trade of Hornsby, if it is decided upon, will be the biggest baseball maneuver since Babe Ruth went to New York. The rise of the Yanks to popular favor, depended largely upon the work of Ruth, as caused McGraw to redouble his efforts to obtain a rival of consequence for the Yankee star. Hornsby is that man.

However, that is not the only deal considered by the National owners. They are reported to be seeking Capt. Billy Southworth, outfield star, and Catcher "Mickey" O'Neil of the Boston Braves. It is said that Jack Smith, George Topporcer and Jeff Pfeffer are to go to Boston if this deal is complete. It is rumored in some quarters that the third baseman of the two clubs—Milton Stock and Tony Boeckel—are to be included.

While the reported Hornsby deal is absorbing the attention of the public, there is considerable activity in the American League as a result of Urban Shocker's differences with the Browns. It is rumored that five clubs have made offers for him.

Shocker is one of the best pitchers in the American League and it would be difficult to get a fair exchange for him. Sisler is a great admirer of Shocker and would hardly consent to a deal. However, that does not alter the fact that the Browns have spent some time declining to consider propositions from the various other clubs.

PAPYRUS REPORTED SOLD TO ENGLISH TURFMAN

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Papyrus winner of the English Derby and recently defeated by Zev at Belmont Park, has been sold by his owner Ben Irish according to the Morning Post. Irish, the paper added, declines to divulge the price or the buyer for the present, but says he is satisfied and that the horse will not leave England but will remain in the hands of his present trainer, Hasi Jarvis.

One Man's Brain Has Produced $15,000,000,000

It is estimated that the inventions of Thomas A. Edison have been worth over fifteen billion to the world.

Nothing but lack of good health can prevent you winning a large measure of success in any line of work you choose, provided you concentrate your mind and energies on some worthy objective.

Ill health, however, has caused the failure of thousands and very often they have been the authors of their own misfortune.

When you suffer from eyestrain headaches, for instance you know you should have your eyes tested and get proper Glasses for relief, and yet you delay from day to day until some serious trouble arises.

Dr. F. J. Guilbault

Don't let defective vision handicap your efforts one day longer. Have me test your eyes and furnish you with Glasses that will enable you to read and work in ease and comfort.

Because of my uniformly satisfactory services and extremely moderate charges, over 30,000 persons have bought their Glasses from me during the past twenty years—a record in which I take just pride.

Are You Willing to Bet on Yourself?

How do you stack up in the race of life?

You got an equal start with the other fellow; where are you at the quarter, the second quarter, etc?

Have you that old confidence that makes winners; are you sure of yourself; or do you have to wear "blinders" to keep your mind on the race?

Are you willing to wager a little bet on yourself that you'll finish "in the money?"

Once you've really started to put money in a Commerce savings account, you're betting on yourself to finish strong.

It makes a lot of difference—try it.

Beau Butler Easy Victor in $40,000 Pimlico Feature

E. R. Bradley's Colt Captures Annual Classic by Three Lengths From Rustic.

FLUVANNA ACTS BADLY

Second Place Horse in Belmont Futurity Causes Delay in Parade and at Post.

By G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 3.—Running with "fire on his feet," as the stable boys say, Beau Butler came winging home in front of E. R. Bradley in the third running of the Pimlico Futurity at the Maryland Jockey Club's track here this afternoon.

The Eagle Bird screamed as the son of Black Toney-Santa Anna II brought the green and white silks of the owner of Idle Hour Stable Farm first past the winning post three lengths in front of Rustic, the favorite, carrying the "all scarlet" of A. H. Morris and the hopes of the Marylanders.

Aga Khan, from the Belair Stud, was third, five lengths back and a length in front of H. P. Whitney's Transmute. The other 13 starters were strung out in a cloud of dust down to the turn, for the Futurity, as is the custom with all mile races, started at the sixteenth pole.

The time for the mile, 1:39 4-5, was the fastest for the fixture. The race, which had an added value of $40,000, was worth $54,030 to the winner.

Sixteen of the 20 colts and fillies named overnight paraded for the Futurity, Beaunash, Rinkey, Fredericktown and Elvina having been withdrawn.

Fluvanna a Bad Actor.

The Salubria Stable's Fluvanna, which finished second to St. James in the Futurity at Belmont Park, was on her bad behavior and broke up the parade to the post. In fact, she wheeled and bucked in front of the judge's stand until one of the assistants went down to her. During the four-minute delay at the post, on which the tapes were broken three times, she continued her bad manners.

Finally, Jim Milton pulled the string and set the bucking, plunging horses away to the roar of the crowd. Sunspero with Albert Johnson up, was first to break the line passing the stand, but Lord Baltimore II went to the front at the club house turn and made the running with Sunspero. Johnson rode as though possessed and there was an added incentive for, up to today, he had ridden every winner of the Pimlico Futurity—Morvich in the first running and Blossom Time and Sally's Alley in the double event last year. He got everything out of his mount possible, but the son of Sunbriar tired at the end and finished eighth.

Beau Butler Makes His Run.

While Lord Baltimore and Sunspero were making the running to the turn from the back stretch, Beau Butler was being nicely rated by Carroll in third place. As they approached the turn he began his run. Moving up smoothly on the outside he passed the leaders and the crowd began to yell louder for Rustic to make his move. Turning into the short stretch, Beau Butler was leading by two lengths.

Carroll was taking no chances and he rode the colt out to the end. Again Khan swung around on the turn stood off the closing rush of Transmute, which came from nowhere to earn the shortest end of the purse.

There was plenty of pace, as the fractional times show. They were 23 2-5, :47, 1:12 2-5, 1:39 4-5.

Conley Rolls 254 Game.

The United Bakers and Falstaff teams of the Hope Scratch League engaged in a good match last week, the Bakers shooting 2777 and the Falstaffs 2751. The Bakers lost two games. Wacker Helderles won three games from the Schumachers, South Side Buicks two from the Phil Hahns, the Osceolos three from Gerkens, Scheels, two from Chippewas, Walter Runge Post No. 37, two from J. S. and S. S. Conley of the Hahns carried off high single game honors with 254. Al. Wessling of the Falstaffs shot high three games of 642.

*Pulled up. Scratched—Taylor Hay.

In Memoriam ran as if much the best; was kept under hard restraint from the start and drew by Zev in last quarter to win as he pleased. He could have disposed of Zev in first mile, seemingly. Zev showed good speed from the start and began weakening after mile and a quarter. My Own maintained forward place for first mile, but was done thereafter. Rialto was beaten after going first half mile and was eased in last half mile.

NOTRE DAME CLUB TO ENTERTAIN ELEVEN

Final arrangements for the entertainment of the Notre Dame University football team, which plays St. Louis University at Sportsman's Park Thanksgiving day, will be made at a meeting of the local Notre Dame Club at Marquette Hotel tomorrow at 8 p. m.

An automobile parade Wednesday noon before Thanksgiving and a banquet at Hotel Chase are features planned. Then members of the club attended the Notre Dame-Purdue homecoming game at South Bend, Ind., yesterday.

St. Louis "Pros." Play Green Bay Eleven Today

Team Which Defeated Conzelman's Milwaukee Club Shows Here.

The Green Bay Packers, professional football champions of Wisconsin for seven years, will oppose Ollie Kreahe's professional team today at 2:30 o'clock at Sportsman's Park in the second National Football League game of the local season. In its first local game, Kreahe's team played a scoreless tie with the Hammond, Ind., eleven on a muddy field.

St. Louis has played four league games, tieing two and losing two. The last defeat was experienced last Sunday when Jimmy Conzleman scored a touchdown that gave Milwaukee a 6 to 0 victory.

This is Green Bay's second meeting with Kraehe's eleven. The first game of the season was played at Green Bay and St. Louis held the opponents of today to a scoreless tie. Since that time Green Bay has defeated Milwaukee, the team that stopped St. Louis, 12 to 0.

"Cub" Buck is the outstanding star of the Wisconsin invaders. He weighs 275 pounds and looks like an itinerant skyscraper. He plays left tackle and made his reputation at Wisconsin University.

The lineups:

St. Louis.	Position.	Greenbay.
Milton	Left end	Wheeler
Murrah	Center	Niemen
Andrews	Right guard	Lyle
Travis	Right tackle	Earps
Mesar	Right end	Hayes
Simmons	Quarterback	Mairys
Casey	Left halfback	Bassing
Seigfried	Right halfback	Lambeau
Kline	Fullback	Gallas

Officials—Gould, West Point, referee; Coffeen, Beloit, umpire; Beck, Nebraska, head linesman.

GROGGY FOOTBALL STAR TIPS OFF HIS TEAM'S SIGNALS TO OPPONENT

By the Associated Press.

WOOSTER, O., Nov. 3.—Students of Wooster College tell a good story on Willie Flattery, star tackle of the Wooster football squad, who, during a scrimmage in an Ohio Conference game at Cincinnati last Saturday, landed on his head, receiving an injury which temporarily disturbed him mentally.

When the teams lined up for the next play, Quarterback Swigart of Wooster called the signals and Flattery announced loud enough for all the players on both teams to hear, "That play goes through here"—and so it did. As they lined up again and the signals were given, Flattery called out:

"That goes around the end." Swigart, hearing him, checked and called another play.

"I know that one, too," the big tackle announced. "It goes around the other end."

Time was called and Flattery was led to the side lines until the effects of the bump wore off, when he went back into the lineup and played a great game.

Third Army Corps Wins.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The ex-college and ex-service school athletes composing the Third Army Corps eleven effectually demonstrated the Toronto Argonauts have much to learn about American football when they sent the Canadians to a 55 to 7 defeat at Yankee Stadium this afternoon.

From the very outset the Army players showed to advantage, with Bredster, Timberlake, Noyes and Greene featuring the play.

SIXTH INFANTRY HOLDS AMATEUR SHOW AT BARRACKS WEDNESDAY

The Sixth United States Infantry, stationed at Jefferson Barracks, will hold a military and civilian boxing show at the Post Hall on Wednesday evening, open to any amateur boxer in good standing.

The Sixth Infantry will hold monthly shows of this nature to help develop the amateur game in St. Louis, and also to provide entertainment for several hundred overseas veterans now stationed at the Veterans' Hospital, who have no opportunity to get to town for entertainment.

Sgt. Farrell, matchmaker, has secured a sanction from the Western Amateur Athletic Union.

Gold watches will be given to the winners in each event, and a 24-inch silver loving cup to the organization scoring the most number of points. The Barracks boxing team will not compete for this trophy.

EAST ST. LOUIS HIGH TO COLUMBIA HIGH SCHOOL

The East St. Louis High School eleven and Columbia High School football team of Columbia, [illegible] played a scoreless game yesterday afternoon on Parsen's Field, West St. Louis. The field was partially covered with water, making it impossible for open play. Both teams tried for goal on placement, but without success. East St. Louis High will play in Little Rock, Ark., Saturday.

NATIONAL SOCIAL HYGIENE MEETING OPENS TOMORROW

Noted Authorities on Medicine Psychology and Public Health Questions to Speak.

SESSIONS TO BE AT THE HOTEL STATLER

Law Enforcement and an Educational Campaign Among Matters on the Program for Discussion.

With delegates in attendance from all parts of the United States and other nations, the tenth anniversary session of the National Conference on Social Hygiene will get under way at 8 p. m. tomorrow at Hotel Statler and continue through Wednesday. Noted authorities on medicine, social hygiene, law, psychology and public health will participate in the discussions.

The conference is under the joint auspices of the American and Missouri Social Hygiene Associations. A conference executive committee, headed by Dr. Martin F. Ingman, is in charge of arrangements. There also are these committees, with their respective chairmen: Advisory, Elwood Street; entertainment, Mrs. D. O. Ives; headquarters, hotels and registration, Mrs. A. P. Greensfelder; exhibits, Mrs. I. Bretzfelder; publicity, Charles E. Miner.

Speakers Tomorrow Night.

The first session speakers tomorrow night will be presided over by Nelson Cunliff, Director of Public Welfare, who will be introduced by Dr. F. H. Ewerhardt, president of the Missouri Social Hygiene Association. Speakers and their subjects on the opening night's program are:

Dr. Edward L. Keyes, professor of Urology, Cornell University Medical School, "The Social Hygiene Problem and Its Accomplishments"; Elwood Street, director of the Community Fund, "The Relationship of the Social Hygiene Program to Community Organizations"; Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, United States Public Health Service, "Social Hygiene and Public Health," and Dr. William F. Snow, General Director American Social Hygiene Association, "Some Objectives for Future Efforts."

The conference proper will get under way at 10 a. m. Tuesday. At this session, which is to adjourn at noon, a law enforcement program will be discussed. The session will be in Parlor A, Hotel Statler, and Mrs. George Gellhorn will preside. "Social Hygiene Legislation and Its Enforcement," will be discussed by Bascom Johnson, director Department of Legal Measures, American Social Hygiene Association. "The Program of the Missouri State Board of Health" will be outlined by R. L. Russell, surgeon United States Public Health Service; and "Law Enforcement and Public Welfare" will be the subject of an address by H. H. Antles, secretary State Department of Public Welfare, Lincoln, Neb.

Speakers Tuesday Afternoon.

Protective measures will be discussed from 12:30 to 2 P. M. Tuesday. The Rev. Rufus D. S. Putney, president of the Missouri Welfare League, will preside. Speakers and their subjects are:

"The Field of the Policewoman," Mrs. Mina G. Van Winkle, director of the Women's Bureau of the Washington, D. C., Police Department; "Public Responsibility for the Care of the Delinquent Girl and Unmarried Mothers," Miss Katherine F. Lenroot, of the Children's Bureau U. S. Department of Labor. "Protective Measures in a Community Program," Mrs. Martha P. Falconer, American Social Hygiene Association.

Miss Anna M. Drake, Director of Public Health Nurses for the Iowa Department of Health, and Miss Jessie F. Binford, director of the Juvenile Protective Association of Chicago will direct discussions at this session. An afternoon session from 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock will be devoted, to a discussion of an educational program, over which the Rev. George R. Dobson will preside.

Educational Program Discussion.

An afternoon session beginning at 2:30 in the ballroom of the Statler will be given over to discussion of an educational program. Speakers will include Prof. Maurice A. Bigelow, Teachers' College, Columbia University; Mrs. Edna P. Fox, director of Education, Virginia State Board of Health; Dr. George B. Mangold, director Missouri School of Social Economy; Dr. William S. Keller, president Cincinnati Social Hygiene Society; and Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros, General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Dr. Valeria H. Parker, of the National W. C. T. U., will make the principal address at an informal dinner session on Tuesday evening, and the night session which follows will be given over to a consideration of medical measures.

Drs. Martin F. Engman, Edward L. Keyes, Mazyck P. Ravenel, University of Missouri; William A. Edler, Jefferson Barracks; Joseph A. Lawrence, New York State Department of Health; and A. H. Conrad and Richard Weiss, both of St. Louis, are on the program for addresses.

"FOR YOUR TOES' WOES"

The Stout Woman warns—

"GIVE YOUR feet extra care and aid when they have extra pounds to carry. A small foot was never meant to carry 155 pounds. You can help nature as I have. Get shoes that hold the foot in the proper position—distribute the weight on the ball and heel where it can be supported with least effort—without muscle strain.

Comfort NOW!

"I suffered from aching feet caused by wearing house slippers and old shoes until a friend told me about Ye Olde Tyme Comfort Shoes and I have worn them ever since—with pleasure in the comfort they give and pride in their appearance."

Examine a pair of Ye Olde Tyme Comfort Shoes. Feel the soft, satiny kid leather. Note the flexible yet durable sole—the in-built steel arch and the well proportioned heel finished off with springy rubber. Long wear is certain.

Made by Specialists

There is one chief reason for their comfort—they are made over scientifically designed lasts and from correct fitting patterns by men who have specialized for the last twenty years in making comfort shoes for women. Comfort is built into this shoe.

Made in black and brown kidskin in a variety of styles. To get the genuine look for the name "Ye Olde Tyme Comfort Shoe" on the heel and sole.

SHARP UPTURN IN STOCKS AS SHORT INTEREST COVERS

Announcement of U. S. Steel Corporations Good Third Quarter Earnings and Extra Dividend Disbursement Precedes Advance on Exchange.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Certainly the most striking feature of an interesting week is an extremely sharp and well-sustained rally against the short interest in securities. It must be admitted at the start that the movement bears every evidence of having been carefully planned and well timed, and of having sponsors who were fairly sure of their position and possessed of large resources. Here was no tentative experiment or minor shift of position by floor traders, but an operation conceived on a broad scale, executed with boldness and possessing the prestige of leadership. The announcement of the Steel Corporation's good third quarter earnings and extra dividend disbursement furnished an unusually favorable opportunity for the initiation of the campaign, and that the shorts were thrown into something resembling a panic was evident from the course of prices.

Situation Is Spotty.

"Part of the foundation for the successful drive was furnished, of course, by the position into which the market has been forced. Although it was quite clear to impartial observers that the speculative position had been greatly strengthened by the thorough-going liquidation which preceded and attended the turn of the half-year, the bears persisted in selling securities. Pessimism, in other words, was greatly overdone.

"What actually has happened is that business has declined moderately and in an orderly fashion from a rate during the spring which was high enough to border on the unhealthy. Stocks of goods are moderate, working capital positions are liquid, and the very fact that business men are allve to the possibility of a recession should militate against any deep or prolonged recession. There is nothing in the situation to suggest that the "good" companies, that is, those which generally earn profits and pay dividends, should experience any marked difficulties in doing so next year. Under the circumstance the reaction against the bears is fitting and useful. Similarly, if the bulls should try to carry things too far they in turn would be likely to expose themselves to an unprofitable experience.

"The situation is, and will continue to be, somewhat spotty. By the same token, the market is likely to remain a discriminating one. Some of the industrial problems actually spring from apparent strength. Thus the extraordinary rise in cotton, while most cheering to the bulls in that commodity, is furishing certain of the mills with the troublesome problem of passing on the increased cost to the consumer. It also is true that certain parts of the cotton belt have suffered such severe damage as to cancel any advantage gained through the advance in prices. Nevertheless, prosperity never is uniformly distributed with regard either to locality and different branches of industry. What seems apparent is that the general level of business is likely to continue sufficiently high during the next year to afford reasonable profits to most enterprises.

Reaction In Exchange.

"Meanwhile Premier Poincare's recent speeches have been interpreted as indicating a desire to whittle away his acceptance of the inquiry into German's capacity to pay reparations. On this basis the exchanges have reacted rather sharply, sterling feeling the force of an added factor in the talk of a general election and labor agitation for a capital levy. We may doubt, however, whether the French premier actually will defy the world, either in the matter of permitting a useful inquiry or in that of blocking an ultimate settlement. Similarly, the pressure on sterling probably is being overdone. Seasonal influences should soon begin to work in favor of this exchange, while stories of such things as a capital levy or of an unsound fiscal policy will receive little credence from any one familiar with British institutions and character."

"Although considerable irregularity cropped out in the early trading in stocks, sufficient strength soon developed to insure the finish of the week with the bull movement still in progress. Those stocks which have been leaders in the market rally were the weakest at the opening, but support was forthcoming and the losses were not only regained but further small advances were registered. Aside from one or two issues the rail shares were the strongest group in the list, the industrial list was only moderately active. As the market closed, moderate gains predominated throughout. Bonds were firm in quiet trading.

"Rather active trading in sterling and French francs were the only features of the foreign exchange markets. Quotations at the opening were established on the basis of London's closing, with sterling at a new low for the year at $4.45 3-8. As trading developed, however, the quotation improved a half cent, bringing the price up to the previous close. French francs were firm as were the other continental allies. Other Europeans were inclined to be lower, particularly the Scandinavians and Spanish pesetas.

"In view of the sharp rise in cotton futures in response to an unexpectedly bullish government crop estimate, resulting in the operation of the rule of the Cotton Exchange bringing trading to a close when an advance of 200 points has been registered in any one day. Interest in the market was unusual. Heavy profit-taking was the natural sequence, but it was absorbed without much difficulty and was offset by mill and further speculative buying which carried prices up to the highest levels reached since the deflation period of 1920. The advance at Liverpool also was sharp, being parallel in response to the action of our market yesterday. At a late price of $27.50 the December future was 22 points above the previous close. In grain, aside from covering of shorts in corn, there was little of interest. Wheat for the most part showed a strong tone.

"A decrease of $35,000,000 in surplus as shown by the statement of the Clearing House brought a deficit of $12,356,010 in that item. This change was accompanied by a decrease in loans of $10,457,000 and an increase of $34,440,000 in demand deposits. Other changes were unimportant.

Wool Exports Heavier.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—A material increase in the export of foreign wools held in bond in Boston has been shown in recent weeks, according to an announcement by the Boston office of the Market News Service on Wool, United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. During the week ending Oct. 27, 2,750,000 pounds of wool was cleared from this port, which is approximately 200,000 pounds in excess of the total exported during the four preceding weeks.

Of the wool shipped for the week of Oct. 23, (the report said), over 500,000 pounds of Chile wools went to London; 250,000 pounds of Uruguyan stock was sent to Liverpool; about 1,000,000 pounds of various South American wools was shipped to England and continental points; and over 60,000 pounds of noils was bilod to Bradford and Liverpool.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Another impressive exhibition of the stock market's restored buying power was given today.

Professional sentiment had been looking for some reaction after three days of very substantial advance.

But after starting in somewhat lower, prices quickly steadied. It was found that all offerings, whether in the nature of profit taking or of short selling, were being readily taken and in the last hour the leaders moved into high ground.

Steel common, Baldwin Locomotive, Studebaker, American Can, Dupont, General Electric and other leaders all made new high prices for the present movement. The advance became broader and even involved stocks like Texas Co. and Central Leather preferred, which have been anything but popular in the recent trading.

Sugar stocks fell into line despite the weakness in the sugar market.

The short interest in American Woolen was given another twist, above 74, the stock was up nearly 5 points from its recent low. Motor accessory stocks rose sharply, especially Stewart-Warner and Bosch Magneto. The rise continued in Willys-Overland preferred in expectation of a distribution on back dividends. Davison Chemical had a brisk run up and the tire shares were distinctly improved.

Studebaker at 102, was up over two points. Steel common drew close to 94 and Baldwin Locomotive got well across 103. Realizing sales in the last 10 minutes or so of trading carried prices off somewhat from the top. But the close was active and strong with very gradual net advances.

The Bond Market.

Interest in today's bond market centered in the new offering of $100,000,000 American Telephone and Telegraph debenture 5½s, subscription books for which will be opened Monday and in the effect of this new financing on the outstanding obligations of the telephone company and its subsidiaries.

American Telephone and Telegraph collateral trust 5s of 1947 which lost nearly two points Friday on advance reports of this new financing, opened fractionally lower. The collateral trust 4s of 1929 were affected in less degree because of this shorter term. Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s and Illinois Bell Telephone 5s opened down a half to three-quarters of a point. All rallied later in the day.

The new bonds are debentures only and in that respect differ from the outstanding issues already mentioned which are secured by mortgage or by deposit of collateral. This is the largest piece of new financing since the Anaconda Copper 6s and 7s were marketed last January.

Otherwise there was no great change in today's market. The demand for high grade rails and industrials continued good but there were some fractional recessions in quotations although on the week practically all the active issues are higher. United States Steel sinking fund 5s were up today above their previous high this week. Union Pacific first 4s sold lower.

Among the so-called speculative bonds Seaboard Air Line adjustments made a new high for the year maintaining the uniform rise which has marked the trading in this issue all the week. Seaboard Air Line 6s Friday and today shared the improvement. Chicago Great Western 4s was in favor. On the week these bonds are up about three points. St. Paul about held their recent gains. On the week all the active issues are up about two points.

Practically all the speculative and second grade railroad bonds which have been under liquidating pressure the past month or so, are up on the week.

In comparison with the rest of the market the local transactions were weak. Selling has been heaviest in Third Avenue adjustments, although they rallied a point and a half above the low. Curiously enough Third Avenue 4s are up about two points on the week. Interboro Rapid Transit issues have been irregularly lower.

In the foreign group the feature of the week has been the strength in Belgian 8s and Belgian 7½s. For the most part foreign bonds have been dull. Belgian 8s equalled their high of the year today.

The week's new offerings were only $13,492,000. Probably investment bankers will be inclined to leave next week's field to the telephone financing. One issue scheduled for Monday, however, is $9,000,000 in Province of Alberta 5½s to be offered at par.

GRAIN LIST HIGHER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 3.—Grain futures closed higher on the local market, the tone of cotton and stock markets, exerting influence on sentiment. Shorts covered. The weather was called unfavorable for gathering new corn crop.

In the local cash grain market Saturday selection of soft grades of wheat were small and prices rose 1c under fair demand from shippers mainly. Hard was 1c to 1½c higher. Ordinary descriptions met accumulative demand. It was reported that southern No. 2 hard, 12.50 per cent protein, was offered to arrive equal to $1.21 here. Corn offerings were light and with fair demand, the market had a better tone. Old corn was steady at 1½c higher and new corn 1c to 1c better. Local industries and elevators were the best buyers. Oats were steady to ½c higher under local demand. Light offerings were all cleaned up.

The early market was higher on both wheat and corn, the low points being above previous close. Liverpool wheat closed ¾d higher.

December wheat opened at $1.08⅝. May wheat $1.12⅜. July wheat $1.06¼. December corn 75¾c. May corn 73¼c and July corn 73⅜c.

Millers Want Flour Exported.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—A committee of the Millers' National Federation endeavored at a conference concluded last night to convince the department of agriculture, through its representative, C. J. Bland, that wheat exported to relieve the growers' emergency should go as flour, the committee reported today. The millers said that the conference was held at the request of Secretary Wallace. Mr. Bland, the department might learn the millers' views.

The committee comprised some 15 millers from nine states including New York, Minnesota and Kansas. They included C. L. Roose of Wellington, Kan., president of the Millers' National Federation, and E. Moses of Kansas City, Mo.; C. M. Hardenbergh of Kansas City, Mo.; G. S. Milner of Alton, Ill.; A. E. Bernet of St. Louis, and Theodore Ismert of Kansas City, Mo.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The raw sugar market was steady today, but no sales were reported and prices were unchanged, with Cuban quoted at 5⅛ cents, cost and freight, equal to 6.91 for centrifugal.

Raw sugar futures were steadier and prices were higher on covering and trade buying, promoted by reports of a better inquiry for refined. Final prices were all about the best and three to 11 points net higher. December closed at 5c, March 5.96c, May 4.06c, July 4.11c.

There were no changes in refined sugar prices which are listed at from 6.60 to 6.70 for fine granulated, but a better inquiry was reported. Refined futures nominal.

GRAIN PRICES HIGHER IN TRADE AT WEEK-END

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Wheat exhibited much strength early today, but prices reached little from the high point in the later trading under realizing sales. There was an improvement in the trade, and there was said to be some good commission-house buying for investment account, largely for Eastern clients. This source many shorts into covering. On the bulge longs took profits. It is difficult to account for this display of bullishness, but the fact that the market is inclined to respond to bearish news the last few days caused a change in sentiment. Private advices were weaker. Liverpool market was a little firmer. Milling demand was light. Millers' federation is advocating a 25c increase in the tariff on wheat to aid the farmers. Shipping sales were 57,000 bushels. Market closed ¼@⅜c lower. December, $1.07¼@⅜; May, $1.12¼@⅜ to ¾; July, $1.09¾.

Corn also scored a sharp advance. There was buying by houses with Eastern connections and short covering. The bulge brought out some long corn for profit. Cash corn was irregular. New corn was unchanged, old 2 to 2 white 3c lower and No. 2 yellow ½c higher. Weather was unfavorable for gathering the new crop. Shipping demand was light. Sales were 30,000 bushels. Market closed ⅛@1⅛c higher, December, 71⅝@¾c; May, 73⅛@¾c; July, 73⅝c.

Oats followed wheat and corn early. On the bulge cash houses sold. Sales were 24,000 bushels. Market closed ⅛@⅛c higher, December, 41⅝@⅝c; May, 44⅛c; July, 43¼@⅜c.

Provisions were easy early. Locals sold for September, big hog receipts next week. Cash interests bought on the dip. Lard closed unchanged to 7½c lower, ribs 10c lower and bellies 10c higher.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The market for coffee futures was higher today owing to higher Brazilian cables, covering and trade buying. The demand was by no means active or general, but offerings were light and after opening 10 to 12 points higher, active months sold 15 points above yesterday's closing figures with December touching 8.95c and March 8.20c. Last prices were within a point or two of the top with the market closing steady at net advances of 13 to 14 points. Sales were estimated at about 13,000 bags. December, 8.95c; May, 7.78c; July, 7.61c; September, 7.45c; October, 7.40c.

Spot coffee quiet, but steady; Rio 7s, 11c; Santos 4s, 13½c to 15¼c.

Galveston Cotton Exports Larger.

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 3.—Cotton exports from Galveston during the week ending Nov. 2 were 144,981 bales; increase of 120,000 bales, compared with the preceding week, according to figures made public today by the Cotton Exchange.

Exports last week were 24,845; same week last year, 156,881, exports for the season to Nov. 2 were 808,756 bales, an increase of 119,522 over last season.

Receipts during the week were 141,935 bales; previous week, 194,809; same week last year, 121,078; receipts for the season to Nov. 2, were 1,421,590.

Construwise shipments for the week were 26,805 bales; previous week, 345,421; same week last year, 18,155.

HOGS SLIGHTLY OFF IN TRADE OF WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle & calves	41,468	41,589	47,091
Hogs	108,571	116,084	84,135
Sheep	12,518	12,484	10,530
Horses & mules	2,714	2,682	2,553
Totals	165,271	173,739	144,915

Livestock markets at the St. Louis National Stockyards last week closed steady to 25c higher in cattle, higher in pigs, slightly lower in hogs, lower in lambs and steady in sheep. Combined receipts were moderate, approximating 165,271 head. Arrivals of cattle and calves for the six-day period figured 41,468 head, as against 41,589 for the previous week. Save for a few Western arrivals, the run was from native and Southern territory. Beef steers showed a lower trend the fore part of the week, but closed with most or all of the early weakness recalled. Quality was mostly common to medium with only a few well finished droves represented. Prices were in a wide range, native steer quotations ranging from $5.50 or under for a common grade to $11.50 for an attractive drove of yearlings. The butcher cattle market was rather active most of the period and most of the offerings registered a price improvement. Best yearlings, butcher cows and canner and cutter cows finished about 25c higher. Bulls remained steady. Veal calves and heifers and heifers reached $10.50 and $11, followed by grass consignments at $4 to $7 principally. Some common canner classes selling down to $2.25. Butcher cows were quotable in a range of $3.50 to $7, while $8.75 to $9 caught most of the best heifers. Cutter cows late were valued at $2.65 to $3.25 and canners at $2 to $2.50, bologna bulls $2.50 to $4.75 and canner bulls $2.25 up. Stocker and feeder steers in moderate supply and somewhat indifferent call ruled steady to possibly 25c lower in extreme cases. The offering common to medium in quality varied from $2.75 to $6.50, with $4 to $5 catching most. Veal calves started the week with a top of $10. Later advances put the high sale Thursday at $11, although $10.50 was the closing high mark. Southern canner receipts on the calves were quoted at $1.90 to $2, some of the best $2.25.

Hog Receipts Lighter.

The supply of hogs received at this market the past week was somewhat lighter than for the previous week although swine continue to arrive in considerable qualities. Bulk of the offerings received are the light immature kinds for which the demand is somewhat limited. For the week past receipts show a total of 108,571, compared with 116,984 for the preceding week and 84,135 for the corresponding week a year ago. Most of the declines during the week were made toward the latter part, the first of the week featuring advances on all classes. Later drops in prices leaves the market at the week's close 10c to 15c lower. Butcher weight swine from 190 to 230 pounds at $7.20 to $7.35 look 10c to 15c lower than a week ago, the light and shipping weight swine showing a corresponding loss of 10c to 15c. In contrast to the declines noted on the better weight kinds, packing sows are higher for the week with advances ranging from 25c to 50c over the previous week's finish. Strong weight kinds of 550 to 750 pounds show an advance of 25c to 40c with the medium weights at 110 to 1130 pounds, 40c to 50c higher on the light pigs and pen wees from 110 pounds and down prices look 50c higher. Packer sows also are higher with s

MANY WINNERS OF BLUE RIBBONS HERE FOR HORSE SHOW

Practically All Out-of-Town Entries Had Arrived Last Night for Opening at Coliseum Tomorrow.

CHAMPIONS BRING ARRAY OF MASCOTS

Miss Hardt of Chicago Is in Personal Charge of Her Stable of Fine Steeds — Other Women to Compete

Many of the champion show horses of America were quartered in stalls in the vicinity of the Coliseum last night, in readiness for the opening of the St. Louis Horse Show tomorrow night. Practically all the out-of-town horses had arrived, and Capt. J. Cromley, manager of the St. Louis Country Club stables, was busy arranging to bring in the stables of Judson S. Bemis, Joseph Pulitzer, C. R. D. Meier and others. Many of the St. Louis County entries were transported to the city in specially cushioned trucks to avoid any possible injury.

With the horses, some of which are valued at high as $15,000 each, came all sorts of mascots. Goats seemed to be favored as mascots. But dogs ran them a close second. At the end of long chains were several highly-trained police dogs, charged with the duty of protecting the horses from all comers.

One of the most enthusiastic contestants for honors this year is Miss Gertrude Hardt of Chicago, who is in personal charge of her stable of five horses, which include a five-gaited mare, Kirsty McCready. Miss Hardt not only rides her horses in the contests, but she trains them as well.

Women Riders in Event.

Probably the most admired horse in the stables last night was Exciter, the bay gelding owned by Otto W. Lehmann of Chicago. Mrs. Otto Lehmann will ride Exciter in the three-gaited classes, and ship him immediately to New York for the Madison Square Garden Show. With Exciter, she has twice won the cup offered by the Associated Horse Shows of the United States, and if she wins the cup again this year it becomes her permanent property. There are 19 head of horses in Lehmann's stables here, Lansdown and Sure Fire, winners of the stakes and sweepstakes in the jumpers' classes at the Brockton, Mass., show, being among them.

Mrs. Lehman will ride Exciter in the three-gaited class tomorrow night, in competition with Mrs. Louis Long Combs of Kansas City, on an unnamed entry. Miss Hardt also will appear in this contest, on Dorine. Dr. W. C. Gadsby's horse, Bliff; Edward L. Bakewell's Beaumont; Judson S. Bemis', Mickey; Miss Eleanor Atkins' Lady Rex; Elmer L. Musick's Sweet Marie; J. Van Raalte's Home Brew and O. B. Brown's Meh Lady McDonald also are entered. All will be ridden by women.

Interest in Harness Contest.

Another contest tomorrow night that will attract unusual attention will be the single harness horse event in which Mrs. Combs will drive Admiration; Mrs. Lehmann, Montpelier Corrine; Mrs. Adolphus Busch III, Lady Melbourne Ursular, and Mrs. John R. Thomason of Chicago, Leading Article. Other horses entered in this contest are Edgeware Marvel, owned by the Cedar Crest Farms; Seaton Buster and Seaton Priscilla, owned by William E. Dee of Chicago; Ovation, owned by Mrs. Combs, and Mary Marlborough and Julietta Mayneswood, owned by the Broadview Farm of La Porte, Ind.

In the hunters' class, both heavyweight and middleweight, the jumpers of Benjamin Leslie Behr's Arcady Farm will be seen in action.

Several young St. Louisans suffered bruises in spills during the week. One of these is C. R. Scudder Jr., who was thrown from War Tax at the St. Louis Country Club and severely bruised.

The show will open at the Coliseum at 8 o'clock tomorrow night and continue throughout the week, including Saturday night. There will be one matinee performance, Wednesday afternoon. At the Wednesday matinee any child accompanied by an adult will be admitted free.

BURNS FATAL TO GIRL, 2

Burns suffered when playing at a grate fire Thursday caused the death yesterday of Mattie Waters, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Waters of 726 Baugh street, East St. Louis.

Mrs. Waters, who was going to visit a neighbor, had gone into another room leaving the child gazing at the fire, when she heard screams. Mattie's dress was in flames and the child was vainly trying to tear it off. Before Mrs. Waters could extinguish the fire the child was badly burned on the left side.

Lloyd George, Plays 18-P 3 Strokes

Welshman a Valiant Fr holds the Honor of Described as Nat

By LAWRENC
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-

ONE recalls that a large meas novelist lay in his promptness Alger when setting out to port circumstance and temper of his her and fearless newsboy or bootblack tle with another boy, and one who less. Yet no sooner had our hero him the homage due a conqueror hall.

Now Mr. Alger, as you doubtless know, was a realist and a banquet for him meant a modest and steaming supper in the humble tenement of the poor. Mr. Alger was so great an artist that he not only described the shining red cloth and the succulent steak with crispy-browned potatoes, but he carried his realism to the utmost pitch and set down the prices of each of the comestibles upon the widowed mother's clean but frugal board. Mr. Alger reduced his novels to the necessities of life.

Thus a boy fought to keep his corner stand, and he kept his corner stand in order to make money. And he made money in order to buy steaks and potatoes. Mr. Alger not only carried his readers with him through the first of these processes; he cooked the steak and grilled the spuds before one's very eyes. Loving and fighting may be two of the essentials of life, but eating is just an inept third and Mr. Alger was one of the few story tellers since the ancients who saw the possibilities in it. Homer and Alger always roasted their meats for the reader's delectation.

When a reporter is asked to go to a banquet, the last thing in the editor's mind is any attention directed toward the actual and physical features of the banquet. Thus a writer asked to do a story of Lloyd George at a dinner is expected and rightly to eat some of the dinner, but he is not called upon to say anything about it. I have never in a fairly extended newspaper experience read an account of a banquet in which the reporter said some kind thing about the roast Long Island duckling, although I have reported many banquets where the roast duckling was by far the most pleasant feature of the program. Thus some dinners might, by shrewd reporting, be described as "the dinner last night at the Willard was given to ex-Senator Bloc, the lamb duck from Iowa, and the roast duckling was warmly received."

Recently a dinner was tendered David Lloyd George at the Hotel Hamilton at Washington by the Overseas Writers. The editor believed it might be the makings of a Sunday story, but the chairman of the Overseas Writers on the eve of the feast expressed a desire that all speeches be regarded as a journalistic confidence. Now a dinner where the newspaper man is on oath not to quote, directly or indirectly, the sayings of the great who attend, is an oath that one must preserve with the esprit of Hayard. It is doubtful if such confidence has ever been broken and there are two reasons for it. First, one has promised not to quote the speaker. And secondly, no speaker since 1847 has ever said anything at a confidential dinner that was worth quoting.

I realized with a thrill when Mark Sullivan put the assembled Overseas Writers under the pro-per word of secrecy that here was the chance of a lifetime to carry on in the tradition of Horatio Alger. The world had read of the deeds of our hero in the realm of action, but few had followed him to the supper table. Here was a banquet where the only thing left to report was the menu and the table manners of the guests.

Welshman a Valiant Frencherman Who Upholds the Honor of His Sturdy Race—Described as Natural-Born Eater.

By LAWRENCE STALLINGS.
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.

ONE recalls that a large measure of Horatio Alger's appeal as a novelist lay in his promptness to appear at the supper table. Mr. Alger when setting out to portray (as none save he could do) the circumstance and temper of his hero, straightway introduced his frank and fearless newsboy or bootblack in the midst of a rather wordy battle with another boy, and one who was anything but frank and fearless. Yet no sooner had our hero triumphed than Mr. Alger accorded him the homage due a conqueror and ushered him into the banquet hall.

Now Mr. Alger, as you doubtless know, was a realist and a banquet for him meant a modest and steaming supper in the humble tenement of the poor. Mr. Alger was so great an artist that he not only described the shining red cloth and the succulent steak with crisply-browned potatoes, but he carried his realism to the utmost pitch and set down the prices of each of the comestibles upon the widowed mother's clean but frugal board. Mr. Alger reduced his novels to the necessities of life.

Thus a boy fought to keep his corner stand, and he kept his corner stand in order to make money. And he made money in order to buy steaks and potatoes. Mr. Alger not only carried his readers with him through the first of these processes; he cooked the steak and grilled the spuds before one's very eyes. Loving and fighting may be two of the essentials of life, but eating is just an inept third and Mr. Alger was one of the few story tellers since the ancients who saw the possibilities in it. Homer and Alger always roasted their meats for the reader's delectation.

When a reporter is asked to go to a banquet, the last thing in the editor's mind is any attention directed toward the actual and physical features of the banquet. Thus a writer asked to do a story of Lloyd George at a dinner is expected and rightly to eat some of the dinner, but he is not called upon to say anything about it. I have never in a fairly extended newspaper experience read an account of a banquet in which the reporter said some kind things about the roast Long Island duckling, although I have reported many banquets where the roast duckling was by far the most pleasant feature of the program. Thus some dinners might, by shrewd reporting, be described as "the dinner last night at the Willard was given to ex-Senator Bloc, the lame duck from Iowa, and the roast duckling was warmly received."

Recently a dinner was tendered David Lloyd George at the Hotel Hamilton at Washington by the Overseas Writers. The editor believed it might be the makings of a Sunday story, but the chairman of the Overseas Writers on the eve of the feast expressed a desire that all speeches be regarded as a journalistic confidence. Now a dinner where the newspaper man is on oath not to quote, directly or indirectly, the sayings of the great who attend, is an oath that one must preserve with the esprit of a Bayard. It is doubtful if such a confidence has ever been broken, and there are two reasons for it. First, one has promised not to quote the speaker. And secondly, no speaker since 1847 has ever said anything at a confidential dinner that was worth quoting.

I realized with a thrill when Mark Sullivan put the assembled Overseas Writers under the newspaper word of secrecy that here was the chance of a lifetime to carry on in the tradition of Horatio Alger. The world had read of the deeds of our hero in the realm of action, but few had followed him to the supper table. Here was a banquet where the only thing left to report was the menu and the table manners of the guests.

And what guests! and what table manners! Picture the reporter's deadline. All railway and hotel expenses defrayed by his paper, sailing going on just the same, and all one had to do in repayment was to eat one's turkey, say nothing, take no notes and let the ceiling resound to the smoke-laden oratory. Others have told you that Lloyd George is a good speaker; it is my privilege to say that he is an eater par-excellence, a trencherman who upholds the table honors of his sturdy race and who can play every lie of an 18-plate course in three strokes under par.

Lloyd George had an Alger-like beginning. He was born in humble surroundings, went through a childhood of frugality verging on want, pulled down the honors of his community with never once losing his natural gusto for a fight or a frolic, and learned the worth of an honest supper in the stomach of a growing boy. Frank Dilnot in his biographical sketch of the ex-Premier tells of his fare as a lad in a Welsh village. Mr. Dilnot says that the young David who was later to slay so many Goliaths had a diet of bread and butter, augmented by a small morsel of meat twice a week. On Sundays, according to Mr. Dilnot, the boy had a red letter day when by custom each child had half an egg with his breakfast. A boy who once looked forward to Sunday—that day of pall to the average child—as a red letter event because of half an egg that accompanied it, should certainly be laying the groundwork for a magnificently mature appetite later on. And there is no doubt that Lloyd George did.

At the dinner by the Overseas Writers, the ex-Premier had Secretary Weeks on his right and Mark Sullivan presiding on his left. Mr. Sullivan's appetite may have been a trifle hobbled by the ordeal he was to face in introducing Mr. Lloyd George, and this may detract from the observation that the ex-Premier certainly out-ate his tablemates two for one. Yet, Secretary Weeks is no frying-size at a table. Only the other day Mr. Bryan (himself a man of weight at the boards) mistook the War Secretary for the honorable Edwin Denby, and Mr. Denby's outline is so Gargantuan that when he enlisted in the Marine Corps he drew six rations daily until trained down by the drill Sergeants. Yet Lloyd George, handling his implements as a veteran stacked his provender a good two minutes before Secretary Weeks was stroking, in sign of completion of a dish, the large and walrus-like facade that shrouds the portals of his oratory.

The Britisher as a national is said to possess perfect table manners, and no manners at all anywhere else. Certainly the Britisher is a natural born eater. He has none of the furtive grace of the Frenchman at table; he was using his poinard in a pasty long after the French were practicing the art of balancing haricots upon a rudimentary form. And the Britisher in his conscious arrogance will not stoop to the mollified technique of the American politician who lands at Washington. So Lloyd George by early training and by national hereditary characteristics was easily the favorite when the diners went to the post.

Chief Justice Taft, a most conscientious man, is prominent in the advertisements of the Life Extension Institute and must live up to his reputation for wisdom. Yet surveying his Herculean exterior with its prairie-like undulations, one felt that if he and David Lloyd George were given a private supper

Tendencies of the Supreme Court as Revealed in the Light of Some of the Tribunal's Recent Decisions

Public Interest in Nation's Highest Court Growing as Result of Body's Changed Personnel. Its Shifting Philosophical Slants and the Labor Proposal to Limit Its Power to Declare Laws Unconstitutional.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.

THREE causes have combined in recent months to increase public interest in the United States Supreme Court. One is the number of important decisions, such as those in the child labor and the minimum wage cases, which have been handed down in the last two years; another, the four changes in personnel under President Harding, and a third, the bringing forward of various proposals, including that of the American Federation of Labor, to limit the power of the court to declare laws unconstitutional. Along the same line of thought as the third proposition, though not quite so drastic is the announcement of Senator Borah that he will renew in the next Congress his proposal that the concurrence of at least seven of the Judges of the Supreme Court shall be required to overturn any act of Congress.

This growth of public interest, which is certain to be reflected in the discussion of the coming Congress, is perhaps sufficient warrant for a layman's going back into the record and digging out some of the significant features.

As a point of departure, the writer has taken the appointment of Mr. Taft as Chief Justice, succeeding the late Chief Justice White. Mr. Taft took his seat in the center of the bench of nine Justices in October, 1921. Three new Associate Justices have joined the court since then: Justice Sutherland, succeeding Justice Clarke, resigned; Justice Butler, succeeding Justice Day, retired, and Justice Sanford, succeeding Justice Pitney, retired.

It cannot be said, therefore, that all the decisions of the period since Mr. Taft realized his lifelong ambition are those of the court which President Harding, by the appointment of four men out of nine, reconstituted in large degree. There was a fluctuating membership till last February, when the naming of Justice Sanford completed what may be called the "new court"—the court as it now is. While all the decisions to be reviewed were made during the incumbency of Chief Justice Taft, comparatively few were the work of this "new" tribunal in its entirety.

Philosophy of the Court

As will be shown, it is not possible to generalize to any large extent regarding the philosophy that actuates the various members of the court. Such conclusions as seem justified by the record are given in the course of the following review:

It should be borne in mind that when Justice Clarke, a Wilson appointee, resigned from the bench to devote his time to furthering the cause of the League of Nations, the court lost one of its leading exponents of liberalism. This loss, apparently, has been repaired to some extent by the appointment of Justice Sanford.

Of the other new members, Chief Justice Taft is generally accounted a conservative, although some of his opinions indicate a sympathetic slant in the other direction. Justices Sutherland and Butler, on the face of their records before and since becoming members of the court, lean to the conservative side, the latter markedly so.

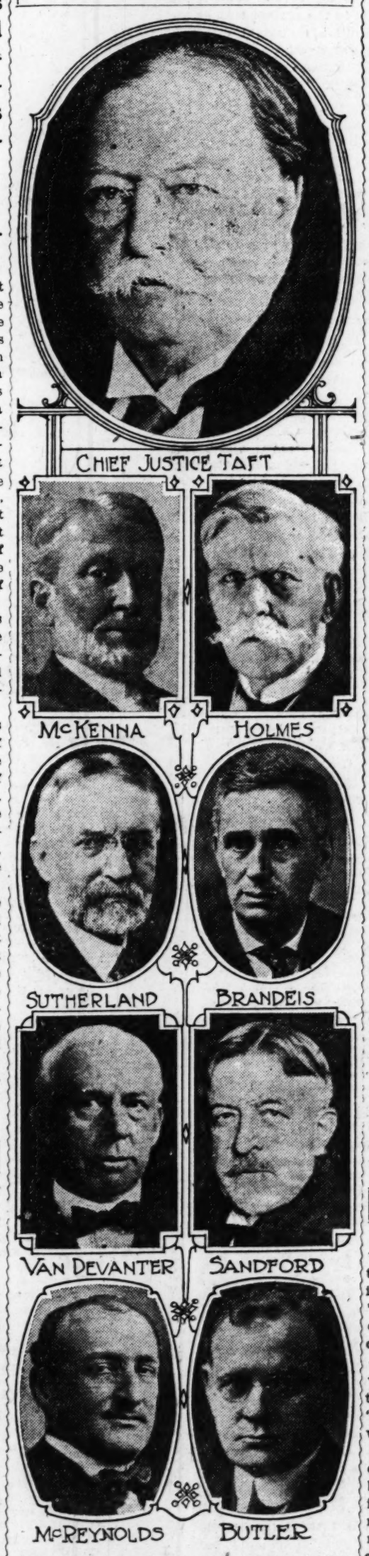
When Justice Butler was appointed it was widely predicted that he would prove a highly reactionary element. The record of his service is not yet extended enough to show whether or not this estimate is correct.

The fact that the court is nominally Republican by a large majority has no significance in relation to its attitude toward social and economic questions. As it happens, both Justice Butler and Justice McReynolds—the latter a pronounced conservative—are labeled Democrats.

Bearing on Industrial Struggle

During the period under review, the Supreme Court has passed judgment on several cases having important bearing on the industrial struggle. One of these, the first case of broad interest settled after Mr. Taft took his seat, was that of the American Steel Foundries against the Tri-City (Ill.) Central Trades

THE NINE JUDGES OF THE U. S. SUPREME COURT



Council, decided Dec. 5, 1921. Chief Justice Taft delivered the opinion of the court. Justice Brandeis concurred in substance, and Justice Clarke dissented.

The court held that the picketing of the company's plant by groups of strikers who "importunately intercepted" employes and whose activities collected crowds of bystanders and resulted in personal violence, was unlawful. Against such picketing, it was held, an injunction could properly be issued. It was not necessary to the validity of the injunction that the court below should add the words, "in a threatening or intimidating manner."

"We think," the Supreme Court said, "the strikers should be limited to one representative for each point of ingress and egress. * * * The purpose should be to prevent the inevitable intimidation of the presence of groups of pickets, but to allow missionaries."

So far, the decision was a victory for the employer. But on another question the court sided with the labor organization, holding that an injunction "broadly forbidding" former employes from persuading employes and would-be employes to leave or stay out of employment was in conflict with the Clayton act. The right to strike was upheld. The rule was laid down that "peaceful persuasion" by a local labor union to induce a strike against lowered wages, when the members of that union have reason to expect re-employment at the plant where wages have been reduced, does not come under the ban against "malicious enticement" of laborers.

Loss of Clarke, the Liberal, by Resignation, Apparently Repaired to Some Extent by Appointment of Sanford—Several of New Members Said to Lean to Conservative Side—Body Nominally Republican.

Fourteenth Amendment

A decision in another notable labor case followed shortly, on Dec. 9, 1921. This was the much-discussed case of Truax vs. Corrigan, involving the validity of an Arizona statute protecting strike pickets against criminal prosecution. The law was held unconstitutional by a vote of 5 to 4. Justices Holmes, Pitney, Clarke and Brandeis dissented.

Truax, the plaintiff in the appeal to the Supreme Court, ran a restaurant at Bisbee, Ariz. The defendants were cooks and waiters who, while on strike, paraded before his place of business, decrying it as unfair and urging people to stay away. As a result of this picketing his daily receipts were said to have dwindled from $156 to $75. The Arizona Supreme Court held that under the State law the pickets were immune from the criminal action brought by Truax.

Upsetting this finding, the United States Supreme Court, Chief Justice Taft speaking for the majority, held that the State law violated the fourteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution by depriving Truax of his profits, without due process of law.

In an interesting dissenting opinion, Justice Holmes uttered a warning against the "dangers of a delusive exactness in the application of the fourteenth amendment."

"There is nothing that I more deprecate," said Justice Holmes, "than the use of the fourteenth amendment beyond the absolute compulsion of its words to prevent the making of social experiments that an important part of the community desires, in the insulated chambers afforded by the several states, even though the experiments may seem futile or even noxious to me and to those whose judgment I most respect."

Hardwood Lumber Case

The lineup of the Court in deciding the hardwood lumber case, Dec. 19, 1921, illustrates the unsoundness of any division of its members into two rigid groups, liberal and conservative. To apply the phrase of Justice Holmes to the court, you cannot separate it into "insulated chambers." Holmes, Clarke and Brandeis are often found together, a liberal minority, against what appears to them a too narrow interpretation of the Constitution. They incline to the "latitudinarian" school. But they are not always of one mind—far from it.

Equally is it true that sharp division of opinion often prevails among the other members. This is true even with respect to cases involving a direct collision between property rights under the Constitution and human rights—cases in which, if the hard-and-fast classification of the Court as "liberals" and "conservatives" were valid, certain members might reasonably be expected always to be on one side and certain other members always on the other.

All generalities about the Supreme Court are dangerous. Nobody can say with certainty what the division will be on any given issue. One of the few things that can safely be said is that the odds favor Holmes joining Brandeis, or Brandeis joining Holmes, in dissent when dissent is given on any fundamental point of constitutional interpretation. Clarke must now be left out of the reckoning, since he has resigned from the Court.

"Open Competition Plan"

In the hardwood lumber case the opinion of the court was by Justice Clarke. Justices Holmes, Brandeis and McKenna dissented. The Navy Oil Inquiry Developing a Major Political Issue for 1924

Acrid Exchanges Between Factions of Senate Committee Indicate Loss of Teapot Dome Is Not Main Interest.

By Paul Y. Anderson,
(A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.)
(Copyright, 1923.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.

THE Senate inquiry into the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to the Sinclair interests by former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall has developed, with dramatic swiftness, into a bitter and sustained battle between hostile factions of the committee, one defending the transaction as necessary for the public good, the other attacking it as a betrayal of the national safety in behalf of private petroleum interests.

Across the acrid exchanges between members of the committee, across the relentless examination and cross-examination of witnesses, falls the shadow of the 1924 political campaign, and nobody makes any attempt to conceal the fact that one of the issues of that campaign is being created. Aside from the enormous importance of the transaction itself, the game is being played for huge political stakes. One might also conclude, after attending the hearings, that the political interest is the predominating one.

Among the startling facts thrown into high relief by the investigation thus far is the fact that, since the Harding administration took office, not Teapot Dome alone, but all five of the oil reserves previously set aside for the future emergency use of the United States navy, have passed out of the navy's hands, and are now being worked by commercial oil companies. This condition is the result of a complete reversal, within the last three years, of a policy initiated by President Roosevelt, and carried out, irrespective of party politics, by Presidents Taft and Wilson.

Fire From Three Sides.

Because of the fruit which this reversal has borne, the present administration finds itself under fire from three distinct quarters. First from friends of the navy, including a formidable number of navy officers; second, from the "progressive bloc" in the Senate, and third, from the Democrats, who have seized the opportunity and are fast making a partisan issue of it.

The committee conducting the inquiry has been, from the first day, sharply divided, with Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, and Senator Ladd, Nonpartisan Leaguer, of North Dakota, assailing the whole transaction from every angle, and with Chairman Smoot of Utah and Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, "regular" Republicans, eliciting testimony to show that the lease was necessary in the public interest and with Senator Jones, Democrat of New Mexico, preserving a more judicial attitude.

So tense do the participants become that senatorial reserve is shattered by angry eruptions, and hot words fly back and forth across the big table. For instance, Senator Walsh has just concluded examining a geologist whose testimony has been emphatically unfavorable to the lease. Chairman Smoot begins a cross-examination by asking a series of technical questions which he reads from a typewritten sheet. Walsh listens with increasing restiveness, and finally breaks in with:

"There is a phrase which I should regret to use in the chairman's presence, but when the chief of the Bureau of Mines, a Government bureau, is induced overnight to prepare a set of highly technical questions to be used here for the purpose of heckling a witness, it seems to me to smack of sharp practice."

Instantly the sparks fly. "The Senator from Utah," rejoins Smoot hotly, "is under no requirement to account for his conduct to the Senator from Montana. The Senator from Utah will continue to pursue his part in this investigation in any manner that he chooses."

Senator Walsh half rises from his chair, black eyes snapping, black mustache bristling.

"I said I hated to use the phrase, but it is plain that nothing else fits the case!" he shouts. "Sharp practice is the word!" and Preparing for Oil-Burners.

The brief but pregnant history of naval oil reserves begins with Admiral Dewey and President Roosevelt, both of whom foresaw that the battleships of the future would be oil-burners, and who foresaw, in consequence, a titanic struggle between great nations for possession of adequate reserves of the precious fluid. Roosevelt accordingly advocated a policy of providing reserves for the United States navy. Unlike some European nations that were compelled to play a hard and fast diplomatic game to obtain reserves which their own soil did not contain, the United States Government was in the happy position of possessing vast tracts of Government land known to contain oil.

Carrying out the policy, President Taft in 1912 withdrew from public entry 38,969 acres of oil-bearing Government land at Elk Hills, Cal., placed it under the control of the Navy Department, and designated it Naval Oil Reserve No. 1. In the same year he took the same action with regard to 29,341 acres at Buena Vista, Cal., and it was designated Reserve No. 2.

Subsequently occurred the development of the rich Salt Creek field in Wyoming, at the southern end of which was Teapot Dome, estimated by some geologists to contain the richest undeveloped oil deposit known to exist. It consisted of 9481 acres, Government land, and in 1915 President Wilson set it aside as Reserve No. 3. Moreover, in 1920, he established reserves 4 and 5, respectively, in Colorado and Utah. The latter two were "shale oil" deposits, producing a form of petroleum much used in Europe, where the supply is scarcer, but developed on a very limited scale in this country because of the cost of refining it.

From time to time there were reports of attempted encroachment upon the succulent resources of the reserves, and Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels was truculently zealous in safeguarding them. It is now stated, upon good authority, that when another member of the Wilson Cabinet became converted to a proposal to let a private company into one of the reserves, he received summary notice from the White House that such action would result in a prompt request for his resignation.

Today all five of the reserves are being operated by commercial oil companies. The annals of this transformation are short and fairly simple.

Two months after the Harding administration took office, control of the reserves was transferred by executive order from the Department of the Navy to the Department of the Interior, at the head of which was Secretary Fall, an outspoken foe of the conservation policies advocated by Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot. Following this transfer, strongly opposed by those officers of the navy who were consulted about it, things began to happen.

Under the previous administration the Southern Pacific Railroad had laid claim to every alternate section of Reserve No. 2. The claim was upheld in the lower courts. Application for right to drill the remaining half was made by the Honolulu Oil Co., and it was this proposal which President Wilson is said to have vetoed so summarily. Soon after the reserve came under Secretary Fall's control the Southern Pacific's claims

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Greatest Women.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WE were greatly interested in reading "another" list of the 10 greatest women in the world. With your approval we would revise the list just a little:

1. The mother who washes, dresses and cares for her children (poodles second; Fido can wait).
2. The weary mother who watches over a sick child (let the six reels on the silver screen flicker, we're building the fire).
3. The woman who administers to the comfort of her husband (and has sense enough to allow the other woman's husband undisturbed use of his house slippers).
4. The woman who visits the picture shows once a month (and stays at home the remainder of the time to put the kettle on).
5. The woman who watches over her 14-year-old daughter (secure in the knowledge that roadhouses are still open).
6. The woman who attends church regularly and contributes to its upkeep (no comments).
7. The woman who realizes the value of clean literature (with an added relish for genuine advertising).
8. The woman who sees art in a scrubbing brush and a bar of soap.
9. The woman who rarely gossips about her neighbors and always scents some good in everything (the janitor has keen ears).
10. The woman who can run her family affairs on schedule, and keep aloof from other families' affairs (you know what happened to Benedict Arnold).

The "other" list comes in second.

An infant does not always know what is good for it, because it cannot exercise mature judgment. Neither do some adults "over 30" for the same reason. Inspiration will never come without perspiration to help it along, and the fellow responsible for that "first" list must have "got" his inspiration from a secondhand bookstore on Washington avenue, and he ought to sweat for his error.

Now, for the list of the 10 greatest men! (Voice from the kitchenette: "There ain't no sech animal!") We give it up. J. L. WARHOVER.

Poisonous "Moonshine."

AMENT the editorial letter of Dr. J. B. H., under the caption, "Beware of Poisonous 'Moonshine,'" which appeared in your issue of Oct. 25. He's right. Pro or anti, either will admit that a broad publicity campaign, teaching the people the menace of moonshine, is indicated as purely a humanitarian measure.

The casualties and disasters due to autos and traffic conditions are but a tithe of the number traceable to illicit liquor. Still, we've got our "Don't Jaywalk" and "Cross Crossings Carefully" campaigns, with not one poster devoted to warning against the direful effects of moonshine.

I've been on the lookout for some development along this line, sponsored either by the Federal Government or the "Fourth Estate," and doubtlessly it will come. M. H. KAUER.

Why Should We Wait?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE mush that comes out of Washing labeled "political news" is very weak; both parties (or what is left of them) realize what ails the country, and both are hoping the country will recover in time to vote the party ticket. And while both are aware that the Volstead act, with its awful consequences, ought to be eliminated, yet neither party wants to say so; they seem to assume that both the old parties are strong and vigorous, but not strong enough to declare for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

As one who has labored many years in the Democratic fold, and has enjoyed many campaigns, I cannot help but suggest that the people be given a chance to elect a man who comes out squarely on the platform of liberty. Why should we wait for either of the old parties now trusting to luck? The majority of voters will most surely support a ticket which shall restore our rights, and in so doing shall abate the awful wave of crime which has followed the adoption of the Volstead plan. Let the free people of the land nominate a straight ticket declaring their tenets and then let us see what will happen. There is one man who can be nominated and most likely elected; the only man who has penetrated the monster in a vital spot; that man is Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, who has already shown the way.

The Volstead act only affects the really tired worker who was much refreshed in the past by a good draught of beer; the rich people are not affected and would not know there was such a thing as the Volstead act were it not that prices are much higher. No law ever made so many people criminals as this one has.

Let us begin and get in shape to elect a man of the people and both the old parties will be glad to act with us. And as we restore personal rights, we shall also restore respect for law. Autocratic orders are what we are enjoying now.

ALL THE KING'S HORSES AND ALL THE KING'S MEN.

The Chicago Tribune recently published an editorial, under the quoted heading, which the Post-Dispatch considers an important contribution to the discussion of an issue that must honestly and courageously be met. The Tribune's editorial follows:

Mayor Dever says that Chicago is the dryest city in the United States and that before his administration is over it will be entirely dry. He says that he has 7000 policemen and that it would be nonsense to say he could not enforce the law.

Mr. Dever had his picture taken with Lloyd George. The picture was printed in the newspapers and a great many people saw it. Some may have noticed that the Mayor's jaw was prominent. It is a noticeable jaw, square, determined, set and decisive. The notable thing about Lloyd George was his dome. His jaw was not weak by any means, but it was part of a dome. Mr. Dever's dome did not overshadow his jaw. Lloyd George's did.

The observer might reason that Mr. Dever's jaw was not always going to take counsel with his dome, but that Lloyd George would never set his jaw until the dome had been quite convinced that in human affairs the set jaw would be able to hang on to whatever it was set in. Lloyd George has seen logic pushed out of line by human elements. He has seen the limitations of 7000 policemen, particularly in Ireland.

Mr. Dever's antecedents are Irish. His people had the policemen set on them. The police were on them for centuries. The Irish had a conviction that they ought not to take laws from London. The police had orders to make them, but they didn't, and the British police are gone now. They are back in London. The Irish were a small minority in the population of the British islands, but now they are getting their laws from their own Parliament.

Prohibition is the conviction of many people in the United States. It is not the conviction of a majority of the people in the city in which Mr. Dever's 7000 police operate. A year ago the people of the city voted on a question of public policy, for or against beer and wine. The vote for beer and wine was 493,000. The vote against was 110,000, nearly five to one against.

There are nearly a half-million people in Chicago whose mother tongue was Germanic. Nearly all of them have a profound conviction against prohibition. A citizen who would give his children beer will not have a prohibition law on his conscience. He will regard a law which deprives him of beer as fanatical intolerance. He thinks it is wicked. He does not regard it as a crime to avoid it.

There are 166,000 people in Chicago whose mother tongue was Italian or Greek. Not one per cent of them can believe that wine is bad morally or can be made bad by law. All they can believe is that the law is tyrannical. The 7000 policemen would have a busy time in Little Italy when nature goes to work on the grapes. There are nearly a half-million people of Slavic and Lettic stocks. They have no conviction for prohibition. The 200,000 persons of Scandinavian stock may have a little conviction, but it is not much. The Ghetto has no respect for it. The law itself allows the Jew his wine.

English and Celtic is the mother tongue of a little over 18 per cent of the people. The Irish are not prohibitionists. What politics regards as the American vote is in this 18 per cent. In Chicago it has lived in Hyde Park, Englewood, Lake View, Rogers Park, etc. It has been prohibition. It has voted saloons out of its neighborhoods. It is not all dry by any means, but more than any other group in the city composition it has been antisaloon and it regards liquor as a moral evil. It is powerful. It probably is a large part of Mayor Dever's conscience now. An American can drink and yet be a prohibitionist and it isn't necessary to regard him as a hypocrite, either.

Mr. Dever and his 7000 policemen are endeavoring to make a city which is at least five to one convinced of the unjustness of prohibition law subscribe to it, accept it and obey it. That may be his duty, as he sees it, but it cannot be done. As an Irishman he must know it cannot be done. He has a nonenforceable law on his hands. This is where the jaw of Mr. Dever guides him in one direction whereas the dome of Lloyd George would lead him in another. When a law not only does not have the support of the conscience of a people but when it also is regarded by them as tyrannical and unjust it cannot be enforced.

Mr. Dever with his set jaw is courageous. If he had any political ambitions he has sacrificed them. If Chicago had a recall law he might be recalled next month. When his term has expired he will be succeeded by someone acceptable to Tony Cermak. Mr. Cermak, leading wet, will say that the man is all right and that will be enough for the majority of Chicago voters. It probably will be a very bad thing. Mr. Dever is a good Mayor. His successor may be awful—but he will be wet.

The Mayor knows the history of the land from which his ancestors came. He also knows the history of the country of which he is a citizen. He knows that the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments are in the Constitution. The United States sent an army into the South to support those amendments and failed. If it had succeeded it would have ruined the white race south of the Potomac, but it failed. The people of the South were prostrate. They did not have enough horses to plow their fields. Their officers had hardly enough clothes. Their money was gone. Their fields were rank. Their houses had fallen in and there were blackened paths of defeat cut in wide belts across their land.

Their machinery of living was gone. Their workers were emancipated. The South was flat on its back and the North, to make the freedman a voter, divided the prostrate country into military districts and sent the army in under great American Generals to rule.

The carpetbagger followed. The blacks arose under the bayonets. States were swamped in political debauchery and ignorance and for a while the blacks ruled. The amendments remain in the Constitution. They are not effective in the South. The army has gone. The whites are running the elections and the government. Negro franchise is as dead in the South as British rule is in Ireland.

In logic we must assert that the right of franchise guaranteed under the Constitution of a democracy must be protected, even if the army of the United States has to camp in the disputed territory forever. Else how can the democracy exist with its principles flaunged? Lloyd George would tell you that this is precisely one of the cases in which logic must bend and twist and come out a long way from the straight line of its destination.

Mr. Dever's 7000 policemen face a city which rejects the law they try to enforce. The city will elude the enforcement. Mr. Dever might double the number of police and they might be scrupulous, even fanatic prohibitionists, and they would fail.

People resent oppression. In cities such as Chicago they do not regard prohibition as law but as oppression, which was the Irish view of it, which was the Southern view of it, and which will always be the view of it when it does not represent the convictions of people but is imposed upon what they regard as their inherent rights. True law does not do that, and although such law may be broken by individuals it is not long defied by whole peoples successfully and despite authority.

St. Louis, like Chicago, is wet. The sentiment of St. Louis, like that of Chicago, can be found in our racial composition. In our population of 800,000 it is estimated that 300,000 are of German antecedents. They are against prohibition. There are 200,000 people of Irish descent in St. Louis, of whom, perhaps, not more than 5 per cent are for prohibition. We have an Italian colony of, say, from 10,000 to 15,000, who are opposed to prohibition. The French descendants of the pioneer St. Louisans are antiprohibitionists. The lately arriving Greeks are wet. There is no conviction for prohibition among the Jews of St. Louis, though there is a mild disposition on the part of some of their spokesmen to acquiesce in the custom because it is law. Whatever prohibition sentiment exists here is found in our citizens of English extraction, but here, as in Chicago, such citizens preach prohibition more than they practice it.

St. Louis has always voted wet. The last expression of this character was in the election of Nov. 5, 1918, on the proposed State constitutional amendment "Prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicating liquors except for medicinal, scientific or mechanical purposes." The vote was: No, 103,736; Yes, 14,510. Rejected by more than seven to one.

That is why prohibition is not enforceable in St. Louis. It never can be enforced so long as this sentiment prevails and so long as our Government is a government of public opinion—not by all the King's horses and all the King's men.

INCREASING THE FOOD SUPPLY.

Experiments by scientists connected with the Westinghouse Electric Co. have proved that the growth and maturity of vegetables can be hastened several weeks by growing them under electric light. The plants are made to do "overtime," being allowed only an hour's rest in the evening and an hour or two more before daylight. On cloudy days the electric lights supply the lacking sunlight, and no time is lost. It is evident that with this stimulation more crops can be grown in a given time, thus adding materially to the food supply.

Another method of bringing about something of the same kind is the recent discovery that electric lights suspended a few inches above water in which fish can be raised will expedite the growth and maturity of the fish, by inducing swarms of insects to swarm around the lights, within reach of the fish. This system can be carried on all summer long. Every pond can thus be used to raise carp and other fish.

With all this aid on the part of science and invention, famines ought to became a thing of the past. And then, and then—if we could but have good cooks. "God sends meat, and the devil sends cooks," quoth John Taylor. But nowadays we have cooking schools. Let them get busier, for the need will become greater.

The increasing fears of the isolationists mean that they are getting weaker and weaker.

DARKNESS, COWL AND GOWN.

Gov. Parker of Louisiana sounds a portentous note when he publicly declares that all other political issues in his State are dwarfed by that of klan or antiklan. It is portentous because what now applies to Louisiana already applies in certain other states and, if not blocked by public officials of courage and patriotism, may apply eventually to the entire nation. In his New Orleans speech the Governor struck the heart of the issue when he said:

When we permit the supergovernment, working under cover of darkness, cowl and gown, to supersede the duly constituted authorities, and to sow seeds of hate and religious intolerance, we are tearing down the pillars of modern civilization, which act, sooner or later, is bound to mean the crumbling of American institutions and American ideals.

It is the secrecy of the klan that constitutes its menace. When dealing with the klan we are dealing with anonymous, irresponsible government, a government which expects to escape the consequences of its acts by keeping secret the identity of those who perpetrate them. Race prejudice and religious intolerance are reprehensible enough, but they could not be expressed in acts of crime and violence were it not for the cowardly mask, the criminal evasion of responsibility. The law cannot punish what it cannot identify. That is why the klan is a secret, masked, anonymous organization.

But the last link in the final subjugation and emasculation of legal government will be forged when the klan, either by threat, persuasion or election, secures the adhesion of public officials to its organization. Then the nonklan citizen is helpless. He may be attacked by anonymous mobs, but he will have no government, no law, for defense. He may obey all the laws of morality and the Constitution, yet if he expresses disbelief in the principles of the klan there is no responsibility in klan government that would be bound to respect his rights or save him from flogging, mutilation or murder.

When Gov. Parker, then, declares that all other political issues in his State are dwarfed by that of klan or antiklan and that invisible supergovernment sooner or later is bound to mean the crumbling of American institutions and American ideals he is not indulging in idle rhetoric. The issue as between Constitution and invisible empire is pretty sure to monopolize and contaminate the politics of the nation unless the national, state and local committees of both political parties agree in repudiating the klan and admitting none of its representatives to nomination for office. A vote for the klan is a vote against the Constitution of the United States, and the nomination of a klansman for public office is a blow at the civil rights of every citizen in the jurisdiction.

PANETELA.

YES, Luella,
Very slowly
Things are coming
To their own;
Day by day
The ray of promise
In the somber
Sky has grown.
What though France
Has played the gunman
And the Germans
Will not pay,
Elemental things
Like commerce
Somehow surely
Make their way.

Even on the farm,
My dearie,
People have begun
To breathe;
Think of corn
Around a dollar
Just as things
Began to seethe!
Speaking of
The celebrated Psychological Cut-in,
Just imagine
Magnus Johnson,
Mouth wide open
To begin!

So it goes,
My sweet Luella:
Cotton seldom
Was so high;
Nor is there
A smokestack scarcely
But is blackening
The sky.
Folks preparing
Their orations
Over this
And that distress
As to most things
Worth surviving,
Seem to need
Another guess.

What it all
Comes to, Luella,
Is that man's Old lucky star
Always extricates
Him lastly
Out of whatsoever
War.
While it may Look like his finish
In the tumult
And the din,
At the end
He ever turns up
Just about
As he went in.

So he will
This time,
My girlie,
Just as oftentimes
Of old;
Else the world,
Depopulated,
Lay by this time
Calm and cold.
Scorn or embrace
Evolution,
As you
Peradventure will,
Man, the champion
Survivor,
Is a damned
Hard brute to kill.

OUR CURRENT HUMOR.

Monroe County (Mo.) Appeal.

The prohibition joke has gone to such an extreme that a preacher cannot carry the family lard pail into a store without provoking a lot of funny remarks about peddling home brew. The thing simply has gone to the nation's brain. People who never took a drink in their lives joke continually about how dry they are. Every keg or cask that is hauled up a street puts every funnybone in sight on a rampage. The driver of a water-wagon is pestered out of his senses by local wits. Women, buying yeast cakes with which to inflict home-made lightbread on a helpless flock, are joked about raisins and beer. Men who enter drug stores with prescriptions in their hands must run the gauntlet of funny remarks. People who used to agitate for prohibition are credited with having cellars full of wine. The joke is considered especially rich when it is founded on fact, as too often is the case. The only good purpose that is served by all this levity about a serious matter is that it distracts the popular mind from ills which otherwise would harass it and forces millions of grouchy people into undertaking lighter roles. It will not be so funny, however, if it robs liquor of its evil repute and causes an army of young people to cultivate a habit for the stuff everybody is joking about.

Missouri has decided to issue simpler tax blanks for wage earners, which is an excellent illustration of locking the barn after the horse is gone. We have by this time made expert accountants and mathematicians of everybody, with the consequence that everybody is a financier and what were formerly the artifices of a few people are the artifices of all. This boosts the cost of living day by day, and goodness only knows what the end will be. The State can issue simpler tax forms if it wants to, but it might have thought of this before hodcarriers came to understand calculus. They are already out for $1.50 an hour in the spring, which fairly approximates what financiers expected when we had only a few of them down on Fourth street.

HOURS WE SPENT.

HOURS we spent alone were tinged with magic
And words we spoke were always more than speech.
Hours and words we saved for one another,
Dreams were the jewels each gave to each.

Our fingers touched, our hands clasped, and were lyric
With that high song that coursed in all our veins;
Words that we spoke were dear, yet it was silence
Inscrutable, that bound us with dim chains.

Hours we spent together in brave laughter,
Giving our hearts as only lovers could;
Pouring our lives like wine into a chalice,
We drank it deep, and found it good!

MILITARY DICTATORSHIPS.

WILLIS FLETCHER JOHNSON in North American Review.

NOT the least impressive and suggestive features of the European situation today is the dominance of military or semimilitary dictatorships in most of the countries bordering on the Mediterranean Sea. In Turkey, Kemal; in Greece, a group of army officers; in Italy, Signor Mussolini and his Black Shirts; in Spain, Marshal Primo de Rivera. We may not reckon it a repudiation of parliamentary government, but at least it seems like a rebuke of some of the parliamentary methods of late years, and perhaps an arraignment of the system under which a political Legislature is made supreme over the executive and judicial departments, and a turning toward a system under which the latter departments shall be co-ordinate and independent, as they are in the United States. With such an inclination manifest in Europe, there is a touch of irony in the agitation in the Philippines for the abandonment of the American system there and the substitution of the European in its place.

HARD WORK AND GOOD BEHAVIOR.

From the Boston Transcript.

A GENTLEMAN who was to address some young people at Springfield asked President Coolidge for a message to give them and, as he had a right, suggested a definition of a Christian. But he went somewhat further and offered the definition; or at least this is the account given to the press. It was a perfectly orthodox definition, but it was, so to speak, one that took for granted perhaps a higher degree of right thinking than all of us have attained, yet that one must attain some day or other. The President, who is a master of a brief and pregnant style, but is not one that would force it upon others, smiled and cleared the air at the same time by saying: "You can tell them to work hard and behave themselves." Some would say that here was Yankee shrewdness, and some would hail it as a sound gospel, but those who know what life's hard problems are and what we all must do for our country and for our fellows, will be obliged to Mr. Coolidge for a saying that contains a maxim which should be preached in the hearts and minds of all of us. The President once more has intimated that the truth needs no embellishment.

OUR GOLDEN AGE.

JAMES HARVEY ROBINSON in November Harper's.

WE live in an age in which the possibilities of change have suddenly been greatly enhanced, in which the old moral and religious restraints have been greatly relaxed; in which routine and habit are violently disturbed. Modern means of communication alone have opened up such possibilities of varied human intercourse that it seems slavery to be forced to continue to act on the former incapacities of mankind. We can move about four or five times as fast as our ancestors; all parts of the world are relatively accessible with a fair degree of comfort; we can send word to our fellow being in various specific informal, and inexpensive ways. We are moreover relieved from many of the detailed labors once necessary to supply our daily needs. A hundred years ago a country family had to spend several hours looking after its own milk supply; days would be consumed in preparing food material, garments, candles, or soap, now to be bought in a few hours by an excursion in a Ford to the nearest store. The hours of labor are being steadily reduced and new problems of free time emerge.

decision was on the "open competition plan," by which manufacturers of one-third of the hardwood output of the United States through a central agency, exchanged details of their business. The Court held that the manufacturers had restrained competition and thereby violated the anti-trust act.

Members of the Supreme Court are its severest critics. The judgment in the lumber case appealed to Justice Holmes as "surprising in a country of free speech that affects to regard education and knowledge as desirable."

It will be found that Justice Holmes, in his opinions, nearly always strikes down to the roots of a question, in the simplest possible way. In that respect he is the Borah of the Surpeme Court. But he is much more of a stylist than Borah, or, indeed, than any Senator. He can stand quite firmly on his own literary legs, without any support from the fame of his distinguished father, the Oliver Wendell Holmes of the "Breakfast Table." Those who want to sample the son's style, without reading Supreme Court reports, can do so in his "Collected Legal Papers."

Fixed Resale Price Case.

Another trade decision that attracted wide attention was that of the Supreme Court in the case of the Federal Trade Commission against the Beech Nut Packing Co. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the Court Jan. 3, 1922. Justices Holmes, McKenna and Brandeis were associated in one dissenting opinion, while Justice McReynolds objected separately.

The Court announced the important doctrine that a trader does not violate the anti-trust laws by refusing to sell his goods to merchants who decline to observe his fixed resale prices. It was further held, however, that by contracts or combinations, express or implied, he may not unduly hinder the flow of interstate commerce.

Justice Holmes, having in mind, obviously, the large number of occasions on which he had differed with the majority of his colleagues, prefaced his dissent in this case with a graceful apologetic gesture. "There are obvious limits of propriety," he said, "to the persistent expression of opinions that do not command the agreement of the court." He proceeded to say, with his customary avoidance of legal jargon, that he couldn't understand the conclusion that the packing company's conduct had a dangerous tendency unduly to hinder competition. Nor could he understand to whom the respondent's conduct was unfair.

St. Louis Liquor Transfer Case.

A St. Louis case of general interest under the prohibition laws was that of Ohio vs. Moore, then Collector of Internal Revenue, decided Jan. 30, 1922. The opinion of the court was by Justice McKenna. Justice McReynolds dissented. It was decided that the owner of whisky stored in a bonded warehouse could not legally obtain its release, upon payment of the tax, for transportation to his dwelling.

Justices Brandeis, Holmes and Clarke were united in opposition to a decision of Feb. 27, 1922, which declared unconstitutional a grain grading and inspection statute of North Dakota. The Supreme Court ruled that the law was an unwarranted interference with interstate commerce.

"A state," said Justice Day in the majority opinion, "cannot lay burdens on interstate commerce in the guise of police regulations to protect the welfare of its people."

Justice Brandeis in his dissent concurred in by Justices Holmes and Clarke, said: "To strike down this inspection law, instead of limiting the sphere of its operation, seems to me a serious curtailment of the functions of the State and leaves the farmers of North Dakota defenseless against what are asserted to be persistent, palpable frauds."

In Leach vs. Carlile, the court held, Feb. 27, 1922, in an opinion by Justice Clarke, that a decision of the Postmaster General ruling certain advertising matter out of the mails as fraudulent, was not subject to court review, when the decision was fairly arrived at and supported by substantial evidence. The court refused therefore to enjoin the enforcement of a postal fraud order. Justices Holmes and Brandeis dissented.

"If the execution of this law (the law giving the Postmaster General the right to issue fraud orders) does not abridge freedom of speech," said Justice Holmes, "I do not quite see what could be said to do so. . . . The First Amendment in terms forbids such control of the post as was exercised here."

Victory for the Liberal School.

A victory for the liberal school of thought was seen in the decision of the court, March 20, 1922, upholding the validity of the New York housing laws. The opinion was by Justice Clarke. Justices McKenna, Van Devanter and McReynolds dissented.

There are no more conservative members of the court, as the opinions in many cases show, than Justices Van Devanter and McReynolds. They are as likely to be found in conjunction as Brandeis and Holmes. The two pairs may be said to represent opposite poles of the court.

The court held in the housing case that the due process clause of the Constitution is not violated by a statute permitting the defense, in an action for rent, to urge that the rent agreed upon is unjust and unreasonable.

Case of Death of Two Boys.

One of the most interesting cases decided by the court in a long time, as well as one of the most surprising in the line-up it produced, was that of the United Zinc and Chemical Company against Britt, decided March 27, 1922. The company owned a tract of land near Iola, Kan., on which was an abandoned cellar containing water clear in appearance but dangerously poisoned by chemicals. Two boys, 8 and 11 years old, entered the water, were poisoned and died. Courts below held that the company was liable to the father for damages.

This finding was upset by the Supreme Court, which held that the children were trespassers. The opinion of the majority was by the liberal, Justice Holmes, while Justice Brandeis was aligned on the same side. The dissenters were Chief Justice Taft and Justices Clark and Day.

Said Justice Holmes in the decision for the company: "There can be no general duty on the part of a landowner to keep his land safe for children, or even free from hidden dangers, if he has not directly or by implication invited them or licensed them to come there."

Here was a case of property against human rights, and Holmes and Brandeis were with the conservative majority.

Justice Clarke sharply attacked the decision, holding that the court, in applying the "hard," or "Draconian," doctrine, instead of the "human" doctrine, to an "attractive nuisance" case, had departed from principles that formerly guided it.

"Believing as I do," said Justice Clarke, "that the doctrine • • • giving weight to the instincts and habitual conduct of children of tender years is a sound doctrine, calculated to make men more reasonably considerate of the safety of the children of their neighbors, than will the harsh rule which makes trespassers of little children which the court is now substituting for it, I cannot share in setting aside the verdict of the jury in this case, approved by the judgment of two courts."

"Infamous Punishment."

The case of the United States vs. Moreland, decided April 17, 1922, brought the pronouncement from a majority of the court that imprisonment at hard labor is an "infamous punishment" in the meaning of the fifth amendment, and that prosecution for a crime so punishable must be by indictment or presentment of a grand jury. The Court's opinion was stated by Justice McKenna. There were three in dissent—Chief Justice Taft and Brandeis and Holmes.

Moreland had been sentenced to six months in the workhouse under the District of Columbia code for neglecting to support his minor children. His attorneys contended that his constitutional rights had been violated, since he had been made to answer the charge without preliminary grand jury indictment. The District Court of Appeals sustained this view and reversed the judgment of the lower court. The Supreme Court upheld the reversal.

Justice Brandeis, for the dissenters, maintained that the term "infamous punishment" is one "obviously inviting interpretation in harmony with conditions and opinion prevailing from time to time," and that "commitment to Occuquan (the district workhouse) for a short term for nonsupport of minor children is certainly not an infamous punishment."

United Shoe Machinery Case.

A new chapter was added to the long litigation between the Government and the United Shoe Machinery Corporation on April 17, 1922, when the court affirmed a judgment of the Eastern Missouri Federal Court, enjoining the company from the use of certain restrictive clauses in leases of shoe machinery in interstate commerce. The opinion was by Justice Day. Justice McKenna dissented. Justice Brandeis took no part in the case.

Sustaining an order issued by the Federal Trade Commission against the Winstead Hosiery Co., the Supreme Court, April 24, 1922, branded as unfair the company's practice of selling goods made only partly of wool under such labels as "natural merino" and "natural wool." Such labeling, it was held, had the effect of deceiving a large portion of the buying public and was unfair to manufacturers, who branded their product truthfully. Justice Brandeis spoke for the majority of the court. Justice McReynolds dissented.

In Stafford vs. Wallace, decided May 1, 1922, the Court upheld the constitutionality of the packers and stockyards act of 1921, by which Congress provided a means of regulating the business of the packers in interstate commerce. Chief Justice Taft delivered the opinion in favor of the law. Justice McReynolds dissented. Justice Day did not participate.

Child Labor Law Decision.

The highly contentious issue raised by the efforts of Congress to stop child labor was decided May 15, 1922, when the Court held that the law invoking the taxing power of the Government to that end was unconstitutional. The opinion was by Chief Justice Taft. Justice Clarke dissented.

"It is the high duty and function of this Court," said Chief Justice Taft, "in cases regularly brought to its bar, to decline to recognize or enforce seeming laws of Congress dealing with subjects not entrusted to Congress, but left or committed by the supreme law of the land to the control of the states. We cannot avoid the duty, even though it require us to refuse to give effect to legislation designed to promote the highest good."

The grain future trading act of August, 1921, was held unconstitutional in a decision of May 15, 1922, on the ground that it, like the child labor law, exceeded the taxing power of Congress. Chief Justice Taft rendered the opinion, from which there was no dissent.

One of the noteworthy decisions under the Volstead law was that of May 15, 1922, in which a majority of the Court ruled that liquor could not be shipped in bond from a foreign port through a portion of the United States to another foreign port. Justice Holmes gave the opinion. Justices McKenna, Day and Clarke dissented.

The long-pending suit of the Government against the Southern Pacific Railway Co. to compel dissolution of its merger with the Central Pacific, was decided adversely to the railroad on May 29, 1922. The Court held that the Southern Pacific violated the antitrust laws by swallowing the smaller line. Justice Day spoke for the Court. Justice McKenna dissented, while Justices Brandeis and McReynolds had no part in the case.

Coronado Coal Case.

The celebrated Coronado coal case was decided June 5, 1922. There was no dissent from the opinion of the court given by Chief Justice Taft. The Court voiced the significant doctrine that the labor unions, even though unincorporated, are suable and their strike funds subject to execution.

In this case an Arkansas jury had given a verdict of $200,000 damages for the alleged destruction of property of the Coronado company by strikers. This amount was trebled by the trial court under the anti-trust laws, and interest and counsel fees were added, so that by the time the suit was finally argued before the Supreme Court the judgment, which was against the United Mine Workers of America, stood at $750,000.

Notwithstanding the finding of the Supreme Court as to the liability of unions to be sued, the Court found in the case at issue that the evidence was not sufficient to convict the miners of a conspiracy to restrain interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman act. It therefore reversed the monetary judgment.

The general principles announced in the Coronado case have evoked strong criticism of the Court from the American Federation of Labor. These principles, according to a statement by the federation, were not contemplated by Congress and were "unquestionably inspired to devise additional repressive measures with which to harass and check the trade union movement."

The case has been argued at various times by two former candidates for the presidency—Secretary of State Hughes and Judge Alton B. Parker, both on the side of the mine workers.

The second trial of the case before Judge Pollock at Fort Smith last week, resulted in the court's ordering a verdict for the mine union on the ground that the plaintiffs had failed to establish a case under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. The defect lay in the failure to prove that the acts complained of were done with the knowledge of the International officers of the union. The national organization not having cognizance of them, the federal courts have no jurisdiction, according to Judge Pollock's ruling. A motion for a new trial having been overruled, the coal company plans to carry the case to the Court of Appeals. It seems likely that the case again will find its way to the Supreme Court.

Missouri Service Letter Law.

In the case of the Prudential Insurance Co. vs. Cheek, which came up from the St. Louis Court of Appeals, the Supreme Court on June 5, 1922, upheld the service letter law of Missouri, which requires a corporation, on request, to furnish to any employe leaving its service a letter setting forth the nature of his service and the cause of his leaving. This law was declared not to interfere with the constitutional guaranty of freedom of contract.

The court in the same opinion ruled it was unlawful for several insurance companies having a monopoly of a line of insurance in a city, to enter an agreement that none would employ within two years any man who had left the service of either of the others. Justice Pitney read the opinion of the court in this case. Chief Justice Taft and Justices Van Devanter and McReynolds dissented.

The court held unanimously, Nov. 13, 1922, that a Japanese born in Japan could not become a citizen of the United States. Justice Sutherland delivered the opinion.

The doctrine was established in United States vs. Lanza, Dec. 11, 1922, that conviction of violating the prohibition laws in a State court is not a bar to prosecution for the same offense in a Federal court. Chief Justice Taft gave the opinion of the court. No disagreement was expressed.

Magazine publishers, especially, were interested in the decision of Jan. 8, 1923, in the case of the Federal Trade Commission against the Curtis Publishing Co. Justice McReynolds delivered the opinion, in which the Court upset an order of the trade commission directing the publishing company to stop entering into agreements prohibiting distributors from handling the magazines of other publishers. The Court saw nothing unfair in a publisher's arranging with an agent to distribute his own magazines exclusively. A "doubting" opinion, concurred in by Justice Brandeis, was given by Chief Justice Taft.

Arkansas Habeas Corpus Case.

Moore vs. Dempsey, a case provocative of much discussion, was an appeal from an order of the Federal Court of the Eastern Arkansas District, dismissing on a demurrer a petition for habeas corpus filed by five negroes who had been sentenced to death in Phillips County, Ark. The ground of the petition was that these men had been hurried to conviction in a State court under the pressure of a mob.

Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the majority. Justices McReynolds and Sutherland dissented. It was held that under the circumstances stated, the District Court, instead of dismissing the negroes' plea on a demurrer, should have undertaken to find out whether the facts alleged were true. The order of the District Court was therefore reversed and the cause sent back to that Court for a hearing.

Singh Thind, decided Feb. 19, 1923, the Court held that a high-caste Hindu of full Indian blood is not a white person in the meaning of the naturalization statute. The opinion was by Justice Sutherland. None dissented.

By a close decision, the Court on April 9, 1923, invalidated the minimum wage law of the District of Columbia, holding that it interfered with freedom of contract. Justice Sutherland gave the opinion of the majority. Chief Justice Taft and Justice Sanford dissented in one opinion and Justice Holmes in another. Justice Brandeis, because of his advocacy of minimum wage legislation while a practicing lawyer, took no part in the determination of the case.

Assuming Justice Brandeis to have been favorable to the district law, the decision was virtually one of the 5-to-4 findings which have so often characterized important suits.

The validity of contested portions of the grain futures act, with which Congress replaced a similar act previously declared unconstitutional, was upheld in a decision handed down April 16, 1923. There was no dissent from the finding as announced by Chief Justice Taft.

Liquor at Sea Case.

On April 30 last the Court decided the internationally important case of the Cunard and other steamship lines against the Secretary of the Treasury, growing out of the seizure of liquor stores on foreign vessels in the territorial waters of the United States. The Court ruled that the Volstead act prohibits all ships from having liquor, even as sealed stores, within these waters, extending three miles out from the coast line.

At the same time, the ruling was given that American ships outside the three-mile limit are not subject to the prohibition act. The opinion of the Court was by Justice Van Devanter. Justices McReynolds and Sutherland dissented.

A Missouri case of wide import, centering about a rate reduction order of the State Public Service Commission against the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., brought forth widely varying opinions as to the proper method of fixing the value of a public utility for rate-making purposes. The Court reversed the Missouri Supreme Court, which had sustained the commission. The valuation placed on the company's property in Missouri was held to have been too low. Weight should have been given, the Court said, to the "reproduction value" of the property.

The judgment of the Court was stated by Justice McReynolds, May 21. Justice Brandeis concurred in the judgment of reversal, but in a closely reasoned opinion characterized the "reproduction value" theory as legally and economically unsound. Justice Holmes expressed agreement with Justice Brandeis.

Teaching of Foreign Language.

In Meyer vs. Nebraska, decided June 4, 1923, the Court nullified a Nebraska statute forbidding the teaching of any language other than English below the eighth-school grade. The issue immediately involved was the teaching of German in a Lutheran school in Nebraska. The Court's opinion was given by Justice McReynolds.

Similar cases affecting Iowa and Ohio laws directed against the teaching of German and other foreign languages were decided on the same day, on the authority of the ruling in the Nebraska case. Surprisingly enough, dissent in these cases was expressed by Justice Holmes, who said he was unable to find that the Constitution of the United States inhibited the experiment of limiting the teaching of languages in the lower grades to English. He conceived that the statutes in question were in harmony with the laudable common desire that all citizens of the United States should speak a common tongue. Justice Sutherland concurred in the views of Justice Holmes.

Industrial Relations Act.

The Kansas Court of Industrial Relations act, which organized labor has been fighting ever since its passage, was weakened by a decision of the court, June 11 last, when the law was held unconstitutional in so far as it permitted the fixing of wages. This section was declared to be violative of the Fourteenth Amendment. There was no dissent from the opinion of the court as handed down by Chief Justice Taft. The American Federation of Labor hailed the decision as one that took away "the very life blood" of the law.

LLOYD GEORGE, AS DINER, PLANS AN 18-PLATE COURSE

in a remote room he might give the Welshman the hardest run for dinner honors since the days when Paddy stole the leg of beef. But Chief Justice Taft remained true to his traditions and ate sparingly, Fletcherizing in the morsels of green turtle in the soup.

In reporting a banquet no reporter has yet given proper attention to the celery. There is always a great amount of this shrubbery lying about at state dinners, plentifully interlarded with olives. One wonders when it is proper to attack these. Since there is never a place for olive pits they are dismissed without further thought. But the celery is always encumbering the table and there is nothing to do save to eat it away.

If the manners of No. 10 Downing street are still followed by Lloyd George, one would say that the thing to do is to attack it briskly while reading the menu. Lloyd George certainly falls upon it with a vengeance. And he does nothing by halves, not even celery. The ex-Premier takes a stalk of celery between the thumb and forefinger of his right hand (other fingers of the hand extended and joined) and addresses it in perpendicular to the line of his mouth. He then thrusts it forward firmly to his teeth, clipping it into quarter-of-an-inch sections with a rapid rotary motion. Judging from only one observation—which is not scientific but must serve in this instance—a British statesman eats from 12 to 15 stalks of celery of an evening.

Lloyd George is very fond of fish. When the fish came (and it was trout, mind you), he was all of an eagerness to estimate its excellence. Indeed, he had loitered a trifle through the tomato surprise and had been eagerly talking to Secretary Weeks about the battlefield of Gettysburg, where they had visited that afternoon. Meanwhile Lloyd George pursued his fish with the eagerness of a man casting for the first time with a new and marvelously touted fly. Indeed, if the place had not been one of such excessive and incredible distinction, perhaps the Welshman, taking hopes of Mr. Weeks' rapturous condition, might have eaten the War Secretary's fish also. However, the waiter carried it out untouched while he may have been pondering the question.

If the reader thinks that David Lloyd George is not a polished trencherman, and that he has eaten thus far with an uncouth stance, he is misled. The statesman simply has the Englishman's savoir-faire at meat, with the large and spacious gusto of his race. Certainly he no more soiled his hands than did the Nun in Chaucer's story of the greatest dinner of literature save one. When the entree came around, and it was filet, he seemed to flag a little after having gone this far without so much as smelling the aroma of some Waterloo port. But he took were declared valid by him, the decision of the lower court being permitted to stand without an appeal being taken, the Honolulu's application was reopened and granted, and other leases and grants were made to private companies.

Navy Oil Inquiry Developing Major Political Issue for 1924

Likewise, under the Wilson administration, claim had been laid to a part of Reserve No. 1 by the Standard Oil Co. The claim was resisted by the Government, the Department of Justice filing a suit. Under the Harding administration the suit was dropped. Meantime it was discovered that this reserve was being partially drained by wells located on adjacent territory, and to combat the drainage it was decided to drill and operate "offset" wells along the boundary of the reserve opposite the wells draining it—a common device among competing oil producers. A contract to drill the "offset" wells was granted to the Doheny company. Then the Doheny company was permitted to drill other wells within the reserve that were not "offset" wells, until today it has leases covering five-sixths of the entire reserve.

The Teapot Dome Lease.

Of the three reserves not "shale reserves," there remained Teapot Dome, the richest of all, estimated by geologists under the preceding administration to contain 30,000,000 barrels of oil. The first public intimation that it had gone the way of the others occurred in the Senate in April, 1922, when Senator Kendrick of Wyoming announced he had made the discovery that Secretary Fall had secretely entered into a contract with the Sinclair interests, under which the reserve would be drilled and operated. Supported by Senator La Follette, Kendrick declared that no bids had been asked for, that the terms of the lease were highly unfavorable to the Government, and they charged, moreover, that, owing to the secrecy of the transaction, trading in Sinclair stocks had netted those "on the inside" profits totaling $30,000,000. In response to the demands of La Folette and Kendrick, Secretary Fall transmitted to the President a record of the proceedings and copies of the contract.

Under its terms the whole of Teapot Dome was leased to the Mammoth Oil Co., a corporation recently organized by Sinclair. In return the company was required to pay the Government royalties, ranging from 12½ to 50 per cent of the oil produced, according to its quality—or, rather, to deliver to the Government refined fuel oil equivalent to the royalties, and to provide storage facilities for the fuel oil at stations along the coast designated by the navy, and, in addition, to construct a pipe line that would connect with existing pipe lines in Missouri, there being no pipe line from the Salt Creek field.

Demand for Inquiry.

The information instead of satisfying Kendrick and La Follette, caused them to demand a committee investigation of the transaction. They declared that the contract had been made in violation of the law requiring bidding. Senator Kendrick declaring that "a Government official is not even permitted to sell a blind army mule without advertising for bids, yet here the Secretary of the Interior, with the concurrence of the President and the Secretary of the Navy, has secretly entered a contract providing for the disposal of Government property worth millions of dollars."

Senator La Follette also read into the record a letter from former Secretary of the Navy Daniels, in which the latter denounced the transaction as "outrageous and wicked," and declared the time would come when the people who had consummated it would find that they had "endangered the very existence of the United States as an independent nation."

In response to the demands of these two Senators, the majority leaders consented to a committee of investigation, but Chairman Smoot postponed the opening of the hearing, and it had not begun when Congress adjourned, 18 months later. Meantime he retained two geologists, J. O. Lewis and F. G. Clapp, to make a survey and report on conditions in Teapot Dome.

Secretary Fall had previously defended his action in leasing it by declaring that commercial wells in the Salt Creek field were draining the reserve, and that the navy was losing millions of dollars' worth of oil and might lose it all if drastic counter measures were not taken. It was better for the navy, he said, to have plenty of fuel oil in storage above the ground than to have no oil at all under the ground.

The Delayed Hearing.

The day before the hearing opened, two weeks ago, Chairman Smoot sprang a sensation by giving out the reports of Clapp and Lewis, which, in considerable degree, vindicated the reasoning of Fall, and declared that serious drainage had occurred on the northern end of the reserve, and giving it as their opinion that operation of the northern part of the reserve had been necessary to prevent loss of the oil deposits. Administration supporters at once declared that the charges against the transaction had collapsed and there was some argument against holding public hearings.

Senators Walsh and Ladd, however, insisted that the hearings be held. They proceeded to put on the stand two experts, K. C. Heald, chief of the oil and gas section of the United States Geological Survey, and Chester W. Washburne, a consulting geologist of New York, who has participated in the prospecting of oil properties in the United States, South America, Europe, Siberia and Africa. Day after day these men have been recalled to the stand, and they have riddled the Clapp and Lewis reports with criticism.

They testified that Clapp and Lewis erred fatally in failing to take any account of the singular artesian conditions in that field. Because of those conditions, Heald and Washburne said, intensive production along the Salt Creek-Teapot Dome boundary would "in a comparatively short time" have resulted in the creation of a barrier of water that would have effectually sealed off Teapot Dome from the Salt Creek field. They agreed that the drainage in 10 years would not have exceeded 1,000,000 barrels of oil, and that after then it would have been virtually negligible. Even this loss could have been countered by the sinking of "offset" wells, they said.

The southern part of the reserve, they testified, estimated to contain 7,000,000 barrels of oil, was totally protected from drainage of any sort by the existence of a huge geological "fault" across the reserve from east to west.

"Protection Simple Matter."

"It has been said here," remarked Senator Jones, "that the volume of deposits was uncertain, and that it was better for the navy to have a known quantity of fuel oil stored on top of the ground than to be depending on an unknown quantity under the ground."

"It would have been a very simple matter," Washburne replied, "for the Government to sink test wells over the reserve, ascertain precisely what was there, and then seal up the wells.

"Moreover," he went on, "we must remember that in exchange for its crude oil the Government is getting fuel oil in tanks. It is quite possible that in 10 years fuel oil will be obsolete. It appears now that the great military need of the next generation will be gasoline for aircraft. Gasoline cannot be stored, because of the high rate of evaporation. Many forms of fuel can be extracted from crude oil, but fuel oil is fuel oil. If we bequeath a reserve of crude oil to succeeding generations, they can take from it what they need. It is presumptuous and dangerous for us to stake the future military safety of the country on the chance that fuel oil for boilers will always be the prime necessity."

The appearance on the stand of Fall resulted in testimony of a more personal character. It was brought out by Senator Walsh that Fall had resigned from the Cabinet soon after consummating the lease, and that he had subsequently made a trip to Europe with Sinclair to visit certain petroleum fields. In reply to a question as to whether he was now in Sinclair's employ he replied that he was not, but defiantly added that he might go to work for him, or for Doheny, adding that he saw nothing improper in doing so, in view of his right as a private citizen to earn a living.

He was closely questioned about his failure to call for bids on the lease, and replied that he felt he could make a better bargain for the Government by conducting private negotiations.

"Don't you know," said Walsh, "that the law expressly provides that Government officials must call for bids in entering into contracts for supplies or services, excepting personal services?"

"Well, I considered this a personal service to the navy," Fall responded jocularly.

"You know perfectly well that the exception applies to such services as the employment of Government clerks," snapped Wash.

"I think the law also makes exception to the efforts of public officials to conserve the country's interests," said Fall, "and I felt that in this case I was acting for the best interest of the navy."

Other Witnesses.

Secretary of the Navy Denby also was called to the stand. Replying to questions, he said he concurred in the transfer of the oil reserves from his department to Secretary Fall's because he considered the Department of the Interior better equipped to supervise them. Under close questioning by Senator Walsh he said the naval officer in charge of the bureau that administered the reserves opposed the transfer, and admitted heart when he recalled the strangeness of this alien country and drank a couple of glasses of iced water with good grace and bent to his task again. By the time the bomb of ice cream came around, he was breathing easy and with such respite that he covered his dessert with a fine coating of rather insipid yellow sauce that was provided for the dish.

It seemed to the important observer that he scanned the menu (which he had constantly consulted with genuine anticipation and interest throughout the dinner) with an air of regret that only a demi-tasse and some cigars were remaining. The cigars were rather good, even at the tables of the lesser writers, and therefore one is led to suspect that his was a perfecto that embalmed the sunshine of the Vuelta Abajo. He savored it with the air of a connoisseur through the rather lengthy introduction by Mr. Sullivan, smiling with the well-bred, radiant pleasure of a healthy, ruddy man at each of Mr. Sullivan's adroit sallies. Once in the course of the introduction he cut his eye around to the extreme flank of the speaker's table, where sat Robert Lansing virtually marooned on bread and water from the best minds of the Marion cabinetcy.

Mr. Sullivan finished. Mr. Lloyd George tasted his water, set down his cigar and arose to speak. On my oath, dear reader, I can write no more.

SHADOW OF 1924 CAMPAIGN FALLS ON TEAPOT DOME INQUIRY

that he did not consult the general board of the Navy nor the council of bureau chiefs about it. Pressed to name one naval officer that approved the transfer, he said he could not do so. Asked about documents that he signed in connection with the lease, he said he did not fully understand them for the reason that they were "too technical."

The appearance on the stand of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt provoked unusual interest because of a curiosity to know what part he had taken in reversing the policy initiated by his distinguished father. He said he participated in making the transfer, but had no knowledge of the leases. The following day he corrected his testimony to state that he had not been familiar with any of the details of the transaction.

Sinclair was another interesting witness. Replying to Walsh's questions about campaign contributions in 1920, Sinclair said he had "contributed impartially to both parties," but was unable to recall the amount. He said he had entertained Fall on several occasions, and had him as a guest on his private car, following Fall's resignation. For that matter, he had entertained other members of the Cabinet, he said.

Whatever the subsequent developments of this hearing, nobody who has been in attendance believes there will be a unanimous report. Regardless of all other questions involved, the committee is hopelessly divided on the question of Secretary Fall's legal authority to execute the contract, and upon the legality of the conditions under which it was signed. Nor will the matter end with the submitting of the reports. Over all the sharp exchanges between Senators; over all the testimony concerning geological structures, hydrostatic pressure and executive powers, rests the heavy shadow of the 1924 campaign.

An occasional dose of
DR. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPSIN
Keeps young girls fit

False Modesty Wrecks Health

THE young lady just assuming the responsibilities of a woman is very apt to be self-conscious of her physical functions, and in consequence neglect them. There is no time, however, when it is more important for her to look after them. Chief among her troubles is constipation, and her suffering will be serious when she gets older if she does not regulate her bowels now. Mrs. Mary Kellar of 132 Benton St., Sisterville, W. Va., was perplexed about her daughter until her own druggist told her they used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at his house, and she did likewise. Miss Irene Mazierska of 90 Peter St., Buffalo, N. Y., is glad her attention was called to Syrup Pepsin.

Safe for Young and Old

Let mothers with growing daughters interest themselves in this matter and see that their judgment is enforced. A rule followed by many is to take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin once a week until the bowels function daily, and at such other times as there is headache, biliousness, sores and fever blisters, lack of energy and appetite, sleeplessness, indigestion.

A dose can be given in these conditions to any member of the family however young or old as Syrup Pepsin is a simple compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasing aromatics, and perfectly safe.

Public Recognizes Merit

You will quickly see the difference between a mild laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and castor oil, or rough cathartics and physics. Syrup Pepsin acts gently and does not gripe. Increased doses are not necessary. A bottle can be had at any drug store, and a spoonful costs less than a cent. It has been successfully used for thirty years and is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles having been sold in drug stores last year. Keep Syrup Pepsin in your medicine chest.

If You Want to Try It Free Before Buying

ONE FOREMAN FOR EVERY 6 LABORERS ON STREET PAYROLL

Figures for First Half of October Show That Ratio Varies Somewhat in the Various Sections.

MEN, PAID MONTHLY, GET NO "LAY-OFFS"

Replying to Criticism of Workers, Slater Asserts 'Bosses' Are Kept on Job to Maintain Organization.

Laborers in the City Street Department, in a letter to the People's Column of the Post-Dispatch last week, complained that the number of foremen and inspectors employed on a monthly basis by the department so diminishes the appropriations available for maintenance that the laborers are forced to take layoffs, making it impossible for them to obtain a living wage.

Payrolls of the department, for the first half of October, show that the Telford-Macadam section of the department employs 98 laborers, one superintendent, one general foreman and 22 foremen—the proportion of bosses to laborers being about 1 to 4. However, in this same division, there are 7 watchmen, 2 chauffeurs, 9 grading machine operators, 1 clerk and 2 road-rolling engineers, under the supervision of the superintendent and general foreman, Street Commissioner Slater said.

Foremen Not Laid Off.

Wages of the superintendent and the foremen for the half month amount to a total of $1557, about 24 per cent of the total payroll amounting to $6483. The superintendent is paid $225 a month, the general foreman $140, and 22 foremen $125 a month. The laborers are paid $2.75 a day.

Street Commissioner Slater asserts that at this time of the year, and to a greater extent when the severe weather starts, it is almost impossible to work on the soft-paved or macadam streets and necessarily the laborers employed in this division are laid off. He said it has never been the policy of the administration to lay off the monthly employes, such as foremen, as it cripples the organization of the department when weather permits work in this department on a large scale.

Street Cleaning Section Record.

In the street cleaning section of the Street Department, the payroll shows the proportion of foremen to laborers to be about 1 to 6. In this division also there are other employes under the jurisdiction of the superintendents and general foremen. The total payroll in this section for the first half of October was $21,295.80. The amount paid to two superintendents, five general foremen and 45 foremen in this division is $3318, about 15½ per cent of the total payroll. The payroll includes, beside the foremen, 306 laborers, 30 chauffeurs, 32 drivers and 61 teams whose owners were paid from this amount.

In the block paving section the proportion of foremen and inspectors to laborers is about 1 to 8. There are eight inspectors and 12 foremen of various grades; 156 concreters and other classes of mechanics; two chauffeurs and 22 team owners on this roll. The total payroll for the half month was $12,986.25, of which 10 per cent was paid to the foremen and inspectors, who drew a total of $1350.

In the bituminous paving section, eight foremen and 81 men are employed. The total payroll for the half month was $5777.25. The foremen were paid $605 of this amount, or more than 10 per cent.

Foreman for Ten Men.

Commissioner Slater states that the average of the whole year of foremen to workmen will run about one foreman to 10 to 15 men, depending upon the class of work. He said in patchwork it is necessary to have a foreman present when only two or three men are working, in order that the work will be done properly.

Director of Streets and Sewers Visk concurs in the opinion of Commissioner Slater that it is necessary to keep the foremen on the payroll to maintain a good working organization.

CORNWELL'S VIEWS ARE NOT THOSE OF PLAN COMMISSION

Resolution Repudiates Member's Statements Criticising the Zoning Ordinance.

The City Plan Commission, at a special meeting last Thursday, adopted a resolution repudiating the statements of Ben S. Cornwell, a member of the commission, printed in the Globe-Democrat last Sunday, criticising the zoning ordinance.

The resolution recites that the general tenor of the article might lead to the belief that the views expressed are those of even a considerable minority of the membership, and to correct that impression, the commission desires to reiterate its position that the upholding of the constitutionality of the zoning ordinance is of vital importance to the welfare of the city.

SYMPHONY BEGINS ITS 44TH SEASON TODAY

March by Ganz Opens Popular Program — Regular Concerts Thursday and Friday.

At 3:15 o'clock this afternoon the Symphony Orchestra will begin its forty-fourth season with a popular concert, the opening number of which will be "The St. Louis Symphony March," composed by Director Rudolph Ganz last summer in Switzerland. It is ingeniously constructed, and recognizes the border position of this city by utilizing snatches of "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Dixie."

Twenty-one new players, comprising one-fourth of the orchestra's personnel, will make their first local appearance at this concert. The program, including three "first time" numbers and dispensing with a soloist, will be as follows:

Ganz—March, "St. Louis Symphony." (Initial performance.)
Mendelssohn — Overture to "Ruy Blas," Op. 95.
Grieg—Suite No. 1, "Peer Gynt," Op. 46.
Morning Voices; Ase's Death; Anitra's Dance; In the Hall of the Mountain King.
Bolzoni—Minuet for String Orchestra.
Stravinsky—Volga Boat Song, arranged for wind and percussion instruments. (First time.)
Liszt-Stock—Liebestraum, No. 3.
Strauss—Waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier." (First time.)
Tschaikowsky—Marche Slave.

The season's first pair of regular concerts will be given Thursday night and Friday afternoon at the Odeon. There will be no soloist, and the principal work offered will be Schumann's first symphony, entitled "Spring." The program ensues:

Weber—Overture to "Euryanthe."
Schumann—Overture in B-flat Major, No. 1, Op. 38.
Andante un poco maestoso, Allegro molto vivace; Larghetto; Scherzo; Allegro animato e grazioso.
Saint-Saens—(a) "Phaeton," Symphonic Poem No. 2, Op. 39.
(b) "Le Rouet d'Omphale," Symphonic Poem No. 1, Op. 31.
Wagner—Prelude to "Die Meistersinger von Nuernberg."

Levitski Next Week's Soloist.

Mischa Levitski, pianist, will be soloist at the second pair of regular concerts, next week, and will play Beethoven's concerto in C Minor. Egon Kornauth's "Elegie" will have its first American performance on that occasion.

Among the new players, Herman Tushinsky will succeed Hugo Olk as leader of the viola section. Mr. Olk, former concert master of the orchestra, retires after many years of service. Edwin Nies is leader of the second violins. Paul Litke succeeds Octave Sage as first bassoon. Both harp players are new—Mme. Graziella Pampari and Mrs. Wilhelmina Lowe-Speyer of St. Louis. An addition to the double-bass section is Johan Svendsen, son of the well-known Danish composer.

Both Domenico Delledonne and Mme. Ida Delledone retire after 13 years' service in the orchestra, the latter as leading harpist. The former is succeeded in the post of second bassoon by M. B. Weary. Edward Oventhorp replaces David Bittner as second trombone. Michel Gusikoff and H. Max Steindel remain as leaders of the first violin and violoncello choirs. There are several new recruits in the two violin sections.

The orchestra made its first phonograph records last week. The selections recorded were Weber's 'Euryanthe' overture, Strauss' "Artist's Life" waltz, Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" march, Lassen's 'Festival Overture' and D'Albert's overture, "The Improvisator.'

MEETING OF JEWS TONIGHT

Committee Will Discuss Zangwill's Pronouncement.

The American Jewish Congress Committee of St. Louis will hold a public meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at the Jewish Community Center, 3626 Page boulevard, when a report on the recent Jewish Congress at New York will be read.

The presentation of the report will be followed by general discussion and action on a protest resolution relative to Zangwill's pronouncement against Zionism. The congress was attended by Rabbi Samuel Sale, Abraham Wax and Samuel Goldman, who will render the report.

COMMUNITY FUND TO DETAIL EXPENDITURES

Luncheon Meeting of 1923 Contributors Will Be Held Tomorrow.

What sort of dividends the contributor has received for 75 cents of each dollar he has invested in the Community Fund will be told at a luncheon meeting of contributors to the fund's 1923 campaign last spring at a luncheon at Hotel Statler tomorrow. The Community Fund, for the first time, will go into details regarding the first nine months of its existence, in which more than 75,000 persons invested about $1,116,000.

Charles F. F. Campbell, executive secretary of the Detroit League for the Handicapped will speak on "The Value of a Community Fund to a Community."

St. Louis will put its work on exhibition in the form of reports. When the Community Fund conducted its first campaign it was largely upon a theoretical basis, as it had never been tried here.

In the $1,081,684 budget of the Community Fund for 1923, there were outlined these kinds of service and the amount necessary for each:

For the care of dependent and neglected children, $85,577; for relief and rehabilitation of needy families, $215,037; for care for the sick and injured, $240,710; for the prevention of sickness and promotion of health, $34,676; for protection, reformation and the promotion of justice, $72,625; for character building and recreation, $228,587; for co-ordinating and improving service, $23,241.

Mrs. Betty Brown of the Christian Orphans' Home, will tell how three-fourths of each dollar has gone to the care of dependent and neglected children; Daniel K. Catlin of the Provident Association, will report on the relief and rehabilitation of needy families; Mrs. John A. Haskell of the Visiting Nurse Association, will describe the expenditure funds in the care of the sick and injured and in the prevention of sickness and promotion of health; Byron Moser of the Y. M. C. A., will report for the character building and recreation group; Mrs. J. P. DuBail of the Big Sister Organization, for protection, reformation and promotion of justice, and Judge Thomas C. Hennings, chairman of the fund's campaign executive committee, will report on the co-ordination and improvement of service.

W. Frank Carter, general chairman of the fund, will deliver an address of welcome to the additional charities and philanthropies admitted to membership in the Fund for the 1924 campaign which begins Dec. 1.

Arrangements have been made to take care of about 900 at the luncheon. Reservations are being handled at Community Fund headquarters in the Central National Bank Building.

Spectacular Japanese Ball for Miss Frances Compton Presages Season of Elaborate Parties

Oriental Village With Whole Trees in Autumn Foliage Literally Transported to St. Louis Country Club for Occasion — Ballroom of St. Louis Club Transformed Into Colorful Vineyard by 30,000 Balloons for "Coming Out" Affair of Miss Janet Collins.

THE season of the spectacular ball has begun. A year or two ago a party more elaborate than the formal dinner dance was almost an unknown quantity, but the debutantes, in their eagerness to have their particular "coming-out" party different from the others, have evolved many and beautiful means of "dressing up" their dances to characterize them as individual.

A quaint village in Japan, overrun with cherry blossoms, and Mount Fujiyama, or Fujisan (dear Fuji), as it is affectionately called by the natives, visible in the distance, was the setting for the ball given at the St. Louis Country Club Friday night by Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Compton to introduce their daughter, Miss Frances.

White houses with fantastically carved roofs and their lighted interiors visible through decorated sliding screens, such as are used in Japan in lieu of doors, might have been spirited across the Pacific and set down in the midst of a bower of blossoms in the ballroom, with whole trees in their full autumn foliage adding a brilliant dash of color. Pampas grass grew in the tiny front lawns, and the figure of a woman appeared in one of the doorways. An old well, with moss at its foot, might have supplied the village for years with water from its depths.

An introduction to the scene was given in the tiled reception hall of the club, where dozens of yellow chrysanthemums and screened lights brightened the way to where the receiving party stood.

The dining room, where dinner was served to perhaps a dozen long tables adorned with Japanese flowers brought from San Francisco, was literally hung with cherry blossoms, while at the end of the room, as a background for the debutante tables which seated 90 guests, presided over by Miss Compton, old Fujiyama, with the fort and tiny village at her vase, towered high above the heads of the guests. Here Buddah reigned, with incense as a sacrifice, while a Japanese priest in the regalia of his office chanted prayers. In the midst of the festivities, Miss Louise Heimueller as "Madame Butterfly," sang the famous "Un bel dì" from the opera, with Miss Mildred Unland at the piano.

The club's staff of Japanese waiters, whose artistry and ingenuity made possible the decorations, served the guests, numbering several hundred, whose formal evening dress of distinct American cut, contrasted sharply with the Oriental surroundings.

A soft pink glow was cast over the whole scene by inverted parasols held to the ceiling chandeliers with tendrils of pink blossoms, while around the rooms at intervals were lights fashioned in the shape of bird houses perched on standards, like those used in Japan for lighting the shrines.

Guests at the debutante table were Misses Evelyn Brown, Lucy Terry, Frances Collins, Grace Wallace, Emily Shepley, Judith Dana, Mary Sanford Manny, Mary O'Fallon, Janet Phelan, Elizabeth Tupper, Grace Layman, Dorothy Cramer, Mary Virginia Collins, Josephine Garrett, Louise Bemis, Janet Lee Collins, Margaret Caradine, Rachel Lee Cuendet, Trimble Hoblitzelle, Jane McElroy, Isabelle Smith, Marie Carr Taylor, Katherine Sipple, Frances Fristoe, Katherine Steedman, Mary Francis Dickson, Josephine Moffitt, Harriet Lane Cates, Marie Nugent, Polly Wyles, Marie Wygant, Julia Lawnin, Mary Elizabeth Edwards, Laura-louise Price, Mary Christy Tiffany, Jane Parsons, Lucy Hoblitzelle, and Messrs. Thirty thousand balloons of every hue of the rainbow, transformed the rather severely formal ballroom and dining rooms of the St. Louis Club, into a colorful Brobdingnagian vineyard at the more informal, although no less important masqued costume ball Thursday night at which Miss Janet Collins was presented to society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Collins.

Leaves and vines literally covered the walls and ceilings, while huge bunches of balloons arranged to simulate grapes, studded the greenery. The ballroom, where Mr. and Mrs. Collins and Miss Collins received their guests, was enclosed with a stone balustrade, over which clambered great clusters of white grapes. Miss Collins received her guests as an East Indian princess, in satin glistening with jewels, and jeweled headdress with the customary draped face veil peculiar to Oriental women. Mrs. Collins was in black.

Wallace Jr. and William R. Compton.

Miss Grace Wallace will have guests in her box at the show Wednesday night the heads of the various stables entered, and men exhibitors will have a stag party Thursday at Sunset Hill Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Kauffman of 51 Portland place will entertain the exhibitors at 5 o'clock buffet supper Friday, after which they will attend the performance, and later some of them will motor to the Country Club for the Mahlon B. Wallace ball.

In addition to the social functions planned by members of society in their homes and at the clubs, the Bit and Bridle Club will have a refreshment room fitted up in the Coliseum where sandwiches will be dispensed, and where many of the debutantes will entertain guests.

Among the women who are interested in the Horse Show are Miss Marceline Reyburn, who will ride A. A. Busch Jr.'s, English hunter, "Canaille"; Miss Helen Frampton, who will ride "Black Satin," her own horse; Miss Alice Scott, riding her own "Pewee"; Miss Peggy Parle on "Tar Baby"; Mrs. Edward J. Walsh Jr., riding Edward L. Bakewell Jr.'s, "Beaumont"; and Miss Virginia Price on Dr. William C. Gadsby's "Bliss." Mrs. Bakewell will not ride, but will enter her hunter, "Old Folk."

The boxholders for the horse show are:

ELABORATE PARTY FOR MISS COMPTON PRESAGES GAY SEASON

same material, with chiffon wound bandana-fashion around her hair, and Miss Minerva Carr Nichols as an Egyptian girl, in cloth of gold trousers and blue and gold bodies, with an over jacket of gold embroidered white broadcloth. An imported veil embroidered in silver was fastened over her face and around her hair. Miss Mary Christy Tiffany wore the quaint costume of many years ago with powdered wig, straw hat laden with flowers, and full blue frock, while Miss Grace Wallace might have been a Russian in her red satin gown trimmed with white fur. Miss Julia Lawnin was a geisha girl while Misses Mary Manny and Marie Nugent represented powder puffs.

Unusual and picturesque were the costumes worn by Miss Mary Virginia Collins and her sister, Mrs. Knox Taussig, fashioned alike of silver cloth with long green trains sewn with flowers and a bird perched on either shoulder.

As a Tartar girl Miss Jane McElroy was equally gorgeous in turquoise and blue brocade with yellow coque feathers around her skirt, a sequin bodice and turban, the latter trimmed with silver and yellow feathers. A pair of long green earrings completed her costume.

A bit of the ridiculous was introduced by Chapin Nowhard, who appeared as Barney Google, leading Spark Plug, laboriously portrayed by Arthur Hickman and another man. They entered the ballroom to the tune of the song which gained its name from the comic where Barney originated. A ballet girl was well done by Garneau Weld, whose costume consisted of sequin knee-length dancing frock, pantaletts and red wig, and Carl Koehler and Marion Niedringhaus were hoboes, in checkered suits and broken derbies. Then there were Pierrots, mandarins and cowboys, Spanish senoritas and Oriental women, resolving themselves into a maze of dancing splashes of color, which was hardly enhanced by hundreds more balloons thrown to the guests from a trap door in the ceiling, which opened at midnight.

About 100 guests attended the "Pierrot" ball given last night at Glen Echo Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. Clark Gamble and Mrs. Gamble's sister, Miss Eleanor Klein, in honor of Miss Margaret Defiel of St. Paul, who is visiting Miss Dorothy Wray. The guests, who were all requested to appear as Pierrots with masks, included members of the young married set as well as the unmarried younger set.

The barn dance of the past has given way to ultra modern garage party, where friends assemble in one of the spacious rooms attached to the larger houses which are used for housing automobiles. Dinner is served on improvised tables, and guests dance on the somewhat rough concrete floor. About 100 of the young matrons and their husbands attended such a function last night given by Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Watts and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones Jr. in the garage at the rear of the F. O. Watts home on Lindell boulevard.

Mrs. Henry Lesser, 124 Washington terrace, will have as her guest, her aunts, Mrs. William D. Sporborg of Port Chester, N. Y., and Mrs. Henry Sporborg of Albany, N. Y. The Mmes. Sporborg will be delegates to the tenth triennial convention of the Council of Jewish Women. Mrs. Clarence Mark of New York will be the house guest of Mrs. Alvin Bauman, "Oak Knoll," Pennsylvania avenue and Clayton road, during the convention, and Mrs. Aaron Fuller of 32 Washington terrace will entertain Mrs. Nathaniel Harris of Bradford, Pa., at the same time. Mrs. Harris was former president of the council and will be a delegate.

A Halloween masquerade was held at the Post Hall at Jefferson Barracks last evening under auspices of Company K of the Sixth Infantry.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mohr of 3905 Parnell street celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding on Oct. 28 by entertaining their friends. Supper was served at 6 o'clock and the table was decorated with roses and chrysanthemums. The reception started at 3 p. m. and lasted until 12 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton S. Michaels entertained Mrs. Marcus Schwartz of Chattanooga, Tenn., Wednesday evening, Oct. 31, at their home, 4843 Wabada place, with a Halloween party. Luncheon was served at midnight to the following guests: Messrs. and Mmes. P. Bestel, C. Trebus, F. Tubbesing, A. Kratky, Henry Cerf, Messrs. Harry Wiehe, George A. Volz, Oscar Stroh, A. Murdoch, Mrs. R. Silverman, Mrs. Marcus Schwartz, Miss Edna Theis, Miss Margaret Horton, Miss Elphie Keith, Mrs. Margaret Wiehe and Mrs. J. S. Berry.

Special—Monday $29.99

Be on hand tomorrow at 9 a. m., when the doors open.

Those who have delayed their Winter Coat purchase have not waited in vain, for we offer 500 truly sensational Coats.

$29.99

Our Basement buyer reached New York last Monday morning. At eleven o'clock we heard by wire that he had persuaded a well-known maker of high-grade Coats to part with a comparatively small quantity. There was no question as to the marvelous "money's-worth" but whether the number would justify a special selling. We answered "send them." And we have added an excellent selection from our own stocks. The entire 550 go on sale at $29.99 tomorrow—WHILE THEY LAST!

Basement Buyers —Attention!

We can only say to the enormous following which the Basement Store has built up in slightly more than two months that this event is fully as wonderful in its "savings" as any which have preceded it. The Basement slogan is "MORE FOR YOUR MONEY THAN YOU EXPECT"—so you have discovered and so you will continue to discover!

TWENTY SIX YEARS OF SUCCESSFUL MERCHANDISING

DINNER DANCE PARTIES AND AFFAIRS FOR DEBUTANTES

As has been the custom for a number of years, the greater portion of activities for the formal social season center around the St. Louis Country Club. Here many of the coming-out parties for debutantes, the larger dinners and luncheons are given, and most of the evenings from now until Christmas have been engaged by some member of society who plans an entertainment. The next week, especially, will be a busy one. Beginning with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cocke's tea, this evening, for Miss Mary Virginia Collins, there will be a ball given by Dr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Smith for their daughter, Miss Isabelle, Tuesday evening; a luncheon by Mrs. Mary Clifford Blossom for 40 debutantes, honoring Miss Jane Parsons, Wednesday afternoon, a luncheon for the Bryn Mawr Council which meets in St. Louis this week, with Mrs. Joseph W. Lewis as hostess, Thursday; Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace's ball for their daughter, Miss Grace, Friday night, and the regular Saturday night dinner dance. One of the hostesses on the latter occasion will be Mrs. Henry Cushman, who will have a table for Miss Mary Virginia Collins.

Additional parties for the holidays have been planned.

An unusually large number of guests were entertained at the dinner dance at the Country Club last night. Among the hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Love, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hayward Niedringhaus, who had 96 guests; Mr. and Mrs. Ephron Catlin, who entertained for their debutante niece, Miss Emily Shepley, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burkham for Miss Jane Parsons.

Guests at the Catlin party included Misses Rachel Lee Cuendet, Grace Wallace, Lucy Terry, Marie Nugent, Mary Christy Tiffany, Louise Bemis, Frances Collins and Messrs. Maury Hill, Edwin Slocum, Lindell Gordon Jr., Festus J. Wade Jr., Whitelaw Terry, Danna von Frederick Gardner, Mahlon Wallace Jr., Whitelaw Terry, Dana Von Schrader, John Hadley, Lannar Benoist and Marion Niedringhaus.

In the Burkham group were Misses Mary Virginia Collins, Julia Lawnin, Elizabeth Tupper, Katherine Sipple, Judith Dana, Lucy Hobiltzelle, and Messrs. Edgar Roy, John O'Day, Henry Mudd, Octavius and Louis Lumaghi, John Fennelly, Clarence Maloy, Arthur Hoskins, Garneau Wold, Donald Gibbon and Merrill Chapin Jr. and Godfrey Cams of New York.

Two large debutante functions will be given today, in addition to the William H. Cocke dinner. Mrs. Walter Duke Thompson of 5045 Lindell boulevard has invited the debutantes and their escorts to her home this afternoon to meet Miss Jane McElroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. McElroy, at mixed tea. Miss Mabel Green Thompson, daughter of the hostess, and a bud of last season, will receive with her mother and the honor guest, and a number of the debutantes of this year will serve, including Misses Janet Lee Collins, Katherine Steedman, Margaret Caradine, Josephine Moffitt, Jane Parsons, Judoth Dana, Katherine Sipple and Louise Bemis.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Cornet of 4550 Pershing avenue, will give a luncheon for their daughter, Miss Ruth, the afternoon of Nov. 20, at the St. Louis Woman's Club. Guests will be the buds of the winter.

Mrs. George H. Shields of Wydown boulevard, and Mrs. Graham Wilson will give a Thanksgiving day tea dance at the St. Louis Country Club for Miss Mary Elizabeth Edwards and Miss Lauralouise Price.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hopkins King of Brentmoor will be hosts at a dinner dance, Nov. 8, for their debutante cousin, Miss Katherine Steedman.

Miss Eleanor Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Richards has sent out cards for a lunch-

CHURCH BAZARS AND BENEFIT AFFAIRS

The women of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension will hold their annual sale Tuesday in the church choir rooms, Goodfellow and Cates avenues. There will be gift tables, dolls and a delicatessen. Mrs. J. E. Allison will have charge of the sale of fancy work; Mrs. C. F. Ernst, aprons; Mrs. R. A. Campbell, dolls, and Mrs. Edward Mead, delicatessen.

"Dollville" will be a feature of the bazar to be given Friday and Saturday from 1 to 10 p. m. by the Alumnae Association of St. Luke's Hospital at the Nurses' Home, 712 Belt avenue. A collection of dolls to be on display will include flapper dolls with gorgeous wardrobes and old-fashioned "grandmother dolls" with china heads and cloth bodies. There will also be a number of dolls in correct nurses' costumes. "Sunday dinner supplies," linens, aprons and candy will be on sale and there will be a luncheon and dinner served by the student nurses under the direction of the Rev. Rufus D. S. Putney. The proceeds of the bazar will go to the endowment fund for a nurse's bed in St. Luke's Hospital.

The Woman's Guild of St. Peter's Church will have its annual luncheon and bazar November 15. Luncheon will be served from 12:30 until 2 o'clock.

Wednesday and Thursday, November 14 and 15, are the dates for the bazar of the Sacred Heart Convent, Maryland and Taylor avenues, under the auspices of the Maryville alumnae. The bazar will open on Wednesday with luncheon at 12:30 o'clock. Booths will be filled with home-made dainties and hand-made novelties and there will be a circus for the children both afternoon and evening. Mrs. Robert Wilson is chairman of the bazar and she and her committees assure all who attend a charming time.

A bridge and "500" party for the benefit of the Liberty Hospital Training School for Nurses will be given on the first floor of the new building, Taylor avenue and Washington boulevard, November 17. Tickets may be obtained through a committee comprising Mmes. C. P. Melton, J. T. Keller, F. J. Meyer, William F. Fahey, W. L. Henry, H. L. Drummell, A. E. Fisher, E. E. Singleton, Alice Blodgett and Laura Godlove.

Miss Alves Long, formerly of Chicago, has come to St. Louis to make her home with her brother, W. O. Long, at 5569 Delmar boulevard. Miss Long has recently returned from an extended tour of Europe and Northern Africa.

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS ANNOUNCED

Of interest to St. Louis is the wedding of Miss Helen Kammerer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kammerer of 723 Interdrive, and Edward Livingston McKendrew, which took place yesterday at 4:30 p. m. at Hotel Plaza, New York City. Dr. William P. Merrill of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church officiating. The bride wore a white chiffon velvet gown made on simple lines and a hat of silver cloth and white tulle. She carried orchids and lilies of the valley. There were no attendants. The young couple sailed for Cuba to be gone about a month.

Miss Kammerer attended Washington University and is a member of the Pi Beta Phi Sorority. Mr. McKendrew served with the Canadian troops in France and is a member of the New York Athletic Club. A number of out-of-town guests attended the wedding, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. W. McKendrew of Boston, the bride's parents.

Miss Mary Katheryn Ballweg, daughter of Mrs. Ida C. Ballweg, 3912 McDonald avenue, and Dr. Charles H. Burdick, son of Charles Burdick of 3530 Hartford street, were married last week in St. Pius Church by the Rev. Father John Lyons. The attendants were Miss Vera Ballweg, sister of the bride, and Harold Burdick, brother of the bridegroom. The bride wore her traveling suit of brown duvetyn trimmed with beaver, and hat and shoes to match. Her flowers were Ophelia roses. The maid of honor wore a blue suit with squirrel trimmings and a dark lace hat, with a corsage of Killarney roses. After a breakfast at Mission Inn, the couple departed for a honeymoon trip through the South.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Kessler of 2715 Dayton street announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Etta, to J. Buchman, Oct. 21, at the home of the bride. They are temporarily residing at the Claridge Hotel.

The engagement of Miss Florence M. Holthaus, daughter of E. H. Holthaus, 2352 Park avenue, to Rudolph A. Schulze, son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus C. Schulze of Washington, Mo., was announced at a tea given at the Gatesworth Hotel yesterday afternoon. Place cards attached to a rosebud told the news. Those present were Misses Bernice Kolme, Kathryne Byrne, Martha Byrne, Margaret McVey, Agnes Fitzgibbon, Margaret Brislane, Eleanor Tebben, Clara Schulze, Blanche Cassity and Laura Widmer. No date for the wedding has been set.

A home wedding of Oct. 27 was that of Miss Elizabeth Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Fox of 6132 Suburban avenue, to William A. Tebben, son of Mrs. Ottilie Tebben of Castleman avenue. The bride wore a gown of pearl gray satin, the draped skirt being caught on either side by a cluster of silver cloth roses. A band of silver leaves formed a headdress and she carried a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Edna Fox, as maid of honor, who was gowned in peach glow satin. Miss Irma Tebben, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid and was gowned in pale green satin. Both attendants carried bouquet of pink roses. Gene Fox, brother of the bride, served the bridegroom as best man.

The wedding of Miss Marie Kuntz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kuntz of 4640 Labadie avenue, and Melvin J. Schaub, took place Thursday at the Holy Ghost Church, the Rev. John Rothensteiner officiating. Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Schaub, parents of the bridegroom, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary that day after a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, the couple departed for the East on the wedding trip. They will reside at 4640 Labadie avenue.

"Dorothy Bickum" Brassieres

Presenting an Introductory Demonstration by

Miss Sarazin

MISS SARAZIN is a representative direct from the manufacturers of the "Dorothy Bickum" Brassieres, and comes to us for a week, beginning Monday, November 5, to give to our patrons the benefit of her skilled advice on style, carriage and correct corseting. An authority on comfortable and correct styles for women, her consultations will be invaluable to the woman who appreciates the importance of a distinguished appearance.

These Brassieres Are Scientifically Constructed

"Dorothy Bickum" Brassieres are longer, have smarter lines, do not ride up, have reinforced section for diaphragm support, and control the bust without crowding. They fit snugly over low corsets without binding at the waist, and provide absolute ease and freedom of movement.

Priced at $1.50 to $4.50, according to materials, which are coutil, brocade or Skinner's satin, in sizes 34 to 46.

BUY FURNITURE

—And Not Credit

Expect Credit as a Matter of Course

IF you were furnishing a home, or even buying a few new pieces, would it give you a feeling of security to know that you could buy on a Convenient Payment Plan at a store in which you had unlimited confidence? Perhaps it has not occurred to you that such a service offers economy and a dignified method of securing the sort of Furniture that you would be proud to possess.

Not so many years ago "time payment" of Furniture was in disrepute—the catchword of stores in which you had no confidence. Cities issued bonds to meet their obligations, business enterprises borrowed money to extend their operations, it was even considered dignified to borrow money to build a home; but the same policy was looked upon with ill favor when applied to the purchase of Furniture. Under these circumstances, standards of taste were sacrificed to immediate necessities and makeshifts were accepted. The opportunity for selection was limited, the securing of credit being of paramount importance.

It was with the realization that a real need existed and that many of our customers desired extended credit for the purchase of Furniture, that we broadened our policy to include a Convenient Payment Plan.

DINNERS, LUNCHEONS, PARTIES

Dinners and luncheons are being arranged by St. Louis women for Monday evening in honor of some of the delegates to the National Conference on Social Hygiene which opens at Hotel Statler that night. Mrs. D. O. Ives and Mrs. Evarts Graham will be hostesses at a dinner at the College Club. Mrs. George Gellhorn has invited several of the delegates to a dinner at her home, 4366 McPherson avenue, and Mrs. Ira Bretzfelder, 4738 Westminster place, will give a dinner to her house guest, Dr. Rachelle Yarros of the General Federation of Women's Clubs who will be here for the conference. Mrs. Virgil Loeb, 5151 Waterman avenue, has announced a luncheon for next Thursday at which several of the delegates will be present.

Mrs. Le Grand Jones has sent out cards to 150 of her friends to meet her mother, Mrs. D. W. Clark, of San Francisco, Cal., who will arrive this week to be her guest for a month. The reception is to be given at the Jones home, 6316 Pershing avenue, Monday afternoon, Nov. 12, from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. Jones' daughter, Mrs. Maurice Punch, and Mr. Punch's mother, Mrs. Montague Punch, will assist in receiving the guests.

Mrs. Leslie Arlington Knight of 5582 Pershing avenue was hostess at a bridge luncheon Thursday afternoon honoring Miss Josephine Fritsch, who will become the bride of Robert Rogers Stephens Nov. 10.

Mrs. Merritt Hutton Marshall Jr. has sent out more than 500 invitations to a tea which she will give Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock in her new home, 5297 Washington boulevard.

John Philip Sousa, who appeared in concert Thursday night with his band, was honor guest at a 4:30 o'clock tea given that afternoon by Mrs. R. A. Byers at her studio in the Musical Arts Building. Mrs. Byers, before her marriage, was Miss Margaret Chapman, and an old old friend of Mr. Sousa.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Dowling entertained last week-end with a house party at their cottage, "Restawile," in St. Louis County, for their daughter, Dorothy, who is attending the Visitation Academy. The guests included Misses Evelyn Hunter, Bernadine Muth, Thelma Gazzel, Geraldine Tully, Hilda Kriegshauser, Mary Chapman and Messrs. John Koakley, George Chapman, Herman Kriegshauser, Lawrence Muth, Gregory Dowling, Jerry Gazzel and Joseph Moran.

Twelve guests attended the Halloween party given by Miss Virginia Cunningham of 5744 McPherson avenue. They were: Dorothy Hamilton, Peggy and Mary Jane Walsh, Helen Ross, Ruth King, Rita Goldman, Charlotte Kline, Norma Hiken and Helen Klien. The house was decorated with Halloween colors.

The seniors of St. Alphonsus High School gave a Halloween party at the home of Miss Loretta Wartman, 4212 Shenandoah avenue. Those present were: Misses Fannie Rapp, Mary Molloy, Ruth Dockery, Irma Kunz, Genevieve Finley, Margaret Bresnahan, Grace McDonough, Catherine Wartman and Messrs. Fred Mallete, Harry Schatz, Bernard Concannon, James Flynn, Joseph Bishop, Harry Evans, Fred Rapp and Billie Schmidt.

Mr. and Mrs. August Gutzman of 3830 Nebraska avenue entertained their friends with a Holloween party on Oct. 27. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. William F. Schutzius and daughter, Marcella, Mrs. F. F. Schultz and daughter, Mildred; Mr. and Mrs. H. Breer and daughter, Dorothy; Mrs. Fred Jungblut and son, Grover; Mr. John Weber and daughter, Bessie M.; Miss Lena Dutzi, Miss Esther Jennrich and Russell Stephens.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Burns of 7123 Waterman avenue gave a birthday party on Oct. 31 for their daughter, Lonanie Lois. The table was decorated with white and yellow chrysanthemeums and Halloween colors. Covers were laid for 20 guests.

Mrs. Humbert S. Ghio of 5852 Bartmer avenue entertained yesterday with a bridge luncheon in honor of her sister, Miss Alice Sheehan, whose marriage to Urban L. Dames will be an event of Nov. 15.

Miss Ruth M. Dougherty of 5333 De Giverville avenue gave a Halloween party on Saturday night in honor of her guest, Miss Bettie Souther of Springfield, Ill. Miss Souther attended the first reunion of the season of the Camp Halycon Girls in St. Louis, with a luncheon at Vandervoort's tea room and a box party at the Orpheum. Those attending the Halloween party were Misses Mary Rosenbaum, Louise Kunnenberger, Delphine Ranch, Virginia Grant, Marjorie Chopin, Betty Souther, Nadine Peetz, Margaret Parker and Messrs. Tommy Walsh, Joseph Janis, Vernon and John Bradburn, Fuez Thatcher, John and Walter Rohan, Charles Mark, Roland Crowell, Gilbert McDaniel and J. Dunn.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw, 6904 Nashville avenue, Oct. 27, in honor of Miss Edna M. Vansandoll, who is to marry Clyde M. Ferguson.

Miss Mildred K. Rotty of 3645 Wyoming street entertained Friday evening with a bridge and shower in honor of Miss Gladys Benedict, whose marriage will take place this winter. The table was decorated with ferns and American beauty roses. The guests were: Misses Norma, Lillian and Mildred Bang, Edith Kloepper, Hazel Benedict, Violet Loeffler, Margaret Simpson, Melba Owen, Lillian Kraizky, Dolores Drew, Virginia Bradt, Katherine Elcka, Ann Wilopp, Irene Shaw and Mrs. J. Benedict.

Mrs. Charles Heiss of Hotel Statler gave a Halloween luncheon and bridge party Wednesday. The guests were Mmes. C. F. Pflanze, R. L. Meyer, Clare Wagner, Fred A. Blake, Arthur Baer, Joseph T. Ayres, Herman Spoehrer, Oscar Fischer, George Textor, P. Redmund, Eugene Hartrich, William Hagemeyer, Irene Kemmann, Charles Kammann, Joe Hepp, T. F. Armstrong, J. W. Porter, Terrell Croft, G. Horan, E. J. Sullivan, A. G. Schlich, Sam Fried, Gene Rodemich, E. Hooker, W. Clapper, Sarah Wolf and Kavanaugh.

Grows Thick, Heavy Hair

35-cent Bottle Removes Dandruff, Stops Falling Hair, Itching Scalp

Girls! A gleamy mass of luxuriant hair full of gloss, luster and life shortly follows a genuine toning up of neglected scalps with dependable "Danderine."

Falling hair, itching scalp and the dandruff is corrected immediately. Thin, dry, wispy or fading hair is quickly invigorated, taking on new strength, color and youthful beauty. "Danderine" is delightful on the hair; a refreshing, stimulating tonic—not sticky or greasy! Any drug store.

New Diamond Jewelry

Unusual Values in Rings

Platinum Ring with 5 diamonds and 4 sapphires $180.00

Platinum Ring with 4 diamonds and 2 sapphires $110.00

Platinum Ring with 17 diamonds and 16 sapphires $300.00

EVERY day we are receiving exquisite articles in new diamond jewelry just purchased by our representative in Eastern markets.

A very decided tendency towards the use of onyx or black enamel in combination with diamonds is noticeable. Sapphires, too, retain their hold on popular favor.

The unique bar pin illustrated is very handsome in black onyx mounted with diamond encrusted platinum. $210.00

Particularly resplendent are new bracelets, heavily encrusted with diamonds and sapphires in artistic rows—new diamond watches, pendants, placques, brooches, veil pins, la vallieres and rings.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY NEWS OF INTEREST TO MISSOURIANS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The "big six" of Washington buds named after the "big six" of some seasons ago, among whom were the present Princess Boncampagni and a number of other noted belles, include several of special interest to St. Louis. The sextette will be Miss Janet Moffett, daughter of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, a recent visitor to Missouri and St. Louis; Princess Ida Cantacuzene, great grand-daughter of former President Grant and his Missouri wife, Julia Dent Grant; Miss Helena Lodge, granddaughter of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge; Miss Natalie Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond; Miss Edith Hitt, granddaughter; Missmer Representative R. R. Hitt of Illinois, well known in St. Louis, and Countess Felicia Gizyoka, granddaughter of Mrs. Robert Patterson, formerly of Chicago, who has many friends in St. Louis.

The third assistant postmaster general, W. Irving Glover, has joined Mrs. Glover in their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel after a departmental trip to St. Louis.

Gen. Pershing will return to America from France before Christmas. Meantime the apartment he has been occupying at 2129 Connecticut avenue has been leased to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Ryan for the winter, so it is apparent that the General will spend most of the season away from Washington.

Mrs. Edwin S. Puller of St Louis has opened her home here on Chevy Chase, where she entertained a party of childern at the club for her godchild, little Edwina Pretorius.

Princess Tseanina was the guest in whose honor the League of American Pen Women gave a reception Saturday. Mrs. Louis N. Gilbert, national president of the league, assisted the princess in receiving the guests.

The twenty-ninth annual "mum" show is being held under the auspices of the Agricultural Department Mrs. Champ Clark and Mrs. James M. Thompson, formerly Miss Genevieve Champ Clark, wife and daughter of the late Speaker of the House of Representatives, who always took great interest in the flower shows of the Agricultural Department, both have blooms named for them.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins is leading the Federation of Women's Clubs here in the effort to make "Forget-me-not day" for the benefit of World War veterans a success. Prof. and Mrs. S. Hodgkins entertained at a tea last week in honor of the Columbian women of George Washington University.

Mrs. James Carson Breckenridge will entertain at a dinner party before the ball to be given for the benefit of Jacob Jones Post of American Women's Legion, at the Marine Barricks Those who are taking an active part in the success of this ball include most of the wives of Admirals, Cabinet women and official Washington generally. Miss Carolyn Nash, who has been a frequent visitor in St. Louis in the past few years, is chairman of the Young Ladies' committee and has on her list most of the debutantes and a group of young matrons. Mrs. George Vanderbilt, who served sandwiches to the troop trains as they passed through, appeared at a recent Red Cross gathering in her uniform that bore unmistakable evidence of hard service instead of getting a new gown for the occasion.

BANISH THE FIRST GRAY HAIR

BEARS CLIMB TOO HIGH, COME DOWN ON LADDER

Food, Iron Rods and Hose Brought Into Action—Bruins Too Scared to Move.

Two black bears in the Forest Park Zoo found to their sorrow that ambition which leads to heights from which there is no retreat is disastrous.

The two bruins attempted to scale the back wall of their pit. Their efforts finally landed them on a ledge from which they could neither advance, or retreat, the surface being straight up and equally straight down. One decided to play safe and flattened himself against the wall, from which he refused to budge. The other, more daring, stood on his hind legs on his precarious perch and vainly attempted to go on "over the top." The situation being called to the attention of keepers a campaign was immediately started to bring the venturesome bruins "back to earth."

Morsels, tasty to a bruin palate, were held temptingly. The more daring of the two climbers yowled hungrily and danced on the ledge, but could not see his way clear to "come and get it." Bear number two refused to be interested. Additional stimulus was added in the way of iron rods, which were poked at the bears. When a half hour of these maneuvers failed to start the bears into a semblance of an attempt downward, a ladder was raised to them. One bear immediately reached out and knocked the ladder down, to the great glee of the children in the ever increasing crowd in front of the pit.

The ladder was again placed in position and a hose brought into action. The truants were soaked for 10 minutes, but the only action resulting was a vigorous shaking and much slipping on the ledge. When the hose was turned off, additional food was brought forth and placed on the ladder and the keepers withdrew. As darkness settled one bear had reached forth and devoured the food, but neither started from the ledge—just yet. The acrobat member of the sorry partnership had to first test the security of the ladder from all angles. This included bridging himself across to a convenient foothold and viewing the avenue to safety through his hind legs. Finally, having satisfied themselves that the ladder was not a "booby trap" the two would-be escapers came off their perch a rung at a time.

Will Reopen Luxor Tomb Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO Egypt, Nov. 3.—Howard Carter has arrived here from Luxor for a stay of several days, during which he will supervise the unpacking of several cases of treasurers taken from the Tutankhamen tomb. The objects will be exhibited in the Cairo museum. Returning to Luxor early next week, Carter plans to reopen the tomb and begin the season's work. It is understood that two treasure chambers as yet untouched will be closed up and not cleared until next season.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Nov. 3.—Alvin Q. Fry, last of 34 Council Bluffs mail clerks accused of thefts from the mails to appear before Federal Judge Wade, today was sentenced to three years in Federal prison at Leavenworth, Kans. He was the only one to demand a trial and was convicted by a jury. All the others, except one, have served their sentences. The charges were made about a year ago. Fry was accused of stealing a pistol.

20 PER CENT DECREASE IN CHILD LABOR HERE

Virtually No Illegal Employment of Children in State, Says Mrs. Wing.

Child labor in St. Louis has decreased 20 per cent since June, 1921, Mrs. Alice Curtice Moyer-Wing, head of the State Department of Industrial Inspection, said yesterday in a statement given to the Post-Dispatch.

"In other sections of the state the decrease has been even greater," said Mrs. Wing. "For example, in Kansas City the decrease from July, 1919, to July, 1923, was a little more than 50 per cent.

"Practically every employer in the state knows now that he has got to live up to the requirements of the State law on child employment and seldom attempts anything else. The illegal employment of children in Missouri is virtualy a thing of the past, either as to employment without a work permit or employment in forbidden occupations."

The inspection department devotes its chief efforts, besides its child labor activities, to the nine-hour law for women and the prevention of industrial accidents, which show a decided reduction, Mrs. Wing said, due in some measure to insistence of inspectors that guards be promptly installed on dangerous machinery.

Violations of the nine-hour law have steadily become less frequent, Mrs. Wing said, and the requirement of seats in places where women work, as well as separate wash rooms and other necessary facilities, has been strictly enforced.

Among achievements of the department, Mrs. Wing lists the bakery laws for clean bread; the molders' and foundry law, eye protection, and the mattress law, to prevent filling a mattress with junk and selling it for cotton.

The tiny brush holds just enough for one nail

How often you have struggled with liquid polishes that were too gummy, that dried in lumps on the nail, or left ugly brush marks.

With the new Liquid Polish that Cutex has perfected, all that is past. Every single thing has been so carefully planned that even the soft little brush in each bottle will hold just exactly the right amount of polish for one nail.

You will see that this new and perfect polish spreads easily and smoothly and dries almost instantly. It cannot crack or peel at the edges. With Cutex Liquid Polish you can be sure of always having charming rose-tipped fingers. And it will last for a whole week.

No separate polish remover

You never have the little extra annoyance of a separate remover with Cutex Liquid Polish. Use just one drop of the polish itself and wipe off the nail while it is still wet. This leaves the nail clean and beautifully smooth for its next application.

You can get Cutex Liquid Polish separately for 35c or in the $1.00 and $3.00 sets. Sets with other polishes are 60c and $1.50.

MASSACHUSETTS INSURANCE FIRMS DENIED RENEWALS

Ben C. Hyde Takes Retaliatory Action Because Missouri Company Was Barred From Bay State.

EASTERN CONCERNS TO LOSE STATE LICENSES

1923 Permits Expire in February and March of Next Year—Protest Was Made by Kansas City Company.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 3.—Ben C. Hyde, superintendent of the State insurance department, today refused to renew the Missouri licenses of 25 Massachusetts fire, life and casualty insurance companies doing business in the State, in retaliation for the recent refusal of the Massacusetts commissioner of insurance to license a Missouri company. The 1923 licenses of the Massachusetts companies expire on Feb. 1 and March 1, 1924.

This action was taken by Hyde under the provisions of the "retaliatory law" of Missouri, which enables the superintendent of insurance to refuse licenses to companies organized in states which discriminate against Missouri insurance companies.

Formal Complaint Filed.

Formal complaint of denial of a license in Massachusetts was filed with Hyde Nov. 1 by the Reciprocal Exchange, a Kansas City company. The complaint stated that the company applied for a Massachusetts license about a year ago and it was refused by the commissioner of insurance of that State. The decision was reopened in another hearing and the license again denied on Oct. 22, last. The decision stated the Reciprocal Exchange was not entitled to a license to do business in Massachusetts and the laws of that State did not authorize issuance of such a license.

Protest also was made in the complaint filed with Hyde that the life insurance companies of Massachusetts did not qualify under the laws of Missouri, and had not met the requirements of the state with regard to foreign companies transacting business here. Investigation disclosed this charge was true, Hyde said.

Hyde's Statement.

In a statement on his action, Hyde said: "It has been admitted by the Massachusetts department that the Reciprocal Exchange is thoroughly sound, ably managed and in every respect meets the financial requirements of the Massachusetts law. Yet, despite these facts, this Missouri company is denied the privileges in Massachusetts which Missouri grants to companies of Massachusetts.

"I am entirely familiar with all the facts in the protest and I shall refuse to issue licenses to all insurance companies domiciled in the State of Massachusetts or organized under the laws of Massachusetts at the expiration of the present licenses issued for 1923, and shall continue to refuse to issue such licenses so long as the laws of Massachusetts, or the rulings of the insurance departments of Massachusett thereunder prohibit Missouri insurance companies from operating in Massachusetts."

Companies Affected.

The Missouri licenses of the Massachusetts fire and casualty companies operating in this State expire on Feb. 1 and the licenses of the Massachusetts life insurance companies expire March 1. The companies affected by Hyde's ruling are as follows:

Boston Fire Insurance Co.; Employers' Fire Insurance Co. of Boston; Massachusetts' Fire Insurance Co. of Boston; Old Colony Fire and Marine Insurance Co. of Springfield; Fitchburg Mutual Insurance Co. of Fitchburg; Lumber Mutual Insurance Co. of Boston; United Mutual Insurance Co. of Boston; Stock Casualty Insurance Co.; Brotherhood Accident Co. of Boston; Eastern Casualty Insurance Co. of Boston; Loyal Protective Insurance Co. of Boston; Masonic Accident Insurance Co. of Springfield; Massachusetts Bonding Co. of Boston; Massachusetts Protective Association of Worcester; Ridgely Protective Association of Worcester; United Casualty Co. of Westfield; Employers' Liability Insurance Co. of Boston; Mutual Casualty Co. of Boston; American Mutual Liability Co. of Boston; Liberty Mutual Liability Co. of Boston; Berkshire Life Insurance Co. of Pittsfield; Columbian National Life Insurance Co. of Boston; John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Boston; Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Springfield; New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Boston, and the State Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Worcester.

MAN WOUNDED WHEN FRIEND WAS SLAIN, SEPT. 28, DIES

Autopsy Will Be Held in Case of Giuseppi Perusion—Death Caused by Pneumonia.

Giuseppi Perusion of 910A Biddle street, who was shot in the mouth when another Italian was assassinated the night of Sept. 28, while sitting in front of a grocery store at 912 Biddle street, died at 6:10 a. m. yesterday at Baptist Hospital, from pneumonia. An autopsy will be performed tomorrow to determine if the bullet wound contributed to the cause of death.

Perusion and Tana Rollo of 1127A North Ninth street, were attacked by three men, one of whom shot Rollo in the head and chest, causing almost instant death. One of these bullets passed through Rollo and entered Perusian's mouth, lodging in his throat. He was treated at the city hospital and apparently recovered. He recently became ill and was taken to Baptist Hospital Wednesday.

The assassins escaped and the police have no clew to their identity.

Popular Operetta Has Master Song-Writer for Hero—Neil O'Brien Minstrels at American, and Benny Leonard at Orpheum.

THE greatest song-writer in history, Franz Schubert, serves both as hero and as composer of an operetta, "Blossom Time," which opens an engagement of two weeks this evening at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater. That is, the score is constructed of selections from his works, including some of his most popular ditties, and excerpts from his "Unfinished" Symphony. "Blossom Time" is an adaptation of an Austrian operetta, entitled "Drei Maedel Haus" ("Home of the Maidens"), and flourished on the Continent before beginning its prosperous tour this side of the Atlantic.

At the American tonight a combination of two minstrel companies, headed by those redoubtable blackface experts, Neil O'Brien and Bert Swor, begins a week's visit. The Woodward Players, at the Empress, announce "Bab," a comedy after a novel by Mary Roberts Rinehart, in which Helen Hayes starred at the American three years ago. Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, is headliner at the Orpheum.

Real Life Uneventful.

THE life of Schubert, outside his voluminous compositions, was almost devoid of incident, so that the Austrian librettists, A. M. Willner and H. Reichert, felt compelled to manufacture a romance out of the whole cloth. The composer is represented as being enamored of Mitzi Kranz, one of three charming Viennese sisters; and of conducting the affair with a mixture of the traits of Cyrano de Bergerac and Miles Standish.

Characters actually historical, however, are found in the cast. They are Franz von Schober, Schubert's benefactor; Vogl, a famous baritone at the Viennese opera; and Schwind, a painter. They were members of the little circle of Bohemians to which Schubert belonged; some of whom aided him, and others of whom sponged off his meager earnings, and permitted him to die in privation at the age of 31.

The cast promised here includes most of the principals of the original New York company, which played two years in that city. Among them are Zoe Barnett, Howard Marsh, Bertram Peacock and William Danforth. Miss Barnett plays an early nineteenth siren. Marsh, a well-known tenor, plays Franz von Schober. Peacock portrays Schubert himself, and Danforth will be remembered for his performance of the title role of "The Mikado" at the Municipal Theater—the most artistic portrait ever achieved there.

Quaint Period Costumes.

THE plot is laid in Vienna, and the time is 1826, two years before Schubert's death. These cir-

Local Bills Also Include "The Social Code," "The Famous Mrs. Fair," "Drifting," "Cameo Kirby" and "The Tents of Allah."

"A Lady of Quality," starring Virginia Valli and Milton Sills, is the photoplay attraction at the Missouri this week. It depicts English court life in the reign of Queen Anne. There is a dramatic story of a woman haunted by a tainted past who by sheer force of character, rises superior to it, and achieves happiness. Francis Hodgson Burnett is the author. Joseph Littau and his orchestra appear on the stage with a program of classical jazz numbers, including "One Hour of Love," "That Old Gang of Mine," and "Raisin' the Roof." Other stage attractions are Fred Sonnen, harmonica player, and Barlowe, Goodell & Vermillion, girl harmony singers.

The attraction at the West End Lyric and Capitol is the Thomas H. Ince production, "Her Reputation," with May McAvoy and Lloyd Hughes.

"Her Reputation" is a melodrama of newspaper sensationalism. It shows the soul of an innocent girl seared by sensational news until she is driven away from those she loves and is forced to hide behind a mask. The reporter who never stops looking for sensational news is the villain of the drama, while the publisher's son, as a reporter with a heart, is the hero. A Mississippi River flood scene provides the spectacular thrill.

"Her Reputation" remains at the West End Lyric four days only, giving way Wednesday to "Modern Matrimony," featuring Owen Moore and Alice Lake.

Colleen Moore and Kenneth Harlan are featured in the screen attraction at the Grand Central in "April Showers." This is a romantic drama of New York, featuring a Grew New Hair!

Miss Virdie Bell's hair was coming out by handfuls and complete loss seemed sure. She writes that she was terribly worried. Then somebody told her about Kotalko. She started using it. Her hair soon stopped from falling and from coming away on the comb and brush, and developed new, beautiful, healthy growth. The photo shows what 3 boxes of Kotalko did. There are legions of other such wonderful cases on record. Kotalko is for men's, women's and children's hair.

Genuine Kotalko contains real bear oil, juice of the rare pilocarpus plant and ten other ingredients. You may buy it at a busy druggist's. Guarantee in each box. Or write for proof box with booklet, free by mail. Address Kotalko Office, Q-95, Station L, New York.

Everybody Daft in Sherlock Holmes Thriller

LONDON, Nov. 3.

WHEREIN lies the perfect exquisiteness of this play? asks the critic of the Daily Telegraph concerning "The Return of Sherlock Holmes," adapted by J. E. Harold Terry and Arthur Rose from the stories of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. What is the quality in it, he continues, which compels an audience so vast as that of the opening night to hang upon it in fascinated silence, "like birds the charming serpent draws?" The more we ask ourselves this question, the critic answers himself, the more convinced we become that the play irresistibleness lies in the fact that, from end to end, there is not a character in it who is not a fully qualified candidate for a lunatic asylum.

Some are preternaturally acute, others preternaturally wicked, others again preternaturally foolish, but—all, all are preternaturally mad. And the more seriously they take themselves and their preposterous doings the more delightful they become to your true playgoer, who—bless you!—goes to the theater not for fact, but for fantasy; not for reality, which is one thing, but for "realism," which is another and very different matter.

Take the heroine, for example. She is an Earl's daughter, Lady Frances Carfax by name, young, beautiful, rich, generous, warm of heart, and ready of hand. Wandering abroad, apparently alone, she meets at Lausanne, another young aristocrat, the Hon. Philip Green, virtuous and brave and handsome; and they fall in love with each other. "Love takes up the glass of life," etc., etc., and they become affianced.

A Credulous Heroine.

THEN, accepting the veracity of a "faked" letter, this amazing Lady Frances comes to the conclusion that her Philip has stolen her securities, thrown her over, and run away. She then falls extremely ill, puts herself into the care (and under the roof) of a demon doctor, alters her will in his favor, lets him drop poison into each of her successive bottles of medicine, permits him to employ another demon as nurse, and has as a neighbor, on the other side of a door, a perfectly horrible old man who smiles, and says funny things while he experiments with the deadliest poisons in the toxicological laboratory. Now, where should such a young lady as that be if not in an asylum?

And, as the play proceeds, and the great Sherlock Holmes aided and abetted by the ineffably foolish Dr. Watson, gets to work to recover the "securities," rescue the Hon. Philip from a dungeon in the hideous basement of an unfurnished house, and bring him and Lady Frances together again, it all becomes only more and more mad.

The arch villain, for instance, is about to escape in a Rolls-Royce. No taxicab will be able to overtake him. But is Holmes to be outdone? Never! He telephones for a dog. He then gets an ally to smear the wheels of the car with creosote. Meanwhile he also allows the quadruped to smell the creosote. Then the car starts, and the dog starts, and nobody says a word about the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals just as nobody had suggested that there are, after all, easier ways of catching a car that is at rest than by creosoting its wheels and starting a dog after it.

Audience Is Happy.

NEEDLESS to say, all comes right in the end. Frances, Philip, and the "securities" are brought blissfully together, and villainy is smashed; but the real happiness of the evening is in the auditorium; and we are convinced that the secret of the cheering is, as has been said, neither more nor less than the insanity of all and sundry on the other side of the footlights.

Mr. Eille Norwood moves grandly and gloomily through the part of Holmes, and is wildly applauded at the end of each act. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland makes an impressive figure as the arch-villain, one Colonel Moran; while Miss Molly Kerr, as the amazing Lady Frances, looks so beautifully ill in the first act and so effectively throughout, that she takes a distinct forward step in her possession and her art. Miss Hilda Moore as the demon nurse and Mr Arthur Cullin as the demon doctor provide further great fun; Mr. Eric Stanley so revels in the large villainies of a champion blackmailer that the audience revels in them also; and Master Victor Evans has a huge "rag" on his own account in the character of a bright messenger boy, and becomes another of the public favorites.

Seven Shows Will Brave Broadway This Week

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.

NO less than seven new productions will be launched next week on the uncertain seas of Broadway. On Monday night, "The Deep Tangled Wildwood," latest opus of George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, authors of "Dulcie" and "To the Ladies," will be presented at the Frazee, with James Gleason, Robert McWade and Denman Maley in the cast. The same evening will witness the debuts of "White Cargo," by Leon Gordon, at the Greenwich Village Theater, and of "A Love Scandal," a new comedy, at the Ambassador. Among the players in the former will be A. E. Anson, Conway Wingfield, Frederick Roland and J. Malcolm Dunn. Norman Trevor and Edith Taliaferro are starred in the latter.

"Stepping Along," Fred Stone's new conveyance, appears at the Globe Tuesday night, which will also mark the premiere of "The Lady," by Martin Brown, at the Eltinge, with Mary Nash in the principal role. The opening offering of the Equity Players' second season, a play by David Carb and Walter Prichard Eaton, entitled "Queen Victoria," will try its fortunes at the Forty-eighth Street Theater. Beryl Mercer will have the name part. At the Eltinge, on Friday evening, will be offered Frederick Lonsdale's new comedy, "Spring Cleaning," with Violet Heming, Estelle Winwood, Arthur Byron and Gordon Ash in prominent roles.

In addition, the Grand Guignol Players, at the Frolic, will have a new bill opening Monday night, including Mme. Nazimova's sketch, "The Unknown Lady," which was taken off at the Palace last week. Sothern and Marlowe will begin a week of "The Merchant of Venice" at Jolson's Forty-ninth Street Theater Monday evening. On Tuesday and Friday afternoons, Eleanora Duse will give Ibsen's "Ghosts" at the Century.

Berlin Doesn't Like It.

A GERMAN translation of Eugene O'Neill's "Annie Christie," made by Maurice Lengyel, has been presented in Berlin. Katie Dorsch, a German favorite, had Pauline Lord's role. A typical reaction of the critics is the following: "If a German author had written this he would have been buried in his grave with howls of scornful laughter."

At last the actor who is to play the Southern generalissimo in Drinkwater's "Robert E. Lee" has been chosen. He is Berton Churchhill. . . . The first American production of John Masefield's newest play, "Melloney Hotspur," has been intrusted by the author to the Community Playhouse of Pasadena, Cal. The premiere will occur Nov. 12.

Cast for "A Royal Fandango."

MEMBERS of the cast which will support Ethel Barrymore in Zoe Akins' new play, "A Royal Fandango," will include Cyril Kneightley, Beverly Sitgreaves, Joe Alessandro, Edward G. Robinson and Virginia Chauvent. The production will be made by Arthur Hopkins at the Plymouth Theater on Nov. 12. . . . James J. Corbett has been added to the cast of the "Follies," in a sketch entitled "The Sap."

Word comes from London that the run of "The Begger's Opera" in Hammersmith will end before Christmas. It has already continued for more than 1400 performances, and been attended by half a million people. Only "Chu Chin Chow," with 2238 performances, has ever surpassed it for length of run in London. . . . Chic Sales made his debut as a legitimate actor tonight at Cumberland, Md., in a comedy called "Common Sense," by Herbert Hall Winslow.

Eddie Cantor's Musical Comedy.

REHEARSALS have begun for "Kid Boots," the first musical comedy in which Eddie Cantor will appear. It is scheduled for Thanksgiving week. The authors and composers are William Anthony McGuire, Otto Harbach, Joseph McCarthy and Harry Tierney. The producer is Edward Royce, who staged "Sally." . . . Mrs. Leslie Carter's next play will be "Stella Dallas," adapted from a novel by Olive Higgins Prouty.

It is announced that the first play in Jane Cowl's forthcoming classical repertory will not be "Antony and Cleopatra" but Maeterlinck's "Pelleas and Melisande." . . . Maxwell Anderson's "White Desert" closed last Saturday night at the Princess, after struggling to exist for a week and a half.

MEN 43 PER CENT STRONGER

Machine Indicates Women Make Better Showing in Resistance.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The dynamometer, a strength-testing machine which Dr. W. Hope, medical health officer for Liverpool, has been applying to all comers, shows that the socalled average man is 43 per cent stronger than the average woman.

But when it comes to resistance, women are not quite so far behind. The ergograph, a more refined instrument for the measurement of resistance power, shows that men average 39 per cent stronger in this respect than women.

Dr. Valeria Parker to Speak.

Dr. Valeria H. Parker, of New York, director of the Department of Social Morality of the W. C. T. U., will speak at a monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. Federation at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow at Lucoock Lodge, 3628 Delmar boulevard.

FEELING BADLY?

IRON STARVATION

Of the blood, perhaps, and your worn-out, exhausted nerves need to be revitalized.

For this purpose there is nothing better than Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure Organic Iron — Nuxated Iron — which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one half quart of spinach, one quart green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

Over four million people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich the blood.

Nature Put Iron for Your Blood

In the husks of grains and the peels and skins of fruits and vegetables.

But modern methods of cookery throw all these things away—hence the alarming increase in anemia—iron starvation of the blood, with its never-ending trend of symptoms of nervous irritability, general weakness, failure, disturbed digestion, headaches, pains across the back, etc.

Either go back to nature or take Organic Iron — Nuxated Iron — to help enrich your blood and revitalize your worn-out, exhausted nerves.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Hostesses who want to be sure of having their dinner guests arrive now send the money for taxi fare along with the invitations. Money is so scarce that regardless of the size of one's bank account or letter of credit, it is not always possible to have enough actual money in hand to mete curent expenses.

The bank rations money so that persons of all classes are forced to live on checks. Prices rise so fast that men frequently are compelled to leave their wives as hostages in cafes while they go on a hunt for some money to pay their dinner bill.

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

The cutting and editing of "Twenty-One," Richard Barthelmess' next release made under the direction of John S. Robertson, has been completed. In "Twenty-One," Mr. Barthelmess will appear in a modern young man's role, a part greatly in contrast to his costume characterizations in "The Fighting Blade," and "The Bright Shawl." In the cast of "Twenty-One" are Dorothy Mackaill, Joe King, Ivan Simpson, Elsie Lawson and Bradley Parker.

Louise Fazenda and Freddie, a trained seal, will be the headliners in "The Galloping Fish," Thomas H. Ince's next offering for First National. With "Anna Christie" in the cutting room, the producer has turned to an entirely different field and proposes to put out a comedy special.

Owen Moore has been engaged to appear in the featured role of Maurice Tournears next production for First National entitled "Torment." This marks Moore's third First National production in recent months. The other two were "Thundergate," directed by Joseph De Grasse, and "Her Temporary Husband," directed by John McDermott.

Mary Alden, famous character actress who has mothered almost every screen star of note, is to play Colleen Moore's mother in "The Swamp Angel." She played her first mother part at 22 years of age and since then has been mother to the Gishes, Richard Barthelmess, Blanche Sweet, James Kirkwood, Donald Crisp and many others.

Breaks Broadway Record.

"The White Sister," with Lillian Gish, holds a record of its own on New York's Broadway. It is now playing in its third Broadway theater since it opened two months ago. First it was shown in the Forty-fourth Street Theater, then in the Ambassador, one of the luxurious new houses, and now it is at the Lyric on Forty-second street, and the end of its run is nowhere in sight.

How to Look Ugly.

Dick Barthelmess and May McAvoy are finding it just as difficult to look ugly as some people find it to look beautiful. In his next picture, "The Enchanted Cottage," Dick plays the part of a cripple war veteran, and May that of a plain-unhandsome English girl, both of whom are made beautiful in each other's eyes by their love for one another. They are spending the present week experimenting with make-up and posing for camera tests in an effort to appear suitably homely.

Rod La Rocque is to be a member of the cast of William de Mille's next Paramount production, "Every Day Love." Among the featured players are Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Nita Naldi, Theodore Kosloff and Robert Edeson. La Rocque will play the role of Patrick Delaney, a piano tuner.

Lon Chaney has been signed to appear in a featured role in "The Next Corner," which is soon to be produced for Paramount by Sam Wood. Conway Tearle and Dorothy Mackaill are also to be featured in this production.

Betty Compson will have the leading feminine role in the forthcoming Joseph Henabery Paramount production, "The Straner." This is an adaption by Edfrid Bingham from John Galsworthy's story, "The First and the Last." Richard Dix and Lewis Stone will play the principal male roles.

World rights to "Captain Blood," the latest novel by Rafael Sabatini, the author of "Scaramouche," now being presented on the screen and on the spoken stage on Broadway, have been purchased for production by Vitagraph.

Richard Walton Tully announces the signing of Anna Q. Nilsson to play the part of Allegheny Briskow in Tully's next production, "Flowing Gold," an adaptation of Rex Beach's story of the Texas oil fields.

The remarkable record of six stellar pictures in considerably less than one year has been made by Barbara La Marr. In the past eight months she has appeared in "Quincy Adams Sawyer," "The Eternal City" and "Strangers of the Night." At the present moment she is interpreting the feminine star role in "Thy Name Is Woman," following which she will star in the Sawyer-Lubin special, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew." The sixth "star" picture will be a special in which she will play for Universal. This achievement is all the more remarkable in consideration of the fact that a little over 14 months ago she was practically unknown to the "fans" of the movie world.

"The Whipping Boss," Beverly Productions' dramatic expose of the contract labor system, has been dedicated to the American Legion. In this film a Legion post in a little Southern town leads a successful fight against the lash and contract labor. It will be released this winter.

"The Girl Expert," Harold Lloyd's latest picture upon which he now is at work, is to be released, is his first independent production since leaving Hal Roach. It is a feature length comedy laid in a small town and has none of the slapstick or hair-breadth escape thrillers.

Gaston Glass, Preferred Pictures player, is planning an extensive tour of the country to make a series of personal apearances in connection with his most recent pictures.

Dr. Coe's method of treating Piles is mild and soothing, brings almost instantaneous relief and effects a permanent cure.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 2, 1923

My Dear Dr. Coe,

With gratitude I write to tell you that you cured me of an awful bad and painful case of Piles. You did not use any knife. I did not go to a hospital. All your treatments were given in your office and they were mild and gentle. I was a very sick man—was taken home from my position in a taxicab, but under your treatment soon went back to work.

I advise all sufferers from Piles and other rectal troubles to take your treatment at once. They will never regret it.

Sincerely your friend,
CHAS. F. WESTCOTT,

FAMOUS "CARMEN" WHO GIVES RECITAL THURSDAY

ALICE GENTLE.

Alice Gentle Will Sing Her First Concert Here

An interesting event of the week will be the first St. Louis concert of Miss Alice Gentle, dramatic soprano, which occurs at 11 o'clock Thursday morning at the Wednesday Club. She will be soloist of the Members' day recital of the Morning Choral Club. Miss Gentle was born in a small town in Kansas, sang in a church choir, became a member of the chorus in Oscar Hammerstein's Opera Company, and rose to be one of the best-known of present-day actresses in the title role of "Carmen."

Her program will begin with the aria, "Pace, pace, mio Dio," from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," and will proceed through Martini's "Plaisir d'Amour," Mozart's "The Violet," an old English air, "Pastoral," Fourdrain's "Impression basque," Ravel's "Tout gai," Poldowskis "L'Heur exquise" and Fourdrain's "Carnaval." There will be four songs by Richard Strauss, "Dreams in the Twilight," "To You," "Tomorrow" and "Serenade." The concluding division will be songs of American composers — "Ah, Love But a Day," Mrs. H. H. A. Beach; "How's My Boy?" Sidney Homer; "Silhouettes," John Alden Carpenter, and "Stars," Harriet Ware.

At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon the choir of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Spring avenue and Lindell boulevard, assisted by a double quartet from the Apollo Club, will sing Horatio Parker's setting of Brian Hooker's commemorative poem, "A. D. 1919." Charles Galloway will direct. Haydn's oratorio, "Creation," will be sung tonight at Christ Church Cathedral by a choir of men and boys under the direction of Arthur Davis.

William Theodore Diebels will begin his annual series of free organ recitals at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the New Cathedral. George E. Muskens, tenor, will assist. One of the numbers will be a march by G. Longhi, which is played on feast days when the Pope enters St. Peter's Cathedral.

Other Concerts and Recitals.

Sixty students will take part in recitals to be given this afternoon, tonight and tomorrow night at the South Side branch of the Strassberger conservatories. Modern French composers will be discussed at a meeting of the Musical Research Club, Tuesday afternoon at Scrugg's auditorium, and Miss Elizabeth Morse will read a paper on "My Impressions of Hawaii." A program will be given by Mrs. Eugene J. Gissler, Miss Martha Short, Mrs. Grace A. Leland, Miss Ester Schelp and Mrs. Mabel Sacks.

Ferdinand Schevill, professor of history at the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Schevill, formerly Miss Clara Meier of this city, will give a lecture-recital on "The Song Literature of Italy" at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Wednesday Club auditorium.

Under the auspices of the Morning Etude, Mme. Wilma Souvageol, former St. Louisan, will give a piano recital at the St. Louis Woman's Club at 2:30 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 14. Mme. Souvageol, who has lived for many years abroad and has appeared with success in the prominent German cities, will play Schubert's "Wanderer" Fantasie, the Brahms Sonata in F. Minor, and Chopin's Etude in C Minor and the Polonaise in A flat.

The choirs of 12 churches will unite in a pageant called "The Lamp," which will be given on the evening of Nov. 9 at Pilgrim Congregational Church, under the direction of Dr. J. J. Kessler, and with incidental music arranged by Vernor E. Henshie.

Rudolph Ganz will appear at the Odeon on the evening of Nov. 24 for his first piano recital in this city since he became director of the Symphony Orchestra. The Sistine Chapel Choir will sing a program of liturgical music at the Odeon on the evening of Nov. 20.

Several musical features have been arranged by Mrs. David Kriegshaber for the convention of the Council of Jewish Women. At Temple Israel on the evening of Nov. 14, Mrs. Kriegshaber will play an organ prelude, a double choir will sing a psalm, "Minhammetsar," arranged by Halevy; and a traditional melody, "Kolnidre," will be played by violoncello, harp and organ. Prof William John Hall will pay an organ program at Shaare Emeth Temple on another evening, as will Arthur Lieber at Temple Israel.

Nuxated Iron Will Make You Well and Strong

THIS little picture shows you what the Doctor sees through his microscope when he looks at a drop of your blood when you are tired and run-down.

This is thin, pale, watery blood which keeps you weak, nervous and run-down. If you tire easily; if you look pale, haggard and worn, it would probably astonish you to look at a drop of your own blood under the Doctor's powerful microscope and compare it with a drop of pure, healthy blood, rich in iron. Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill, lack iron in their blood, are ill for no other reason than for lack of iron.

Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue, therefore, nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good, you don't get the strength out of it. As the result of this blood starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run-down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance.

HERE is a picture of the way a drop of your blood will look under the microscope when you have plenty of good rich red blood. Blood like this is always rich with iron, but be sure that the iron you take is organic iron and not metallic or mineral iron which people usually take, as metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings.

Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It may be had from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such highly concentrated form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half pound of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

THIS picture shows you the Nuxated Iron tablets with the letters N. I. on every tablet. This is your guarantee that you are getting genuine Nuxated Iron.

The tremendous success of Nuxated Iron as a tonic, strength and blood-builder has led to the offering of numerous substitutes and imitations. Investigation shows that many of these instead of being organic iron may be nothing more than a metallic iron compound which may in some instances produce more harm than good. Such instances have led physicians to emphasize that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron.

OVER 4,000,000 PEOPLE annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood, help revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and give you new strength and energy. It costs about eighteen times as much to make organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, as it does to make metallic iron, though it costs you but little more. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. If you are not feeling quite up to the mark, start taking Nuxated Iron today. In tablet form only; look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. Nuxated Iron for the blood and nerves is sold by all druggists.

Notes of Interest to St. Louis Art Lovers.

As a splendid climax at the close of the eighteenth annual exhibition of paintings by American artists at the City Museum comes the purchase of one of the outstanding works in the exhibit, "The Expulsion," the decoration by Eugene Francis Savage. The acquisition of this painting, one of the important examples of contemporary American art, puts it in the permanent collection where it strikes a distinctive note in the school of "modern" painting.

Comparatively little information is on record pertaining to the career of Eugene Savage, owing to the fact of his sudden recognition. From complete obscurity during his first years as a student at the Art Institute of Chicago, he came into public notice in 1912 when his painting, "Morning," won for him the Prix de Rome, entitling him to a three-year course in the American Academy in Rome. At that time it became known that Savage was born in Covington, Ind., and moved to Bloomington, Ill., while very young. At the age of 16 he attended the Corcoran Art School in Washington, D. C., later returning West to study at the Art Institute of Chicago. During this period, which was one of struggle, he was employed doing commercial art. Few noticed his efforts, and even after he returned from Europe at the expiration of his scholarship, little of his work was seen for several years. No doubt he was assimilating what he had learned in Rome. His first year there was devoted to copying the works of old masters, his second to the study of architectural designing and mural decoration, and the third to the exclusive study of painting.

Then strangely beautiful decorations by Savage began to appear in the Chicago exhibits. About them were somehow the qualities of sculpture and the feeling of architectural solidity combined with fine artistry. Soon these decorations came to be anticipated by frequenters of the displays, and finally they were invited to exhibits in other cities where they also received high praise.

THE greater part of Savage's work has been in mural decorating, so his easel pictures are few in number. He never was a prolific painter, one work a year being his average output. So much time and care does he expend upon the creation and completion of his pictures, that he regards them with a sort of paternal fondness, considering them as members of his family before they leave his possession.

A greater part of the refinement in conception that is felt in Savage's decorations may be attributed to his love for music. He says his greatest inspirations have come to him while under its influence.

Within the past year one of his achievements has been the series of decorations illustrating Basil King's religious history, "The Discovery of God." From a reproduction it is apparent that the original drawing of "The Expulsion" was used to illustrate one of the first chapters of King's book. The quality of the reproduction indicates that the first painting was done in tempera, its tones in the figure drawing being quite flat and the background lacking the finesse so evident in the oil painting of the same subject. Close comparison of the two pictures reveals a number of differences. In the first painting the female figure is draped and the position of her body does not suggest the grief that is depicted in the larger painting. The clenched hand of the male figure and the force of his opposite shoulder are more strongly significant than before, while details of background are more intricately fashioned and the picturesque leaves of the oak bough added. Such beauty of composition, and such a satisfying conception of a subject so often misinterpreted, well deserve the reconstruction the artist saw fit to give it.

Before consummation of the purchase of the painting, Mr. Savage received an invitation to exhibit "The Expulsion" for one month at the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, beginning Dec. 19. Although its absence will deprive St. Louis of one of the most important of its recent acquisitions, the museum will loan the painting for the exhibition and will place it on public display here immediately after its return the last of January.

THE display of Oriental art objects belonging in the Parsons collection has been postponed until next week because the Thumb Box Exhibition occupies galleries 26 and 27 of the museum. At the close of the Thumb Box show the most important of the Chinese and Japanese bronze and lacquer objects will be installed to accompany the Parsons paintings which now occupy galleries 31, 30 and 25. A review of these paintings will commence next Sunday.

UNTIL next Friday, the Art League's Annual Thumb Box Exhibition will be on display in the museum. The pictures are hung to the best advantage possible and comprise an interesting show, although some critics feel that as a whole it does not equal last year's exhibit. A number of exhibitors are members of the Artists' Guild, and have placed some of their small pictures in the exhibit in progress there. Both shows coming at once may account for a shortage in one or the other.

Ivan Summers, a St. Louis artist who spends the greater part of his time in the Woodstock colony, contributes eight little pictures to this exhibition. Some are identically typical of the Carlson manner, even to the subject of forest interiors, while others vary and possibly reveal his own individuality. In all one finds ample strength and power.

Gustave Goetsch has a group of 12 nice sketches, four of which are black and white drawings. For the most part, his other color sketches are notes for serious paintings of harbor marine subjects, although some are almost finished pictures as they stand.

Three little pictures on the north wall of gallery 26 speak well for the impression Marcel Olis left on one of his former conferres. Now that Mr. Olis is safely away, Mr. Heuser sprouts out in direct imitation of not only his style but also of actual theme and composition. The two smaller pictures, so unmistakably reminiscent of the little Grand Canyon scenes which took second prize last year, fall short of their mark not only in color quality and palette knife technique, but in the comprehension of arrangement and composition. Blame should not be laid on Mr. Heuser for modelling his own efforts upon another's work which he so evidently admires. He should not be condemned for admiring Mr. Olis' style, but should be criticised for not having studied it more thoroughly before attempting to mitate it.

As for John Eppensteiner's pastel landscape called "Characters," we can only say it seems rather a presumptuous title for sa vapid a sketch.

MRS. EMILY SUMMA is represented by five pictures, two of which I consider a great improvement over most of her work. I have previously seen. One of these is a sketch of a wheatfield at harvest time. Her color is good and the rapid notes she has made will develop into a nice painting if she chooses to carry them that far. The other is her flower piece, which is hung on the lower line. It is not exaggeration, nor is it too mild. The glare is subdued, yet the color is not deadened.

Three batiks by Sheila Burlingame are exhibited in the doorway between Galleries 26 and 27. Interesting in design and well colored, they are splendid evidences of the young woman's unusual skill in crafts.

Victor Holm in the role of painter is something new. His color contributions to the Thumb Box are "tone poems," the greater beauty of which is largely a matter of the spectator's imagination. If one looks for pictorial interest, he is disappointed, but if he looks for a vague expanse in which to take a flight of fancy, he is rewarded. Mr. Holm's little upright, "Lake Michigan," illustrates this. While nothing but sky and water is suggested, still a spectator with a robust imagination could half close his eyes and dream of voyaging far across that sea to the "Land of Might Have Been." We are anxious to see what Mr. Holm gives us next.

Church Carnival.

The Young Ladies' Sodality and St. Ann's Sodality of the Holy Name Parish, will hold a carnival in the Parish Hall, Twenty-first street and East Grand avenue, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

What Will Be the Answer?

Edward Bok, an American philanthropist, has offered a $100,000 prize for the essay which depicts the best solution for World Peace.

What a wonderful opportunity is thereby given the thinking minds of today, and what a diversity of opinions will result.

There is one paramount issue which must enter into this all-interesting subject. Thinking persons will admit that there must be a foundation for this desired solution.

The children of each generation will be the parents of a succeeding generation and not until the HOME is a recognized factor and the only place for the proper foundation will there be any World Peace.

It Must Begin at Home!

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Weakness.

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

By all means, drink lots of good water every day. Have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

NEW GERMAN OIL FORMULA RUBS OUT RHEUMATIC PAINS

Local Druggists Give Written Guarantee to Refund Money if First Application Fails to Bring Relief.

A remarkable new discovery now promises quick, soothing relief to Rheumatic Sufferers. German chemistry that has given to the world the boon of Aspirin for the relief of headache pains and Novocaine for painless dentistry, has now come forward with another scientific discovery that is absolutely guaranteed to end rheumatic pains.

This marvelous discovery, known as Buhler Oil, is a new combination of certain rare oils, which produces a clear amber liquid that is applied with the finger tips. It is so penetrating that it disappears within a few seconds, so it must be entirely absorbed by the body tissues. Results are truly amazing! Tired muscles regain life, creaking joints become supple, annoying twinges cease. Even the most advanced, stubborn cases show astonishing improvement almost at once.

Rheumatism, it has been found in an enormous number of cases, is due to toxic poisons formed in the intestines, which are carried by the blood to the muscles and joints—and the new German oil is designed to neutralize these pain-causing poisons.

So amazing have been the results from this German discovery that American distributors have authorized local druggists to offer it under a positive written guarantee, signed by the druggist himself, to refund the purchase price if even the first application fails to bring prompt and gratifying relief.

If you suffer from stabbing rheumatic pains in the arms, legs and muscles—if your back sometimes feels as if it would break in two—if your joints rasp and torture you—then by all means try a bottle of Buhler Oil today. You'll never want to be without it.

Remember—it is sold under an absolute written guarantee from your druggist. If it fails to give you relief after the first application, your druggist will refund the money without question. In this city Buhler Oil can be obtained under this written guarantee from good druggists such as: Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores (3 stores), Kieffer Drug Co. (2 stores), Enderle Drug Co. (6 stores), Johnson Bros. Drug Co.

It's just wonderful how "Gets-It" ends corns and callouses. Put a few drops of "Gets-It" on a hurting corn and Presto! The pain stops at once forever. No matter how long you've had corns, how bad they may be, whether hard or soft, or what you have tried, believe this—"Gets-It" will end corn pain at once, soon you can lift the corn right off with the fingers. Money back guarantee. Costs but a trifle—sold everywhere. E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

ROADS IN FEDERAL AID HIGHWAY PLAN SELECTED

Work of Preparing Map of System Covering Entire Country Under Way.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Designation of all roads in the federated highway system, comprising about 185,000 miles, practically has been completed and approved by the Bureau of Public Roads. The selection of 7 per cent of the roads of the nation for future systematic improvement is declared by the Government's road officials to have been the largest and most important task assigned to the bureau. Many conferences have been held with highway officials representing adjacent states in the process of correlating the roads of the primary, or interstate, highways and many difficult situations have been adjusted.

The last of the tentative maps showing the systems proposed by the several states has been received by the Government and the work of preparing a map of the Federal-aid highway system of the country is well under way. The Federal highway act requires that the Bureau of Public Roads shall issue by Nov. 9 this year a map showing the progress in designating the Federal-aid system and that maps shall be issued thereafter from time to time showing the progress of selection, construction and reconstruction.

The first map of the system probably will be in two sections, one of the eastern half, the other of the western half of the United States. These maps will be six feet long and four feet wide and will show the primary, or interstate, and secondary, or intercounty, highways selected. In the production of the map every possible use was made of other map-producing agencies of the government to reduce to a minimum the requirements in the way of original drafting.

"LADY OF QUALITY" "HER REPUTATION" "APRIL SHOWERS"

love affair between an Irish boy and girl. Clouds gather over their romance when a society girl, doing settlement work, takes a fancy to the young man. Ruth Clifford takes the part of the society girl.

On the stage is a new edition of the Grand Central Revue, with practically the same cast as last week's show, including Frank Moulan, Elsie Thiede, Lorna Doone Jackson, Willard Andelin, Addison Fowler and Florenz Tamara, Grace Brinkley and members of the Municipal Opera Chorus. Added principals are Frank Trombauer, saxophone specialist, and Bill Bailey, xylophone player.

Viola Dana in "The Social Code," tops the bill at the Kings Theater.

Miss Dana is seen as Babs, a social butterfly who finds herself confronted by a serious situation when Colby Dickinson is discovered dead in front of his bachelor apartment. Dean Cardigan is accused and only an alibi can save him.

Babs tells the court that Dean was with her on that fateful night. In reality Babs' sister, the judge's wife, was the one who could have furnished the alibi for Dean.

The Delmonte Theater is presenting a film version of James Forbes' stage play, "The Famous Mrs. Fair," which was played by Henry Miller and Blanche Bates and which has now been made into a movie drama by Fred Niblo. The story tells what befalls the Fair family when Mrs. Fair, returned from Red Cross service abroad, decorated and famous, is persuaded by flattery and a misdirected sense of duty to go on an extended lecture tour, telling of her experience abroad. To her husband, son and daughter she has merely stopped in to say "hello" on her way from France before embarking on a new fad. Several months later, Mrs. Fair returns home unexpectedly to find her family disintegrating. Without the guiding motherly hand things have gone to pieces. Shocked at first by the deplorable state of affairs, she soon realizes that her own selfish ambition is the cause of trouble, and she rights the wrong. Myrtle Stedman has the title role, with Huntly Gordon, Marguerite de la Motte, Cullen Landis, Ward Crane, Carmel Myers and Helen Ferguson in the supporting cast.

Wm. A. Brady's stage play, "Drifting," dramatized for the screen in eight parts by Universal, is the feature for the week at the downtown Rivoli theater. Priscilla Dean has the leading feminine role. The whole story is actuated by the secret romance of the opium traffic.

The Liberty Theater bill for the week is a picturization of the successful stage play, "Cameo Kirby," starring John Gilbert, with Gertrude Olmstead, Alan Hale and Jack McDonald in support. Gilbert has the role of a picturesque "honest gambler" of the old steamboat days on the Mississippi River. Cameo Kirby shoots as straight as he plays and as a climax in the drama he kills a crooked gambler in a duel and restores to an old Southern family the plantation which the card shark had won by playing dishonestly.

At the Columbia, Monte Blue and Mary Alden are starred in the feature photoplay, "The Tents of Allah."

DANDRUFF SOON DESTROYS THE HAIR

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Use Cuticura Soap Daily

Bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water to cleanse your skin and free it from impurities. If rough or pimply, anoint with Cuticura Ointment. Cuticura Talcum is ideal for perfuming as well as powdering.

MOTHER, CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS —GIVE "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Even Cross, Feverish, Sick Children Love its Delicious Taste and it Never Fails to Empty Little Bowels

A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will quickly start liver and bowel action and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Fig Syrup" because it never fails to work the sour bile and constipation poison right out of the little stomach and bowels without cramping or overacting.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on the bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

Mother Ill 14 Years Finds Miracle

Sick Fourteen Years - - - Then Appendicitis

"My mother had been sick for 14 years and nothing ever helped her and in the meantime she had appendicitis. Two bottles of Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) worked miracles. I feel it my duty to let you know how wonderful Adlerika is for the good it has done my mother." (Signed) Mrs. A. F. Jackson.

A TREACHEROUS DISEASE.

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by so-called stomach trouble, constipation or similar disturbances. Often when there is a warning feeling of uneasiness in the abdomen, appendicitis can be guarded against in the same manner in which one guards against the spread of throat infection, because that is just what appendicitis is—an infection in the intestines spreading to the appendix. When one has sore throat, one can often prevent further trouble by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to fight the germs and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. The same procedure is necessary to fight the intestinal germs and guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here. It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on both upper and lower bowel and removing matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of foul matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never knew was in your system. Try it just one natural movement and feel better, more foul matter it brings out, more poisoning you. In slight disorders occasional constipation, sour stomach, on the stomach and sick headache, a spoonful Adlerika, ALWAYS helps. A longer treatment, however, necessary in cases of obstinate constipation, long standing stomach trouble, etc., under direction of your physician.

REPORTS FROM PHYSICIANS.

"I found Adlerika the best in my 37 years' experience." (Signed) M. P. Dix, (Name given on request.)

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases, require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I have found nothing in my 30 years practice to excel Adlerika."

"After taking Adlerika feel better for 20 years, haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES removed from my system." (Signed) J. E. Parker.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary laxative and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere. Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, and Rexall Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

Stop Whiskey

Home Brews and Moonshine Taking Men Everywhere That Can Easily Be Saved, Secretly If Desired.

Hundreds of wives, sisters and sweethearts have successfully reclaimed victims of moonshine whiskey by the famous Golden Treatment, first introduced by the celebrated Dr. Haines. It is a tasteless, tasteless powder. Drop one into a cup of tea, coffee or mix it with food and there comes a remarkable result. It takes off the shaky nervousness, stops the awful desire for more poison, enables the hardest drinker to rest easily and in comfort, he gets peaceful sleep, he becomes himself and quits the drink evil, he hates the stuff. He can take the powders himself if he wants to quit, but the safest and surest plan to make him quit, even if he thinks he can't, is to give it secretly. And you can have a free trial of this famous treatment and see for yourself how wonderfully and quickly it braces up the pitiable victim, fairly on the verge of delirium tremens. Don't let your husband, son or brother go blind or lose his reason when you can save him. Send for this free trial at once. Don't delay.

BLOSSOM TIME AT THE JEFFERSON THEATER TONIGHT

cumstances give scope for much picturesque costuming. Among the newcomers in the company are Edyth Thayer, Sinta Leyton and Marion Abel, playing the three sisters.

The new burnt-cork combine at the American is styled "The Neil O'Brien Minstrels, With Bert Swor." O'Brien himself has returned to the stage, and will appear at every performance, one of his skits being his "street car" turn of some years ago. Swor's principal appearance is as a chiropractor, in a monologue.

"Molly Darling," a musical comedy, featuring Jack Donahue, dancer, is next week's announcement at the American. It will be followed by return engagements of "Shuffle Along" and "Lightnin'." December will bring two Belasco productions—Mrs. Fisk, in St. John Ervine's "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," and David Warfield, in "The Merchant of Venice."

After "Blossom Time," the Shubert-Jefferson will present a musical play, "Wildflower," in which Eva Olivotti will have the principal role. Miss Olivotti was for one season ingenue of the Municipal Opera Co.

Leonard Does Training Stunts.

THE lightweight champion, at the Orpheum, will give an exhibition of training and prize ring feats, together with song, dance and comedy bits, in which he will be assisted by Herman and Sammy Timberg. The pugilist made his theatrical debut last season in "The Dancing Girl," at the New York Winter Garden. Others on the bill include Pearl Regay, dancer, supported by Lester Sheehan; Rockwell and Fox, in a musical act; Artie Mehlinger, singer; Edward Miller, singer, and Victoria and Du Pree, acrobatic dancers.

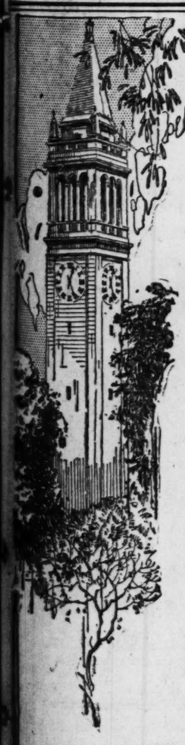
The Rialto announces Billee Shaw, dancer, in a revue; Sylvia Clark, comedienne; Bert Lehr and Mercedes, in a comedy turn; the Three White Kuhns, singers; Berk and Sawn, eccentric dancers; and Van and Bell.

The Columbia's bill includes "Raffles" and three assistants, in "Cheating the Grave," an illusion; Harry Warden and Benny Burtt, comedy vocalists; Carl Delerto, comedian; Evans and Dean, in a playlet; the Lytell Twins, and Achilles, an athlete. The film feature is "The Tents of Allah," with Monte Blue and Mary Alden.

At the Grand Opera House will appear Joe Thomas, Jeanne Mai and Archie Nicholson, in music and comedy; Arthur Jarrett and a company, in "Cupid's Close-ups"; Emil Borero, Sunny Bernet and Al Downs, Little Pipifax and Frank J. Sidney. The Gayety's offering is "Wine, Woman and Song."

Gen. Hale to Inspect Barracks.

Gen. Harry C. Hale, commanding the Sixth Corps area, will arrive from Chicago tomorrow evening for an inspection of Jefferson Barracks, Scott Field, the St. Louis Recruiting office and the organized reserve office in East St. Louis. He will be accompanied by Major P. H. Hawley, Corps Area Medical Inspector.



The Sather Memorial Clock at the University of California, Berkeley, is located in a granite tower 300 feet high and has four dials. The clock is equipped with a complete set of chimes costing $25,000.

time counts when you need a physic

WE are often asked why so many doctors prescribe Pluto Water. Our answer is that doctors know the importance of quick relief from constipation, and Pluto acts in 30 minutes to two hours.

A clogged intestinal tract is breeding ground for disease of every kind—80% of all sickness is traceable to constipation. It is sheer folly to wait overnight for a slow-acting cathartic to act when Pluto will so promptly remove the danger.

Pluto is as safe and harmless as it is sure and quick. It is a water laxative—gently and completely flushes the system. No griping or after unpleasantness. At all drug stores. Physicians prescribe it.

CONVENTION OF JEWISH WOMEN OPENS TODAY

More Than 500 Delegates in City for Meetings to Continue Until Friday.

More than 500 delegates and a score of nationally known men and women have arrived in St. Louis for the Tenth Triennial Convention Council of Jewish women, which holds its first session this morning. Convention headquarters are at the Hotel Chase.

Among the speakers are: Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, internationally known woman suffrage worker; Judge Florence E. Allen of the Supreme Court of Ohio, first woman to be elected to a state Supreme Court; Col. Dwight Davis, Assistant Secretary of War; the Hon. Mrs. Ernest L. Franklin, well known English educator; Mayor Kiel, and Congressman Harry B. Hawes.

The Council was organized thirty years ago as a philanthropic and educational institution. Its activities now extend into every State in the Union. Mrs. Alvin Bauman is president of the St. Louis section and Miss Rose Brenner is national president. The St. Louis section has rendered valuable service in co-operation with the City Board of Education.

A meeting of the Executive Council will be held this morning. Tonight, at the Temple Shaare Emeth, will be held a meeting open to the public. Hawes, Col. Davis, Mayor Kiel, and Miss Brenner will be the principal speakers. The meeting will be followed by a reception at the Columbian Club.

Judge Florence Allen will speak tomorrow afternoon on "Women in the Courts." Tomorrow night Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt will address the convention at Temple Israel on "War or Peace?"

Tuesday evening will be "International evening." Mrs. Ernest L. Franklin will speak on "The World Today: Woman's Opportunity," and Mrs. Philip North Moore, president of the National Council of Women of the United States, will give an address.

For Wednesday the program announces the thirtieth jubilee banquet at the Hotel Statler, and for Thursday dinner at the Columbian Club, followed by the concert of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

One of the features of the convention will come Friday, when the pulpit of every temple in St. Louis will be occupied by some prominent delegate, who will speak on various phases of the work of the council.

Another feature will be the presence at the convention of all the past presidents of the council and all the surviving charter members. Mrs. August Frank was the St. Louis delegate at the first convention in Chicago, 30 years ago. The council now has 210 chapters, located in every large city in the United States and the slogan for this convention is "100,000 Members by the Tenth Triennial."

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY MEETING

Federation Sessions Next Friday at Schuyler Memorial.

The Women's Missionary Federation of St. Louis will hold its annual meeting next Friday, beginning at 10:30 a. m., at the Schuyler Memorial, Thirteenth and Locust streets. The Rev. T. S. Bagranoff, city missionary of the federation, will speak on "Our Local Work." Mrs. Mabel O. Holdridge of New York, president of the Women's International Society, will address the meeting on "Daily Vacation Bible School for World Children."

The afternoon session will be at 1:30 o'clock in the Christ Church Cathedral. The program will include devotion by the Very Rev. William Scarlett.

Monday Charity Club Meeting.

The Monday Charity Club will meet tomorrow at the residence of Mrs. J. E Eggers, 114 North Central avenue, Clayton. A luncheon will proceed the business session.

Jewish Women Raising $5000.

The St. Louis Chapter of "Hadassah," the Jewish women's organization for medical social service work in Palestine, is conducting a campaign, to close Nov. 15, to raise $5000, the city's quota of $250,000 being asked in the United States to carry on the work. Mrs. Oscar Leonard is chairman of the campaign committee.

It consists of a dresser 48 inches wide, with a 26x32-inch mirror, a 40-inch wide chiffonier, a 48-inch full vanity dresser and a bow-end double bed. To see this Suite is to desire it. And it's a wonderful value at $227.50.

Combination Range $124
White, blue or gray—a wonderful value .....

No Range could be better built or more attractively finished. It's made of high-grade steel, porcelain enameled in white, blue or gray.

There are four coal holes, and four gas burners, with pilot light. 18-inch oven, triple lined and inside enameled with porcelain. Double warming oven, porcelain lined.

Trimmings of finest nickel plate; porcelain handles for gas burners; a handy thermometer on the oven door.

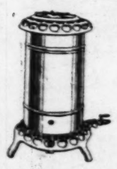
You can count on this Range for perfect cooking and baking and years of service. $124 spent for it will be a lifetime investment, yielding daily dividends of satisfaction.

Are you ready for Winter?

Have you good stoves to keep every room warm and cozy? We have any kind of Heater you need—all styles and sizes. And the prices are moderate.

Wilson Heaters $26.50 to $54.00
Everybody knows the reputation of Wilson Heaters—they can be depended on. We have a complete stock of them—presenting a wide selection of styles and sizes at the above price range.

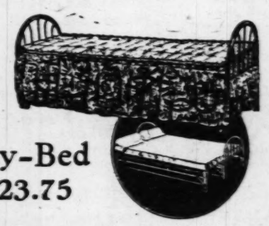
Charter Oak Hot Blast Heater $16.75
A remarkably economical Heater, because its hot-blast tube pours warm air on the fuel, thus aiding combustion and getting all possible heat out of it.



Gas Heater $1.98
A portable Heater that comes in handy when you want extra warmth, as in the bathroom. Has double-wall construction, and burns with a clean blue flame. Attaches to any gas jet. Perfectly safe.

Detroit Jewel Kitchen Heater
On cold mornings it will heat up your kitchen long before the furnace could. Starts with gas, then burns coal, wood—any sort of fuel.

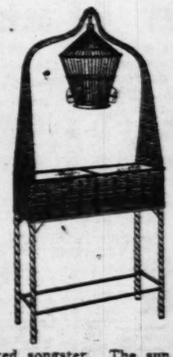
Estate Sunburst Electric Heater $6.75
Chases chills out of cold corners in a hurry. Starts glowing the minute you turn on the current. It's portable, safe to use and a real bargain at $6.75.



Day-Bed $23.75
Has Windsor style tubular steel frame, enameled in mahogany or walnut finish. Equipped with resilient steel springs and a thick soft pad, cretonne covered. Does double duty—a restful couch by day, a comfortable bed at night.

Porcelain-Top Kitchen Table, $6.95
An all-white Table that will add to the spotless appearance of your kitchen. The top, 40x25 inches, is of perfect quality white porcelain, all in one piece. The rest of the Table is enameled white. And there's a roomy drawer for cutlery.

Reed Fern Stand and Bird Cage $14.75



Imagine how this graceful Stand will add to the cheerfulness of your home, after you have filled it with ferns and a feathered songster. The sun parlor is just the place for it. 32 inches wide and 66 inches high, it's made of selected reed in frosted brown, gray or ivory finishes.

CIRCUS TO SHOW IN THE COLISEUM

Hagenback-Wallace Aggregation to Give 3-Ring-Performance for a Week.

As soon as the Horse Show, in the Coliseum, is over, the Hagenback-Wallace Circus will begin moving its horses and its other and less domesticated animals into building, for the seven-day engagement to begin Monday night, Nov. 12.

The circus is announced as the most complete indoor performance ever seen here. Three rings and a racetrack will be used, beside full aerial equipment. The first part of the program will be made up of wild animals' performances in a steel-caged inclosure, which will then be removed, and the latter part of the show will be given by human performers.

About 300 persons, more than 100 horses, 12 elephants, a hippopotamus, lions, tigers, leopards, pumas, sea lions, bears, kangaroos, chimpanzees and zebras are with the show. All the animals perform, as do most of the human personnel. There are some 35 clowns, and 50 of the animals are classified as humorous performers.

The St. Louis performance will inaugurate the second annual winter tour of the show, which will appear later in Milwaukee, Cleveland, Toronto, Buffalo and Brooklyn, and will be in Kansas City next February.

The dirt floor used here, over the Coliseum flooring, will be carried to the subsequent stops as part of the show's equipment, as it has been found difficult to get dirt on short order in winter. The stalls provided for the Horse Show horses will be left for the use of the circus.

A Rainbow Garden of Tulips for $2.00

In the May flowering tulips, with their huge blossoms on stately stems, we find the supreme expression of color. No other flower can compare with the wide range of brilliant and delicate tints and shades which is offered by the Darwin, Cottage and Breeder types. They will provide a brilliant Spring show in any garden, and prove to you the high quality of the bulbs from Vaughan's Seed Store, which are the finest of Holland production, bought with the knowledge acquired in 40 years' experience in large volume imports.

The Automobile as a Social and Business Essential

By One of America's Best Known Psychologists.

We can get along, often quite comfortably, too, without that which seems necessary, but we can not get along without that which is essential.

What seems necessary in one age becomes essential in another. The things which our fathers considered luxuries are now necessities. The introduction of an oil lamp to take the place of tallow candles precipitated a great sensation; electricity a household revolution.

Many men whose businesses are in the city, go out to the suburbs when they go home at night. Many others would like to do so—and there are such goodly places still for sale within living distance of St. Louis.

The one essential thing that a city man must have to own such a place is an automobile. The kind of car will depend upon various considerations.

In the suburban or country home the automobile is more than a convenience. It is a social necessity, a family essential, an annihilator of distance, a family carry-all, a city express, an extra postman and a pleasure touring car.

The better the automobile the farther we can penetrate into nature and the larger the choice in the selection of a home.

The best friend that a family in either the city or in the country can have is a good automobile; and, happily, the possession of this essential does not depend upon a lavish expenditure of money. The man of modest means can enjoy the pleasures which a car affords by the purchase of a good car which has seen some service, and wait for the time when a larger income will justify a more expensive car. Such cars are offered daily in the classified "Automobiles" columns of the Post-Dispatch. Many of them are good, dependable, guaranteed cars. Want a particular make or model? Many are offered today—others appear from day to day. Read carefully and investigate these opportunities.

DOUGLAS, Ga., Nov. 3.

HARVEST time has come and gone in the South Georgia country, but the corn still stands ungathered in the garden patch adjoining the lonely cabin that was Love Rogers' and the tockle-burs that grow thickest between two rows which are wider apart than the rest bespeak the neglect that fell upon the little farm in the cultivation season when its tenants fled from the region.

Between the two rows that are wider apart than the rest the quail hunter who by chance wanders upon the deserted homestead may come upon a rough excavation resembling a crude open grave, and if he is familiar with the history of that grave and the fearful secret it has yielded up, it is not unlikely that he might shudder and find reasons of his own for pressing on and out of the vicinity of the cabin before nightfall.

For it was between the rows that are wide apart that, a few weeks ago, investigators dug up the body of Love Rogers, and it was the weird story his brother, Alton, told of the spirit that walked from the cornfield at night that led them to the spot.

Edgar Allan Poe, his fancy warped into grotesque channels by stimulants and suffering, once conceived the horror of a "Telltale Heart" which, thumping with a steadily mounting crescendo in the body of a murderer's victim under the floor, drove the slayer to distraction and confession of his crime. Here on a backwoods Georgia farm near West Green in Coffee County, where Alton Rogers lived with his brother and his brother's wife, has been enacted in real life a crime and a retribution which might match even the fantasy that rose in the imagination of the world's greatest master of the grewsome.

When Alton Rogers killed his brother a year ago so that he might marry the widow, he at first experienced, as did the slayer of Poe's fiction, the elation of security. With the neighbors convinced that Love Rogers had deserted his wife and two small children to flee with another woman, there seemed to be little danger that prying hands would ever be led by curiosity to lift the soil from the ghastly form in the garden or, indeed, go to any special trouble to find out where he had gone, because nobody cared particularly.

The Ghost From the Cornfield

But in spite of apparent security, the guilty brother and his guilty mistress, like the monster of Poe's distorted fancy, were brought to judgment by the terrors born of a troubled conscience. The same hysterical state of mind that led the murderer of "The Telltale Heart" to gloat by day over the cleverness of his crime only to be reduced to despair at night by the betraying thump against the cabin floor caused this Twentieth century Cain to follow up his daylight bravado with paroxysms of horror when at nightfall something seemed to come in from the cornfield, to lurk in the shadows about the dimly lighted hut and to tramp about the room when everything else was stilled for the night.

Now whether or not Alton Rogers actually saw the ghost of his brother may be a matter of dispute. Alton insists that he did and in the light of subsequent happenings, who is there to contradict him? If troubled spirits ever return to the scenes of their earthly life for vengeance certainly the shade of Love Rogers had abundant cause to do so and the fact remains that it was these nights of terror that finally drove Alton to flight and, as it happened, to his certain doom.

Even in Florida where he sought to escape the sight and memory of the garden and where, he says, he married the woman who was his partner in the crime, the haunting fear, still pursuing him, caused him to seek comfort by confiding in another brother, Joe Rogers, the tale of the cornfield ghost. But had he gone to the sheriff instead and made a clean breast of the whole affair he could not have brought about his undoing with more certainty, for the story of a spirit hovering about a lonely cornfield when it was supposed to be plunged in the very earthly pleasures of an illicit alliance in another state aroused Joe's suspicions.

Without saying any more about it to Alton, he communicated with the authorities of Coffee County here. Their investigation and discovery followed, with the result that the fugitives were arrested and brought back here to jail where, bit by bit, the officers drew from Alton the story of how a secret love affair with his sister-in-law had led the pair to lay plans for ridding themselves of the inconvenient husband; of how they returned one night from a clandestine rendezvous to find him asleep in the cabin; of how they dug the shallow hole in the garden patch, shot the sleeping man and dragged his body to the waiting grave and, finally, how they deceived the neighbors and exulted in the deception, only to be driven at last to confession by fear of the thing that seemed to walk through the rustling corn.

"I Know They'll Break My Neck"

In the county jail here Alton Rogers and the woman who was his brother's wife now wait for the trial which on Nov. 22 will determine their fate, but even with the hangman's noose dangling almost above his head there is peace in the soul of the man, for the phantom of Love Rogers is no longer restless and he feels that he has squared accounts with the brother whom he robbed of life and home.

"I know they will break my neck for this," he says in moments of reflection, "but it will be better than living in that cabin with the spirit coming in out of the garden."

The fatal triangle which grew out of a very ordinary family circle took its form soon after the marriage of Love Rogers and the pretty Yarbrough girl, who was one of the belles of the community. The newly wedded couple went to live on the little farm near West Green and Alton went to live with them, tilling the land in partnership with his brother. There for a time the group remained just a family circle, but in the little cabin the association of Alton and his brother's wife was somewhat closer than it might have been in more commodious quarters and an attachment sprang up between the two—an attachment of which, it seems, the husband was entirely unaware. For three years or more they lived thus, and the fact that two children were born during that period to Love Rogers and his wife operated not in the slightest to discourage the secret infatuation, nor did these additions to the household lead to enlargement of the already crowded lodgings.

As time went on and the monotony of backwoods farm life weighed upon them, Alton and the woman began to reason when clandestine meetings provided the opportunity that if only Love Rogers was out of the way—say if he should take a notion to run away with some other woman—the two would be free to marry and work out their destiny under conditions which they felt would be more to their liking. Love Rogers, however, being of unromantic disposition, showed no inclination toward philandering and the hope of gaining freedom through his waywardness had to be abandoned. Next the expedient of running away themselves was considered, but when this, too, seemed inadvisable, measures more strenuous suggested themselves.

It is not easy to say how long the desire to get rid of the husband and brother would have remained suppressed had the pair not returned to the farmhouse on the night of Nov. 18, last, and found him asleep. As it was, that situation seemed to offer the chance for which they had been waiting to shape destiny to suit themselves.

Neighbors Did Not Question Them

As for what transpired in the few minutes that followed there is now only Alton Rogers' confession and the skeleton from the corn patch to tell, but these are enough. There was a hurried consultation and a grave was dug in the garden; then Alton took his brother's pistol from the mantel and while the wife looked on, shot the sleeping man three times through the body. The deed accomplished, they wrapped the corpse in the quilt upon which it lay, half dragged, half carried it to the place prepared and there in the moonlight covered it from sight, unmindful then of the fitfulness which was to mark the spirit's slumber.

Three days later word went around the neighborhood that Love Rogers was missing. Neither wife nor brother could tell inquirers where he had gone, but the tales they did relate of his infatuation for a woman who formerly lived in the vicinity and his threats to leave them all and follow her to another State had visible effect upon the neighbors. These worthy folk deemed it unnecessary to investigate further. They could put two and two together. It was plain as day to them that he had just abandoned wife and children to go off chasing another woman and they expressed their views of the matter with the indignation characteristic of a farm community which feels it has been scandalized by a neighbor's trifling.

As for poor Mrs. Rogers, she felt awfully bad about it all of course—the scandal and everything—but she reckoned she would have to stick it out on the little farm and try to make a living for the children, and Alton, seeing that she was determined to stay, guessed he would have to help her until something else could be done. He had been a partner of his brother and of course felt obligated to look after the wanderer's family, nothwithstanding the hardship it placed upon him.

There was no suggestion that such a course would be improper. Instead there were words of praise for the brother who would so sacrifice himself. A right good man, that Alton Rogers, the neighbors thought.

When months passed and still there came no word from the truant husband acquaintances of the family ceased to think about him. The abandoned wife had not taken any steps to bring him back, so why should they? It probably was a good riddance of bad rubbish. And as for his failure to return to the community, there was no mystery about that. No doubt he was ashamed to show himself, and besides hadn't Mrs. Rogers said herself that on the very night before he disappeared he told her he was through with her and never expected to come back if he ever got away from that brushy farm? Never was there the slightest suspicion as to the real reason why Love Rogers could not come back, or at least in the form in which they might have expected him.

Plowed Over His Brother's Grave

Spring came and with it plowing time. Alton was preparing to put in another crop for Mrs. Rogers and the first sunny days in March found him turning over the red soil in the garden patch. Even over the spot where his brother lay he plowed without a tremor and planted corn which sent its roots down to draw strength from the body underneath. Two rows left wider apart than the others was the sole mark to tell even the slayers themselves where the body lay.

But as the corn grew up and its blades drew across one another in the breeze, Alton, his superstition and conscience working in turn upon his cracking nerve, began to hear rustles which seemed too sinister, too stealthy for

Powerful Corporations Seek to Have Her Competition Suppressed and Her Enterprise Ousted

Started in a Humble Way but a Short While Ago, It Has Grown to Such Proportions That It Is Taking the Cream of Their Local Passenger Business From the Steam Roads and Threatening the Interurban Lines With Bankruptcy—Law Passed by Last Legislature After Bitter Fight Gives Them the Weapon With Which They Hope to Put Her Out of Business—She Now Has 11 Large 24-Passenger Busses Operating Every Day Over a Radius of 200 Miles All Around Mason City.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MASON CITY, Ia., Nov. 3.

IN these days of rapid transit and transit not so rapid the majority of commuters, street car straphangers and others who daily ride to and from work or upon pleasure jaunts in public conveyances have pronounced ideas of their own about what constitutes or does not constitute "public convenience." Probably most of them, being better qualified by experience to speak on the negative side of the question, can tell more accurately what it is not, but nevertheless believe they know what it ought to be if their ideas could only be translated into methods of travel.

However, the problem of arriving at a suitable definition for the term may be one of more complexity than the average man suspects, for just now it is occupying the attention of divers legal experts throughout the State of Iowa and from present appearances, is one which is likely to furnish cause for court battles from one end of the State to the other before it is finally solved officially. The State Board of Railroad Commissioners is trying to determine its meaning now and upon their decision will hang the fate of Iowa's biggest motor bus line which in the last year has become one of the most important common carriers of the State.

Now the strangest phase of all this wrangle over "public convenience" with which the courts and railroads are engrossed is the figure about whom it revolves and the unusual manipulations of big business which brought it all about. This central figure is none other than a mild-mannered, soft-voiced young college woman of 24, Helen Schultz by name, who, a little more than a year ago thought she had found out what "public convenience" meant, with respect to inter-city travel at least, and who acted upon her conviction to the extent of establishing a bus line running between Mason City and neighboring towns with only one bus to run upon it.

What the Board of Railroad Commissioners thinks of her idea will be known when that body hands down its ruling following her recent hearing, but the rapidity with which her business has grown in the last 12 months until it is now the leading enterprise of its kind in the State, with 11 24-passenger cars operating on half a dozen long distance routes and beating some of the fast trains in schedule time, tells something of what the people thought of it and also what they thought about their own convenience which has been getting so much expert consideration of late.

A Rapidly Growing Enterprise

But the very fact that the public did respond so quickly to her venture, causing it to grow at unprecedented speed, has a great deal to do with the present controversy and with the sudden interest the railroads of the State have taken in "public convenience." The dispute is the direct outgrowth of a long fight six railroads have waged against the young woman to prevent her from obtaining a certificate of authority from the State Board of Railroad Commissioners in compliance with a new Iowa law, which requires that she get such a certificate or take her business from the State.

Miss Schultz, with her bus lines which she has incorporated under the name of the Red Ball Transportation Co., has made all the rail lines which traverse her territory take notice from the start. Her cars run on daily schedules over a network of routes extending as far north as Minneapolis and as far south as Des Moines. Each is in competition with one or more steam or electric roads and that is a fact which goes far to explain why these roads have united in protests against the issuance of a certificate to her. And as matters now stand, their efforts have not been entirely without success.

Under the Iowa law which went into effect after her entry into the transportation business there are two clauses governing the issuance of a certificate for bus line operation. One provides that the applicant must satisfy the Board of Railroad Commissioners that he or she was "actually operating in good faith" prior to April 14, 1923. The second requires the board to hold a public hearing to determine whether the service proposed to be rendered by a bus line will "promote the public convenience." If it finds favorably for the applicant it must issue the certificate and the operator must then pay a tax of one-eighth of a cent per ton mile for the privilege of using the public highways.

When the Legislature passed this law last spring after spectacular debate and Helen Schultz made her first bid for a license under it, the railroads centered their fight on the first provision of it and prevented the issuance because she had not then incorporated her company. She sidestepped this difficulty, however, by quickly incorporating and then obtained a temporary certificate upon which she continued to operate pending a hearing under the second provision. The hearing was held on Oct. 23 and this young woman, who in appearance suggests a kindergarten teacher rather than the head of a great transportation company, matched her wits with the best legal talent that six railroads could produce.

How Bus Line Idea Came to Her

Against her one attorney were pitted the combined counsel of such roads as the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, the Chicago Great Western, the Minneapolis & St. Louis, the Fort Dodge, Des Moines & Southern and the Mason City & Clear Lake. It was a formidable enough array for business firms of long experience headed by seasoned men, so if Helen Schultz wins her contest the victory will be a significant one; if she loses, her fight will have been a game one; in either case the findings of the board of commissioners will constitute a precedent for the State in the interpretation of the new law.

But how did this young woman, just out of school and with only the business experience gained in a few months' employment in a railroad office, hit upon her scheme and make it pay on such a prodigious scale as to bring the railroads down upon her, bent on driving her system from the State?

Authorities on psycho-analysis assert that most momentous human achievements can be traced to petty aversions or complexes which, in themselves have little apparent relation to their final manifestations, so in this case the primary reason why Iowa suddenly found herself able to travel in high-powered motor busses over the trails where prairie schooners and stage coaches once plodded their way probably was that Helen Schultz didn't like to cook and her mother didn't want her to work in a railroad office.

"After I was graduated from Christie College at Duluth, Minn.," Miss Schultz said to an interviewer recently, "I resolved to enter the business world because I didn't like housekeeping. My first job was that of a clerk in a railroad office and though I was not particularly aware of it at the time, the experience I got there was to be of great import to me later. Mother, however, didn't want me to work at a clerk's job and, as I had a little money of my own, I began to look around for a favorable opportunity to invest it.

"About that time I happened to go to California for the winter, where I had occasion to observe the operation of bus lines on the Pacific Coast, and I was deeply impressed with the service they were rendering to the traveling public. Gradually the idea came to me that I might work out a bus line system on a large scale in Iowa and make it pay. I returned home with this conviction in mind and, after watching the lines in Northern Minnesota for a time to get familiar with the methods of overcoming climatic obstacles which this latitude presents, put my idea into concrete form with one bus making round trips between Mason City, my home town, and other towns of the locality."

"Success Only Through Better Service"

"But I soon discovered that you cannot make a bus line pay unless you give the people better service than they can get on the trains. I found that one of the chief reasons why so many bus lines fail is that they don't run in a big enough way. People won't depend on you if you don't have large cars with the comforts and conveniences which railroad coaches afford. And then most bus line owners don't seem to realize that they are competing with the railroads in the matter of rapidity of transit. I found that in order to prosper I had to give steady service, summer and winter and outdo train service.

"With these things in mind I set about to enlarge my field of operation as profits from the first venture accumulated. From time to time I opened new routes when conditions seemed to justify them and now have the largest bus line in the State. I have the longest routes and cover the largest territory and all the time, I want to say, I have had plenty of competition from the railroads and electric lines. I sent one line west, hitting, among other towns, Garner, Britt, Algona and Clear Lake. Another goes south to Iowa Falls, Ames and Des Moines, and stopping at the smaller towns along the way. One goes east from here to Nora Springs and Charles City. Another goes southeast to Waverly, Cedar Falls and Waterloo, and still another, my longest one, follows the route north to Albert Lea, Owatonna, Northfield, Fairibault and the Twin Cities of Minnesota. All of these run regularly and I am planning to start two round trips a day even on the longest routes. One round trip a day to a station is not at all satisfactory. A bus line simply must outclass the railroads, for when it does this its future is safe. I know three men in Minneapolis who started out with $800, bought one bus and are now millionaires because they gave better service than the trains.

A closeup of one of the 24-passenger busses with Miss Schultz standing in front. The cars average about 200 miles a day each and the 11 in operation require 150 gallons of gasoline for their daily trips. This type of bus is also widely used in California, where their success so impressed Miss Schultz that she decided to try them in her home State.

Putting Interurban Out of Business

"Right now I am having especially hard competition from the Clear Lake interurban. (This road was one of the first to protest against the issuance of a license to Miss Schultz). But I like competition and the interurban is soon going to be a thing of the past. The interurban took the place of the stage-coach and the motor bus is going to take the place of the interurban. It has already done so in California and if I can win this fight with the railroads it will soon do it in Iowa."

Miss Schultz directs her operations from her office in Mason City. One of her hardest tasks in the development of her system has been in procuring of capable drivers. "It is hard to get competent, dependable drivers in the first place," she says, "and then when you do get them they are so often just young boys who drift about, making continual changes necessary. As a general thing I find them willing to take orders from a woman without argument, but if they get saucy, why I just fire them and that's all there is to it."

The mechanical end of the business is handled by M. J. Schultz, brother of the owner. He looks after equipment and repairs for the 11 big machines and grooms them for their races with the railroad trains. He always wanted to run a garage, Miss Schultz explains, and they thought it might be a good idea to combine his garage aspirations with the bus line project.

It requires 150 gallons of gasoline daily to operate the system and each car averages about 200 miles a day. Last winter the complete schedule, even on the northernmost routes, was carried out regularly except during a few weeks when heavy snow made the roads impassable. The type of machine with which she has been most successful is a huge one with six passenger compartments, one of which is a "smoker" at the rear. A carrier on top provides space for a reasonable amount of baggage.

All of Miss Schultz's busses bear names just as ships do. Among them appear such suggestions as "Miss Iowa" and "Miss Mason City."

Now Plans Union Depot for Lines

Miss Schultz has announced her plans for opening a union depot for bus lines in Des Moines if she succeeds in maintaining her right to operate her system, but future developments will depend largely, of course, upon the decision of the Board of Railroad Commissioners which now has the matter under advisement.

The contest is from every angle a unique one, for its outcome will not only affect Miss Schultz's company, but will have bearing on all bus line operation in the State.

The railroads contend that the bus lines are not needed and do not promote "public convenience." Then, to reinforce their argument, have come the protests of various county boards of supervisors that the busses work havoc with the fine gravelled highways. Many farmers, too, who live along the routes, declare that the heavy machines, running at high speed, dig ruts and holes in the surfacing and render road maintenance impossible.

So, whether the Railroad Commission rules in her favor or not, the question is likely to find its way into the District and even the Supreme Court before it is completely disposed of and the outcome will be closely watched by other States contemplating the passage of motor carrier laws. Nearly a hundred amendments to the present Iowa law were adopted before it was finally passed last spring and numerous others are expected when the Legislature meets in special session this winter.

Throwing her husband's keys in front of her, Clark said her husband had merely told her he was going away and would never return. She has not seen him to this day.

At the top, at left, is Mrs. Mary Drew Clark, who, the San Diego authorities say, has played a sinister and dominating part in the mystery. She is suspected of being the brains of her husband's schemes. They say that it was with her consent that her husband installed Mrs. Schick in a love nest after Schick's disappearance.

Above is Grace Lucille Mason whom Schick put into business as a milliner shortly before he disappeared. Later, when the business went into bankruptcy, she went to a Mexico border town and got a job as dancer in a cabaret. According to report circulated by Clark, Schick had often talked of going to Mexico. Clark suggests that he may be there with Grace Mason, though the authorities scoff at the idea.

"I See It All Now," Dramatically Exclaims the Supposedly Deserted Wife as She Points Accusing Finger at Her Husband's "Best Friend" Who Installed Her in Love Nest After Making Her Believe She Had Been Abandoned—She Tells of Missing Funds and of Plot to Insure Her Life in Such a Way as to Make Her Disappearance Profitable, Too—Weird Night Scenes in Lonely Canyon Where Neighbors Suspected Human Body Was Being Disposed of by Boiling and Burning.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 3.

SAN DIEGO County is conducting the weirdest search in its history in its attempt to clear away the mystery that fogs the disappearance of George E. Schick.

Mrs. Schick, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Drew Clark are held in jail. They have been charged with the forgery of a power of attorney which has given Mrs. Schick, and through her the Clarks, the $50,000 estate of the missing man.

And San Diego County searches for a body.

That is the one thing necessary to the completion of the case, they say—District Attorney Chester C. Kempley, Guy Selleck, his assistant, Sheriff James Byers, the Burns detectives hired by the relatives of Schick, who want to know all there is to know.

It's a bodiless murder mystery—and until the body is found, what are they going to do?

"It's a clear circumstantial case if we could only find the victim's body," they say.

They are going to hold onto the Clarks, as long as possible—charging them with every misdemeanor, and every felony that the case will warrant. The theft of a diamond ring, swindling, contributing to the delinquency of children—even spitting on the sidewalk, if nothing else will suffice.

Kempley wants to hold the pair until he finds the body—and men are perspiring as they dig all over San Diego County, all over the sweltering Imperial Valley, all over Northern Mexico, at all likely places of concealment.

George Schick disappeared Feb. 7. He was a little man who liked to boast that he was extremely rich. He came to San Diego in July, 1922, with his wife and two children. He came from Ohio where he an his brother Nick owned some coal properties.

Striking Contrasts in Their Physiques

He opened a real estate office, and met Clark. At that time Clark was a furniture store clerk. He sold the furniture which Schick wanted for his home and his office. He became extremely friendly, so friendly in fact that he became a partner in Schick's business.

Clark is a big man, a giant, while Schick seemed like a pygmy beside him.

A strange pair of friends—one runty, with shabby clothes, dirty finger-nails, and a loud voice that was always advertising himself; one big and fat, and a snappy dresser, a glib talked on spiritual subjects, on hypnotism, and on women, a man with a criminal record, and a queer sex twist in his mind.

Mrs. Clark is almost as big as her husband, a strong, dominating, cold, hard personality. Kempley believes she used Clark as a slave to carry out her designs. She cracked the whip—with a gesture of her eyes—and the giant leaped.

Mrs. Schick is a rather d woman, one easily led. She appears dazed—like one in a hypnotic state. Her memory is faulty. It is not known whether she really remembers all she has told the District Attorney—or whether she remembers what she imagined in the eight months that have passed since Feb. 7.

There is another personality in this strange case—and one that may be vital the denouement—Mrs. Grace Lucille Mason.

Now Grace Lucille is nobody's fool. She ran a millinery shop in San Diego. And she needed money. Schick, in his aimless way, wanted something to keep his wife's attention away from Clark. If he put her to work, maybe.

"Just Said He Was Going Away"

So he bought her a half interest in Grace Lucille's shop. She wasn't elated. No woman with two young husky sons to take care of all day long, she said, would jump at the chance to work in a store, even if she was a partner in the enterprise.

Schick let that pass with the notation that women were peculiar—and went to San Francisco with Grace Lucille Mason to buy some things for the shop. Mrs. Mason says he had a revolver with him, and that he ramarked he might do murder with it, if—for instance—he returned home and found Clark and Mrs. Schick together.

The millinery venture wasn't a success. It went bankrupt. And shortly after this Schick disappeared. He left home to go to his real estate office, says his wife. And she hasn't seen him since.

That night Clark visited her, and gave her Schick's keys.

"He just said he was going away for three months," Clark told her. "He didn't want anybody to know where he was going. I don't even know myself."

Shortly thereafter Grace Lucille Mason went to Mexicali, to become a dancer in a cabaret.

Shortly thereafter also, the spirits began to arrive at the home of the Clarks, 3424 Mission Drive.

The spirits had some surprising things to say to Mr. and Mrs. Clark—and to poor Mrs. Schick.

For one thing they revealed that in the spirit world Mr. and Mrs. Clark were only brother and sister; and that Clark's real mate was Mrs. Schick.

It was a shock to Mrs. Schick, but as long as the spirits had voted aye, it was so ordered.

With Mrs. Clark's knowledge and sanction, therefore, Clark and Mrs. Schick went to live in a pretty little love nest at El Cajon. The two boys, the younger four years old, and the elder 7, came to accept Clark as their new papa. One night he slept with the younger, and the next night with the elder—so they wouldn't fight about it. They called themselves Clark. The old daddy with the dirty finger nails, and the shabby clothes, and the loud talk of his money, passed out of their memories.

All was peace and serenity. Clark had declared he would leave a will, giving all his property to Mrs. Schick. She said she would deed everything over to him, by will. He suggested she insure herself—for the boys' sake—and make him the boys' guardian. She said she would do so, provided the money was left in trust for her sons. He thought that over, and forgot to mention it again.

One day he told her that Schick was dead. The spirits had shown him a vision. Schick, looting the Mexican treasury of bars of gold. Schick and a companion, rushing to a small boat at the water's edge, pursued by infuriated little brown men. Schick standing up in the boat, manfully, holding a pistol, firing back at the brown brethren, falling, shot, into the waters—into a school of hungry sharks.

"Yes,"—he said, according to her story—"that's what will happen to him in three months. Don't say anything about it until that time. And then say that a man named Peter Hawkins told you. People wouldn't understand if you said it was only a vision."

Mrs. Schick wrote to her relatives in Ohio, who were much alarmed. Schick had written to his mother in Bellaire, O., frequently, often more than twice a week. No letters had been received from him in months. What was the matter?

The pretty bungalow where Mrs. Schick lived under Clark's protection following Schick's disappearance.

At the left above is E. Drew Clark whom the authorities suspect of having knowledge of the fate of Schick with whom he was a business partner.

Above is George Schick who disappeared last February without leaving any trace and has not been heard from to this day.

The Schick children, George and August, who soon learned to call Clark "Daddy" after their mother went to live with him.

Mrs. Schick tried to explain, but could not. The Burns detectives began snooping around. Nick Schick, a brother, went to San Diego. The power of attorney, which had been attested by a notary, looked genuine until a handwriting expert scanned it.

Then it turned out to be a forgery. The love nest at El Cajon was broken up. The children were taken to the juvenile home, the spirit lovers and the other woman—Clark's wife—were taken to the jail.

YOUTHS TO WRITE OWN CREED

Part of Plans for This Year's Unitarian Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—Seven thousand young people, members of 200 junior religious societies of Unitarian churches throughout the country, are asked to write their own creeds, in an announcement of plans for this year's campaign by and with young people, made at national campaign headquarters.

These "statements of faith" will be written at the end of a three months' study of Unitarian principles, to be carried on by the local young people's religious societies. An outline statement of Unitarian belief and a selected list of books for reading have been mailed to the presidents of the 200 local societies.

Says She Looks Twenty Years Younger

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger.

mere movements of the wind. By day his fancies seemed ridiculous and he rebuked himself with the bravado of an "Emperor Jones" in a West Indian jungle for his failing courage. But when darkness fell and the little formless fears that are unknown to daylight came out, terror took possession. He would flee wild eyed to the cabin and there sit staring into the shadows for something which he felt stole into the house to sit between him and the woman for whom he had shed his brother's blood. Sometimes he would start from his troubled sleep at sounds which seemed to resemble the thud of a boot on the floor as if the dead were disrobing to retire with the living in the one-room farmhouse.

For weeks, Alton Rogers declares,

STORY OF "GHOST" WHICH DROVE MAN TO CONFESS HIS BROTHER'S MURDER

he fought to keep up his courage in the face of what he believes was his brother's ghost. Finally he could stand the strain no longer. He was afraid he would go stark mad if he stayed another night in that lonely farmhouse, even though the woman who had been the pretty Varbrough girl was with him. He told her they had to get away—any place away from that cabin where he could not see that cornfield or hear the rustling of its blades at night—and before residents of the locality learned of their intentions they had packed up their few belongings and, taking the two children with them, had fled to Avon Park, Fla.

Tell-Tale Irregular Corn Rows.

There a few weeks later at the home of Joe Rogers the burden of his brother's death found its way to Alton's lips. He talked of the fear that had haunted him and of his dread of the cabin. But if he had expected sympathy from Joe he was fatally mistaken. Joe took his story to the authorities and investigators were sent to the deserted farm. Between the two corn rows of irregular width they found the grave and in it the form that was once Love Rogers. They identified it by the fillings in the teeth.

The arrest of Alton and the woman quickly followed. Unaware that Joe had betrayed him, Alton at first stubbornly denied that he had any hand in his brother's disappearance. He even repeated the original story of the husband's elopement with another woman and in so doing added numerous details to bolster it. Love had even once been the target for a pistol shot from a neighbor because of attention to the man's wife and had left the country soon after the woman disappeared, he asserted.

But the body found in the cornfield was evidence enough that Love Rogers had not left the country in exactly the manner pictured so vividly by his brother. The officers began to close in on the pair.

"Why are there two rows of corn in that garden wider apart than the others?" one of them asked Mrs. Rogers. "Whose blood is that on the floor in front of the fireplace?"

Terror ruled again.

"He had to do it," the woman cried, wringing her hands. "The boy had to do it. My husband was going to kill him."

Then she gave her version of what happened at the cabin on that November night almost a year ago. Love Rogers had come home drunk, she said, and had threatened to choke her. Alton interfered and the husband turned upon him with a knife. Alton snatched up Love's own pistol and shot him before her eyes and then buried him in the garden.

Learning of this confession, Alton tried to alter his story to conform, elaborating on it profusely as he had done before the elopement tale.

"It was on the night of Nov. 18, 1922," Alton said. "My brother, Love, came home from town drunk and started to beat his wife. I tried to stop him and he pulled out a knife and backed me into a corner of the room. He was about to stab me when I managed to reach up to the mantel and grab his pistol. I fired at him twice, but the bullets didn't stop him and he kept on coming after me, so I took good aim and fired a third time. He doubled up at my feet and then we buried him in the garden. I loved my brother and would not have killed him if it had not been a case of his life or mine. It was time for one of us to go and I had to save myself."

"Came From His Grave Every Night."

When the Sheriff brought the pair back to the county jail here they were taken to an undertaker's shop and made to look upon the bones of the murdered man. The woman fainted and Alton was deeply affected. So deeply was he moved, in fact, that it was not many days before the county authorities had his full account of the crime, of his infatuation for the woman and of the part she played in carrying out the murder.

"We planned to kill him and decided to carry out our plan that night when we found him asleep," said Alton. "Together we buried him in the garden, but after it was all over Loves' spirit would come into the house at night and I couldn't stand it. I know I'm going to hang, but I'd rather be where I am than back there with him coming out of his grave every night."

Both Rogers and the woman have declared that they were married after their flight to Florida. Search of the records, however, has failed to reveal any evidence of a ceremony. Joe Rogers, who is now providing a home for the two children of his brother, asserts that he heard nothing about a marriage and says that while Alton and Mrs. Love Rogers were at his home they did not live as husband and wife.

Although Alton has implicated the woman in the crime in every way except in the actual killing, she has employed counsel and now insists that she had nothing to do with it beyond being an innocent cause of the fight, which she still declares took place.

Alton, however, has definitely abandoned his self-defense plea, and when the case goes to trial on Nov. 22 will, if his most recent statement may be believed, tell the jury of the crime as he last described it and of the restless apparition which came out of the corn at night driving him to his fate.

Five Years for Killing Partner.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—J. L. Combs has been convicted here on a charge of manslaughter and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. He was charged with killing W. A. Mathews, a stave man, with whom he had been in business here 11 years.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This Home-Made Remedy Is a Wonder for Quick Results. Easily and Cheaply Made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

A Little Down on a Big Bill

CIRCUMSTANTIAL CASE OF MURDER IF WE COULD FIND VICTIM'S BODY

And after some little time spent in talk, Mrs. Schick began to weep, and declared she would tell all she knew.

The document was forged. Clark helped her forge it. She was sure now that Clark and his wife had murdered her husband. She would take the stand and testify against him. She loved her husband. But Clark—she was afraid of him. He hypnotized her. And he confused her with his visions and his talk of spirits.

He had attacked her, even before her husband left. There was to be a child soon.

About the murder she knew nothing. She had no ideas. Her husband just went out as usual, and he hadn't come back. He had money with him, perhaps as much as $5000. Perhaps more. She had no ideas about that. He had talked of Mexico frequently. He had boasted of how he had killed four Mexicans at one time. When Clark told her of his vision, she accepted it as truth—probably because of her husband's threadbare boasts.

"That [illegible]," she screamed, meaning Clark. "I see it all now. He killed my husband. He made me forge that document. He wanted me to leave him all my property, and make him guardian of my boys. Then—when everything was ready—he would have killed me too."

Kemplay believes Mrs. Schick implicitly. Only he ascribes the potential plot not to Clark primarily, but to Mrs. Clark.

"Clark was merely her tool," he says.

Witnesses were found in plenty who seemed to bear out a theory of murder.

Three neighbor women had oased by the Clark home in Mission Drive last February—yes, it must have been Feb. 7, because one remembered distinctly it was just a week from St. Valentine's day, and another recollected it was exactly four days before a dear friend had died, a friend she had nursed. And this friend died on Feb. 11.

They were passing the Clark house—they had been strolling by the great canyon in back of the house, and near to it. They had been standing on the point that overlooks Mission Valley, and talking as women will.

And in passing the house they heard voices, leading them to believe there was a fight between two men and a woman. They remembered nothing they heard—no words, that is. Perhaps they heard what the voices said. But it was over eight months ago. They couldn't be sure they heard any words.

However, two nights later, they saw a cauldron bubbling and boiling down in the canyon. Veritable witch's cauldron, they said. It threw off a great fire that made shadows dance among the brushwood. There was a peculiar odor, too—extrmely offensive—an odor they had never smelled before. Human flesh burning? They didn't know, of course.

Bats flew through the smoke. A coyote howled from somewhere down in the depths. It was blood curdling. A man went toward the cauldron, carrying a sack on his back. A furtive man, a shadow among shadows.

The cauldron was found not far from the home where the Clarks resided. Near it was the remains of a fire, bits of charred wood, a buckle from a man's belt, buttons, cans of lye.

A laugh from Clark.

'I burned up a dead cat there one night."

And a doctor declared the bits of charred bones were not from a human body.

The next day more bones were found, and analyzed. They were not human.

"Examine the canyon," said Sheriff Byers.

But the canyon is miles long, and extremely deep. You could hide the largest building in St. Louis in it, and not find it again for weeks. And the place abounds in scorpions and rattlesnakes, and coyotes, and bobcats. It would take a regiment to search it thoroughly.

Ranchers began calling in, telling of mysterious burials here and there, and more bones of animals were dug up. Women in Los Angeles began to write to the San Diego authorities, asking if Clark were not their divorced husband.

The Burns men said they expected to prove that Clark had been married many times before he met his present wife.

"Fine," said Kempley, "but where is the body?"

Clark's attorneys—Shreve, Dorn & Shreve—declare that Schick is alive. They have wired an attorney at Calexico to learn if he did not go to Mexicali—just across the border from Calexico—about the 7th or 8th of February. And to learn whether or not he didn't get into direct communication with Grace Lucille Mason. Grace, it will be recalled, went to Mexicali after the bankruptcy, and danced in a cabaret.

Schick has been reported seen near Riverside, and down in Tia Juana, Mex., and various others places. But he hasn't been found, dead or alive.

"We know he was jealous of Clark," says Kempley. "We know there was a fight in Clark's house the day Schick disappeared; we know Clark had his keys; we know Clark helped Mrs. Schick forge her husband's signature to the power of attorney, though Clark denies it; we know Clark lived with Mrs. Schick and sought to get her property, and that Mrs. Clark did not object; we know that Schick did not write to his mother after February 7 and he was a man who was always writing to her; we know that he has communicated with none of his relatives or friends since he disappeared. We believe he is dead and buried. But until we find the body, what can we do? For all we know to the contrary Schick may have left San Diego voluntarily. He may have wandered away a victim of amnesia. He may be in jail. He may be in a hospital. We cannot prove he is dead, and we cannot prove he is alive."

But he's going to hold Clark and his wife as long as he can—for any day may bring a clew that will solve this mystery, the most fascinating in the history of San Diego county.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF DEATH OF LAZARE CARNOT OBSERVED

Event Would Have Passed With but Little Notice, but for Interest of Americans.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The French celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the death of Lazare Carnot, the great revolutionary figure, recently would have passed with little notice, but for interested students of American history who remembered Carnot was a great friend of James Monroe, when the American President was in France seeking aid for the young American republic.

It was at that time that the Star Spangled Banner and the French tricolor first were flown side by side.

Carnot was remarkable, not only for his great leadership, but as the founder of a great family. Of his two children, one was an inventor, the other a Cabinet member; his two grandchildren were Sadi, assassinated while President of France, and Adolphe, a famous engineer. His eight great-grandchildren, seven of whom are living, are unusual in that all the males are prominent in their vocations, and the seven married ones have a total of 28 children, or more than twice the average French family.

"Children's Week" in Sunday Schools.

"Children's Week" will be celebrated by the St. Louis Sunday School Association starting at 2:30 p. m. today at the Third Baptist Church. The program today includes songs by the Rainbow Chorus, stories by Mrs. George M. Clifford and a cantata under the direction of Miss Emma Niemoeller. The "week" will close Friday night with a pageant at Pilgrim Congregational Church, with a cast of 150 persons from 12 churches.

PERSHING SLIPS INTO PARIS AND REACHES HOTEL UNSEEN

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Gen. Pershing established a record on his arrival in Paris last Saturday. He is the first man of such conspicuous station to succeed in getting into the French capital without any sort of official attention and without being hailed by Generals and representatives of the press.

The announcement that he wanted to be left alone during his visit to France was interpreted as meaning he wished no official attention. The zealous reporters did not think this was meant for them. They know now that it was. A score of them waited at the hotel entrance for the arrival of Pershing's automobile from Cherbourg, while the General, knowing his ground, slipped in through a convenient side door of the hotel and had his bath while the news chasers were vainly waiting.

Even statesmen have never been able to maintain such a strict privacy on their visits to Paris, nor have members of royalty, who come like common mortals with a desire to see the town as others see it. King Alfonso of Spain, who probably is the most frequent royal guest, is quite as well known under his incognito title, the Duke of Toledo, as that of King, and he never yet has been able to keep any of his visits private.

SULPHUR Heals Itching Scalp

Any breaking out of the skin, even itching eczema of the scalp, can be quickly healed by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist.

For any unsightly skin eruption, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ-destroying properties nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation, which soothes and heals the skin and leaves it clear and smooth.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card holders on receipt of postage, in order of application:

I CAN REMEMBER ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, edited by R. Masson — Personal recollections and several hitherto unpublished letters of Stevenson, contributed by persons who can remember him. Among the contributors are Sidney Colvin, James Barrie, Edmund Gosse, Graham Balfour and many others. This unique record covers the period of Stevenson's life beginning with his childhood through the years in Samoa.

COLLECTED POEMS, by V. Lindsay —A collection of all the previously published poems of Mr. Lindsay and also the occasional poems that have appeared through his prose work. The introduction, written by the author, is practically a survey and study of his work in verse.

VOICES OF THE SOUTHWEST, edited by H. R. Greer—A book of Texan poetry, not only for the people of the Southwest, but for all lovers of verse, that reflects the atmosphere of a distinctive section of the country. Among the contributors to this anthology are Karle Wilson Baker, Stark Young, Glenn Ward Dresbach and Therse Lindsey.

JEREMIAH, by S. Zweig—A drama in nine scenes, the theme of which is the fall of Jerusalem. Through the prophet, Jeremiah, the author depicts events which have a striking resemblance to those recently experienced by the modern world. Translated from the German by Eden and Cedar Paul.

ESSENTIALS OF ECONOMICS, by F. R. Fairchild—A textbook for high school students. Aids the beginner in acquiring clear and authentic knowledge of the important facts and principles of the science of economics. The author is Professor of Political Economy, Yale University.

MARS, by W. H. Pickering—This volume is a result of the author's life-long study of the planet Mars. Its snows, its seas, its marshes and its canals. An interesting account.

PRINCIPLES OF HOME NURSING, by E. L. Mohs—Gives the correct and accepted modes of caring for the sick in the home. A textbook for college students.

NEW ORCHIDS FOR THE FLOWER SHOW

Specimens Obtained in South America Expected to Bloom by Nov. 14.

Several of the unusual varieties of orchids obtained by George H. Pring, horticulturist at the Missouri Botanical Garden, on his recent orchid hunting expedition in South America, probably will be exhibited at the annual flower show of the St. Louis Flower Show Association at the First Regiment Armory, Nov. 14 to 18, it was announced yesterday by J. J. Beneke, secretary of the association.

The orchids are not in bloom but are expected to be by the time the show opens. If exhibited the orchids will be one of the feature attractions at the show, as it will be their first public showing.

The Missouri Botanical Garden also will have at the show a large exhibit of chrysanthemums and displays of many other varieties of flowers. Pring has perfected a new water lilly which he also intends to have on exhibition. At last year's show Pring's water lilly, "Mrs. George H. Pring," was judged to be the best plant at the show. His new lilly is called the "General Pershing."

The prize list has been completed, members of the show's premium committee stated yesterday, and there will be 196 different varieties of flowers and classes of displays for which cash prizes aggregating $8000 will be given. In addition to the cash prizes two sweepstakes prizes—silver loving cups—will be awarded, one to the flower grower winning the most first prizes and the other to the retail florist winning the most first prizes.

The Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists also will give a silver medal as first prize and a bronze medal as second prize for the best flowering plant not previously exhibited in the United States.

Buick Open Cars are Stormtight

Perfect protection is provided from rain and wind. The lower frame of the windshield fits into a permanent rubber grommet. Moulded rubber seals every joint between the frames and posts. At the top a new weatherstrip, steel reinforced, excludes all air that might enter between the windshield and top, and side curtains button to the windshield, instead of the posts, covering the slight crack between them.

In addition to these and numerous other refinements, Buick four-wheel brakes afford a greater degree of safety on all models.

PACKARD SALES HEAD A ST. LOUIS VISITOR

R. E. Chamberlain Talks on Automobiles to Advertising Club—Tells of Big Size of Industry.

R. E. Chamberlain, general sales manager of the Packard Motor Car Co. of Detroit, told the members of the Advertising Club of St. Louis at their weekly luncheon last week, that by careful figuring it is believed that the automobile saturation point will not be reached before 1935.

Chamberlain told also of the size of the motor car industry, stating that it is now third in size in the United States of all industries producing finished products.

The Packard executive gave other figures to show the place this big business holds in world industry.

He told how 16 different base metals and 124 different raw materials are used in the making of automobiles. He also discussed production problems and the number of operations necessary to prepare various parts going into the cars.

The Packard system of examining salesmen was one of the points, elaborated upon.

"In regard to used cars," chamberlain said, "about once each week, the automobile owner looks affectionately at his 'cast iron wonder' and wonders how much he can get for it. Then he brings it to the automobile dealer and the appraiser, who is nobody's friend and who is supposed to know everything about every car and every model, looks it over. The appraiser goes to the sales manager to tell him the news. That's part of the system. The prices of used cars are fixed by the public," he maintained. Chamberlain, in conclusion, said that the big problem before the industry is not used cars, but men. "Training and educating ability is the biggest thing we can do," he stated.

GARDNER SHOWING CLOSED CAR MODELS

"The enclosed type of car in its various types and styles is becoming more and more popular," says Joseph A. Schlecht of the Mound City Auto Co.

"During the past year there were as many closed cars produced as there were open cars, and each succeeding year will see a very marked increase in the production of this type of car," he continued in discussing motor car trends yesterday.

"The Gardner Motor Co. has been keenly observing this and its faith in the enclosed type of car is evidenced by the fact that one of the country's largest builders of closed car bodies has been engaged to build Gardner bodies." The sedan, brougham and coupe are being displayed by Mound City Auto Co., 2309 Locust street.

NEW COMPANY HANDLES GRAY IN ST. LOUIS

The Gray Motor Sales Co. has been formed and is located at 3147 Locust boulevard. This company is composed of George W. Smith Jr. and George B. Fleischman and will handle the Gray in St. Louis, East St. Louis and St. Louis County. The company has also taken the city agency for Coupe de Luxe bodies, manufactured in St. Louis.

The personnel of the Gray Motor Sales Co., besides the owners, includes: George W. Smith Sr., L. N. Gaines, C. P. Madson, R. C. McClurken and Hurley Warren, as salesmen.

New Oakland Dealers.

E. A. Hatfield, president of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co., announces the appointment of two new associate dealers for Oakland cars. J. T. Milliken, 5156 Delmar boulevard, is covering the West End, and Angelica Supplies, 4101 North Twenty-first street, is a new Oakland dealer in North St. Louis.

1924 DORT "SIXES" BIGGER AND ROOMIER

Touring Car, Sport Touring, Sedan, Brougham and Coupe Are Models Announced.

With the announcement of a new line of Dort six-cylinder models for 1924 come sensational changes in Dort body design, according to H. C. Merry of the Wilson Motor Car Co., Dort distributors.

The Dort Six, which won such a widespread welcome upon its introduction a year ago last fall, has been improved. The most striking difference, and the one noticed first, is the increased size of the bodies. The new Dorts are bigger and roomier.

There are but five models—a touring car, sport touring car, a sedan, a brougham, and a three-door coupe. While the most noteworthy changes are roominess and added refinements, there have also been a few important mechanical changes. There is, for instance, a new rear axle, a new chassis lubricating system, easier riding springs, and easier steering.

For the most part, however, the new Dorts have been built around the same chassis and the same six-cylinder motor. A few minor improvements have been made in the motor, but substantially it is the same motor that was first identified as "the motor in which every working part is continually bathed in oil."

The cars are set lower to the road, and the long sweeping stream lines give an appearance of great length. The new radiotor is distinctive in design. The hood is higher and longer.

All doors are wider and windows in the closed cars are bigger. There is plenty of leg room in all models, and seats are wider and have been made more comfortable with extra deep cushions. The open cars have a one-piece windshield which gives clearer vision and which is simple to operate. All models have the new cup-type control on the steering wheel. The size of the steering wheel has been increased to 18 inches. 1924 Dorts are now shown by the Wilson Motor Car Co.

PECK, SALES MANAGER FOR DIESING COMPANY

C. C. PECK JR., until Oct. 31, General sales manager of the Traffic Motor Truck division of the National Motors Co., has joined the Diesing Motor Sales Co., Rickenbacker distributors, as general sales manager. Peck was with Traffic for four years, two as manager of sales promotion, and the last two in charge of all sales. Prior to his connection with Traffice, Peck was in the passenger car business in Kansas City. "The reasons for my going with Diesing," said Peck Saturday, "date back to the 1923 New York National Automobile Show. I was in New York in the interest of Traffic Truck, and of course attended the passenger car exhibition. I was impressed by the Rickenbacker, and by the unusual advanced engineering design of the car. In looking over this machine I found that the main talking points were the advanced features in essential elements of design. Ordinarily passenger car talking stunts are based on some minor features, so close are cars in competition. But with Rickenbacker it seemed to me, and time has served only to accentuate this impression, that the big talking points were in the important parts of the car. Thus when I decided to change from the commercial to the passenger car end of the industry, I immediately thought of Rickenbacker. And now I am with the Diesing Motor Sales Co., handling what I believe is a wonderful value car."

JACK DEMPSEY JOINS THE BUICK FAMILY

Jack Dempsey, undisputed champion of fistdom, has bought a Buick 1924 roadster in Los Angeles.

The big fellow bought his new car from the Howard Automobile Co., Pacific Coast distributors of the Buick line. "It was no trouble to sell him," says Howard's report to the factory. "He had already made up his mind."

JULIUS CAESAR NOW DRIVES VICTOR TRUCK

Julius Caesar drives a truck. He drives it in St. Louis. Two thousand years ago Julius drove a chariot around the streets of Rome. He drove his steeds in his campaigns in Gaul and his subjugation of the West. Julius of old had a hobby for founding libraries, draining marshes, enlarging harbors and digging canals. What great things could Julius have done had he a modern truck to drive like Julius Caesar of St. Louis? Probably greater monumental relics would have been left to posterity than even the Parthenon or the Colossus of Rhodes.

Julius of St. Louis drives a 12,000-pound capacity double transmission model "80" Victor motor truck, with eight speeds forward and two reverse.

Although 2000 years have passed Julius Caesar still drives and his efforts are now in constructive and not destructive work. Julius Caesar of St. Louis drives his heavy duty truck for the Herkert-Kerklotz Construction Co.

Belmont Handling Durant.

H. W. Dierl, sales manager of the Belmont Motor Car Co., Seventh and Park avenue, announces that his company is now associate dealer for Star and Durant automobiles.

ANDERSON-STRAUSS TO OPEN GRAY PLANT

The Anderson-Strauss Co., distributers of Gray motor cars in this section, have announced that owing to the increased demand for Gray cars that the factory will establish an assembling plant at St. Louis. This plant will be under the jurisdiction of the Anderson-Strauss company.

Until the new plant is ready for occupancy the Anderson-Strauss Co. will temporarily maintain headquarters at 3147 Locust street in connection with the Gray Motor Sales Co. of St. Louis.

JEWETT PRODUCTION 80 PER CENT CLOSED CARS

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 2.—Closed car production of the Paige and Jewett plants has shifted from approximately 60 per cent of the total to 80 per cent of the total output in November.

With the making up of a tentative schedule for the next month comes the information from H. M. Jewett, president, that the new five-passenger Jewett brougham was largely responsible for changing the ratio of production.

"The new brougham," says Mr. Jewett, "with its 31-inch doors and high bake enamel finish, providing a lasting luster, has taken the public fancy. Every dealer in the Paige and Jewett organization sold out his allotment of broughams before October was half over. An increased number in November has been asked by all. This reception of a new model is almost without precedent."

Again Jewett Proves Its Supremacy Over Higher Priced Cars
WE have repeatedly made the statement that the New Jewett Six excels all other cars except the big Paige, in performance. At a recent test held by the officials of Lincoln Park, Detroit, to select police cars, Jewett made the following records:
Three-tenths Mile From Standing Start

Finish	Car	Time
1	PAIGE	25 seconds
2	JEWETT SIX	25.2 seconds
3	A $1750 Six	26.9 seconds
4-5 tie	A $1485 Six	27 seconds
4-5 tie	A $1425 Six	27 seconds
6	A $1350 Six	27.6 seconds
7	A $1750 Six	29.3 seconds
8	A $1295 Six	30.2 seconds
9	A $1175 Four	34 seconds

One-half Mile From Standing Start

Finish	Car	Time
1	PAIGE	37 seconds
2	JEWETT SIX	37.1 seconds
3	A $1425 Six	38.4 seconds
4	A $1750 Six	39.8 seconds
5	A $1485 Six	40.6 seconds
6	A $1350 Six	42 seconds
7	A $1485 Six	42.3 seconds
8-9 tie	A $1045 Four	44 seconds
8-9 tie	A $1295 Six	44 seconds
10	A $1350 Six	47.8 seconds
11	A $1175 Four	49.4 seconds

And the New Jewett Six costs but $1065, f.o.b. Detroit! Think of a car at that price, that out-performs cars costing over $1700! Think of the joy that over 60,000 Jewett Six owners are experiencing in their everyday use of their Jewetts. Jewett's power is equaled by its freedom from trouble.
To handle its tremendous 50 horsepower, Jewett must be strong and rugged. It is. It weighs 2805 pounds. It has Paige-Timken axles front and rear. All-steel universal joints. Ball bearing steering spindles. 6-inch-deep frame.
The Lincoln Park test wasn't the first time Jewett Six performed itself into the realm of higher priced cars. It has done so consistently since its first appearance. Sales of Jewett are made daily to buyers who thought they had to pay several hundred dollars more to get a real car.
Prove this to yourself. If you want performance, rugged strength, and a reputation for exacting reliability—drive the New Jewett Six yourself. Call us, any time.

"HIGH-GEAR" RUN IN OLDS IS COMPLETED

"Cannon-Ball" Baker Arrives in Los Angeles on 3674 Miles Transcontinental Tour—Makes Economy Record.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 3.—A veritable lump of mud, the first car to ever cross the American continent from Atlantic to Pacific using only high gear, has arrived in Los Angeles after driving 3674 miles.

"Cannon-Ball" Baker, noted race driver, held up traffic for 5 minutes at Columbus Circle and Broadway, New York City, at noon on Oct. 8, while thousands gathered to witness the start of the first transcontinental high gear run. Escorted by a cordon of New York motor cycle officers Baker started down Broadway on his trip.

On his trip to Los Angeles in the Oldsmobile "six" Baker encountered more than the usual difficulties, including the disastrous rains and floods that cost several millions of dollars of damage in Oklahoma, Missouri and Kansas. Among other hardships encountered by Baker and his newspaperman-companion were axle-deep "gumbo," days of rain, mountains, snow, wash-outs in the roads and extreme desert heats as high as 110 degrees.

Upon arrival at San Bernadino, Cal., Baker was met by a delegation of prominent Los Angeles citizens who escorted him to the city hall of Los Angeles, where he was officially greeted by Mayor George E. Cryer. Baker turned over to the chief executive of the city a letter sent from New York City by Alfred Reeves, President of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Reeves, in his letter, said, "This trip marks a new era in the world of the motor car, and conclusively proves the flexibility of the modern automobile engine, as the entire trip is to be made with only the direct drive, or high gear in the transmission. The advances in motor car design that permit this unusual feat are commendable."

Baker did not attempt to establish any new speed records, but spent about 12½ days on the roads and was forced to remain inactive for six days where floods and outlaw rivers had entirely washed away roads and bridges.

Though Baker set out to achieve one feat only—the driving of the Oldsmobile "six" from coast to coast with but high gear—he also established some remarkable economy records.

It is an acknowledged fact that high gear starting and driving on long pulls that require much power, demand much fuel. In spite of the heavy going that required unusual power the remarkable gasoline consumption of 28.8 miles per gallon was maintained for the entire trip, while a careful weight check revealed that but 18 ounces of lubricating oil were used during the entire distance of 3674 miles.

Reeves Heads Trade Executives.

At its convention in Chicago last week, the American Association of Trade Executives elected as its president, Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerc. This organization consists of the managers or other executive officers of 150 trade associations producing everything from asphalt to zinc and representing the key industries of the country.

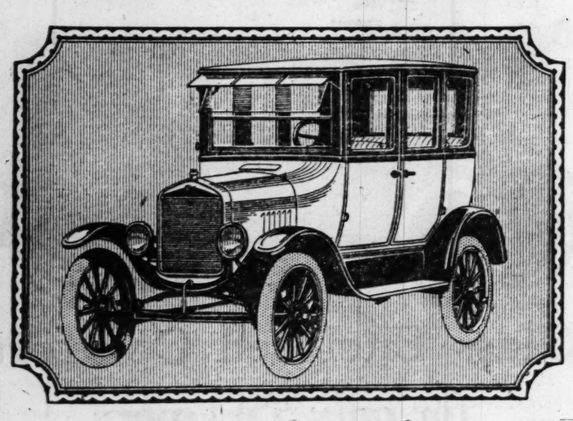
Ford
Four-Door Sedan



$685 f. o. b. Detroit, fully equipped.

Inside and out, the new Ford Four-door Sedan shows improvements of far more than usual importance.

It is lower and sturdier in appearance. New cowl, hood, radiator and apron add size and finish to the front. Sun visor, and wide, well-finished aluminum doors with bar handles perfect the design of the body.

The lasting lustre of the exterior finish is equalled in richness by the soft brown shades of the silk window curtains and the deep broadcloth upholstery.

Dome light, door locks, window regulators and handles, all finished in nickel, complete a refinement you would expect only at a far higher price Convenience, utility and economy have established Ford supremacy. The Four-Door Sedan adds to these factors greater Ford prestige.

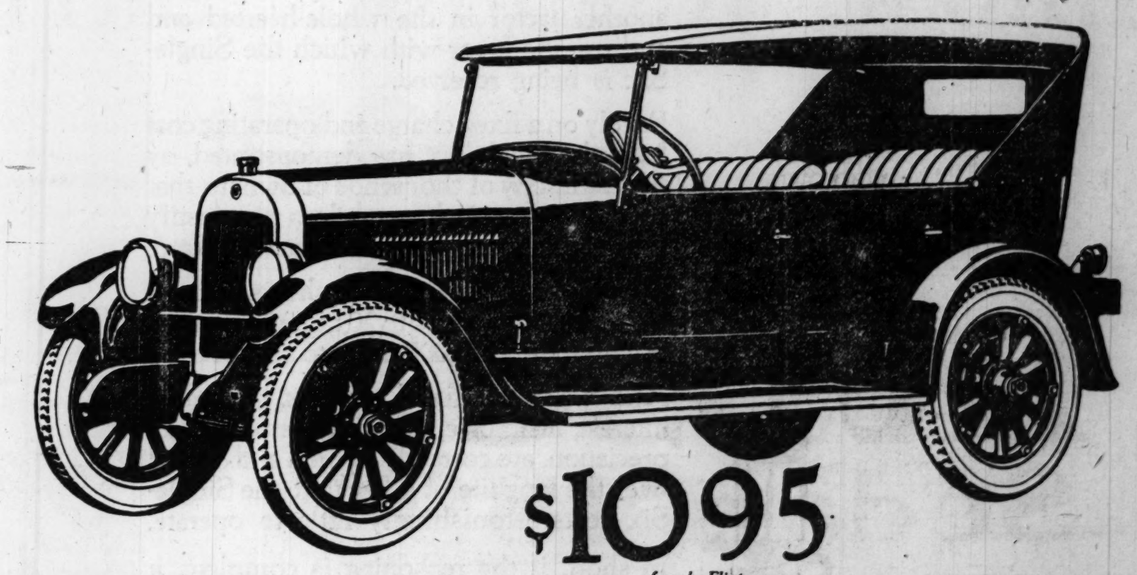
FIRST SHOWING

new DORT SIX



$1095
f. o. b. Flint

The Five-Passenger Touring Car — The exquisite artistry of its body design distinguishes this handsome model from the usual touring car. There is a striking contrast between its deep, rich black body and bright nickeled trimming which produces an uncommonly pleasing effect. While fashioned for length, it is exceptionally roomy and seats five comfortably. There is a cowl ventilator, and a new type of one-piece windshield. Drum head lamps, full crown fenders, nickeled door handles, foot rail, robe rail, artillery type wheels and eighteen-inch steering wheel are part of the equipment. Curtains and rods in left hand front door pockets. Green leather trimming with Turkish plaits on cushion fronts. Separate instruments on instrument board. The rear window is particularly wide and there are wide pockets in each of the four doors. Wheelbase is 115 inches. 31 x 4 cord tires.

A Complete Line of New Body Models

New bodies of striking beauty, new radiator, new equipment, many new improvements. Everything new—built around the same wonderful six-cylinder, oil-cushioned motor of proved performance and the same rugged, dependable chassis.

Five models—bigger, longer, roomier in every respect. Doors are larger; windows wider; seats deeper and more comfortable. Steering is easier. Important improvements have been made in the riding quality. The new nickeled radiator is higher and the hood is also higher and longer. The Sport Touring Car, Three-Door Coupe, Brougham and Sedan are toned an attractive lake blue. The Touring Car is a deep, rich black. All models are trimmed in sparkling nickel.

Concentration on but five cars enables Dort to offer values, which, in our belief, excel anything the motor world has known. It is the first time in the history of automobile manufacture that cars of such costly design ever have been priced so moderately.

We anticipate a tremendous demand for these new cars and strongly urge you to choose early in order to get prompt delivery. See the new Dorts this week.

Touring Car, $1095; Sport Touring, $1245; Brougham, $1535; 3-door Coupe, $1535; Sedan, $1595; f. o. b. Flint

NEW FLINT SIXES NOW IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis Flint Company, Durant Branch, Takes Location at Locust and Lindell Cutoff.

Robert S. Kelley, manager of the St. Louis Flint company, factory branch in St. Louis for Durant interests, announced Saturday that his company had taken the building at Locust boulevard and Lindell cutoff, just vacated by Anderson-Strauss, as the home of Flint, Eagle, Princeton and Locomobile motor cars in St. Louis. Decorators are working on the building and it will be ready for the opening in about a week.

The new Flint six, the first of the cars to be shown by the St. Louis Flint company is already here, three of the touring cars having arrived in a shipment during the past week.

The Flint six touring car is listed at $1295 f. o. b. Flint, Mich., and the St. Louis delivered price is $1445, which covers in addition to the car, complete equipment. The equipment includes front bumper, drum type headlights, nickeled radiator, motometer, windshield cleaner, mirroscope, extra cord tire and tube, tire cover, step plates and Disteel wheels. The Flint touring car comes in three standard colors, maroon, grey and blue. It has spanish leather upholstery and a permanent top.

Five models of the Flint are being built at present. They are touring, sport touring, sport roadster, sedan and coupe. The Flint is powered by a 3¾ by 5 Red Seal Continental Motor, especially made for this car. It has a seven main bearing crankshaft and vibrator dampeners on the front of the shaft similar to Locomobile. In fact, in addition to having lines like the Locomobile, the Flint construction is similar, according to Kelley. The instrument board of the new car contains in addition to the usual equipment a clock and gasoline guage.

Kelley states that a Locomobile is on the way to the new company, while the Eagle light six and the Princeton will not be shown for some little time.

The new branch will handle just these four lines. The Durant and Star will continue to be distributed by the Spalding Motor Co. and the new branch's appearance in the local field will not affect in any way the Spalding arrangements with Durant and Star.

Executives of the new St. Louis Flint Co. at present, besides Kelley, are A. D. Rummel, formerly with the Spalding Motor Co., as wholesale manager; Z. A. Barker, formerly with Velie and Chevrolet, as retail sales manager; E. R. Shade, for nine years with Apperson, as service manager.

New Company Takes Over Pan.

Property of the defunct Pan Motor Co. of St. Cloud, Minn., has been taken over by the St. Cloud Holding Co., according to advices from St. Paul. The company has been incorporated for $50,000. The properties were sold recently to creditors' and stockholders' committees at a receiver's sale in St. Cloud for about $400,000.

CHEVROLET PARADE PRODUCES RESULTS

Much of value has come out of the St. Louis Chevrolet day held last week, according to C. C. Nangle, general sales manager of the St. Louis Chevrolet factory branch.

"The parade last week," said Nangle Saturday, "has shown St. Louisans how big an enterprise Chevrolet is in this city. Very few St. Louisans realized until that parade that Chevrolet turns out daily the second largest number of automobiles turned out by a single unit automobile plant in any section of the United States, it ranking second to a plant in Detroit.

"St. Louisans did not know until Chevrolet day that the plant here employs more than 3500 people. They did not realize how big our dealer organization is, or what Chevrolet spends in this city every single month. However, I feel that now St. Louisans are more familiar with the size of General Motors enterprices here and that we will feel an extremely favorable effect from th parade of our 52-piece band and our cars around the city last week."

Wilson Adds Promotion Department.

The Wilson Motor Car Co., 2925 Locust street, have added to their organization a Sales Promotion Department. This department will be devoted entirely to the promotion of the new Dort Six and is in the hands of H. J. Wagner and Ed. J. McNerney Their work has been successful promotion in other cities.

GENERAL CORD DOING A GOOD BUSINESS

"In announcing the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on common stock ($50 par), payable Nov. 1, directors of the General Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, point out a most unique position occupied by the company in the tire business, according to R. C. Frampton, president of the Frampton Co., which handles the General cord tire in St. Louis.

Not a single General Tire employe has been laid off for nearly three years, and the production and sales trend have been steadily upward ever since the world-wide slump that followed the war. General's position is especially noteworthy as a mark of stability in the Akron tire field, where production has gone up and down with the seasons.

The management attributes the steadiness of its position to the fact that General makes no tires for car manufacturers, but does all of its business with the car-owning public through dealers in the principal centers. It is not affected by ups and downs of new-car sales.

Automobile Big Railroad Customer.

More than 523,000 freight carloads of automobiles, motor trucks and parts (except tires and chains) were shipped last year. This volume of rail business is the third largest among all manufactures. The commodity which headed the list was refined petroleum and its products, calling for 1,110,107 carloads. As the greater part of this fuel is consumed by motor vehicles, it appears that the automobile is the leading industrial customer of the railroads.

Giving due consideration to the general desire for Packard ownership, there is still another factor in the whole-hearted and enthusiastic favor with which the Single-Six is being received.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

Purely on a fixed charge and operating cost basis the Single-Six has demonstrated, by the testimony of thousands of owners, that good business judgment does not justify the purchase of anything less than a Packard.

That testimony, for instance, shows that you can count on from 16 to 20 miles to a gallon of gasoline and 20,000 miles to a set of tires.

And when all fixed charges, including interest, insurance, garage expense and depreciation, are correctly figured and spread over the long life of a Packard, the Single-Six costs astonishingly little to operate.

In short, if the reckoning is complete, it costs you less, mile for mile, to drive the Single-Six than cars selling for approximately one thousand dollars less.

These are facts that compel careful consideration. They prove you can gratify your desire for Packard ownership and yet make the soundest possible investment.

VESPER SAYS DEALERS LOOK FOR GOOD 1924

Discusses Situation With Easterners on Tour—Believes Traffic Rules and Road Signs Should Be Standardized.

F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., has just returned from a three weeks' trip and tour through the East, during which he visited most of the prominent and important cities in New York State, and New England. Leaving St. Louis on Sunday, Oct. 7, Mr. and Mrs. Vesper went to Syracuse, New York by train to attend the National Dairy Show.

While in Syracuse, Vesper delivered an address before the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce, in which he outlined the policies of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce during the past two years and the details of the $87,000,000 bond issue.

After spending three days in Syracuse, Mr. and Mrs. Vesper drove from Syracuse to Northern New York in a 1924 Buick seven-passenger sedan. Their tour through New York covered all of the important cities in that State and then north and east into New England through Buttonwoods, Poland Springs down to Boston, via Portland and then west through Southern New York up to Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Flint.

While touring, Vesper had an excellent opportunity to look over the automobile situation.

"There has been a decline in the demand for open cars throughout New York and the New England States, as early winter conditions are already at hand," says Vesper, "but the demand for closed models of every make is far ahead of the possible supply.

"The dealers in that section are in much better shape so far as their stock of used cars is concerned, as compared with a year ago, although at the present time, the used car business is practically dead.

"Dealers are generally optimsitic over prospects for business during the winter and spring. There is no expectation on the part of the dealer of further price declines, neither is there any anticipation of advances. The general prevailing opinion seems to be that prices have stabilized and will maintain their present level for 1924.

"For the first time in many years, there does not seem to be any looking forward by the dealers to the announcement of something new, and unusual, at the New York show in January.

"Throughout the East and Northeast, the discussion of the merits of four-wheel brakes and their advantages over regular rear wheel equipments only has proven to be a business stimulant and has reacted very favorably on sales. With optimism all along the line, it is not unreasonable to predict that the 1924 season will be a good year for the automobile industry.

"This tour brought out the striking need there is for some movement to bring about uniformity in road signs and traffic signals. No two states have the same kind of signs marking their roads and no two cities, even those in the same state, use the same traffic lights or signals. For instance, in New York City the traffic towers flash red for warning, then green for stop and white for forward. Other cities flash white for warning, red to stop and green to go ahead, while still others may have only red and green signals."

"In some cities it is proper to pass in front of the traffic officers in turning corners, but in the next you are very likely to be reprimanded unless you go behind them."

SAYS COLE ONCE MORE PROVES LEADERSHIP

"J. J. Cole, head of the Cole Motor Car Co.," says Jerome J. Benjamin, president of the Cole-Benjamin Motor Co., "by the adoption of the balloon air cushion tires as equipment on the new 1924 Master models again is a pioneer in the automotive industry. During the process of development of the motor car, Cole was the first manufacturer to adopt the demountable rims, vacuum tank, oversize tires, streamline body, and was the first to build a fore-door body, two-door brougham, which was followed the next year by the four-door brougham. He was also the initial indorser of the motor-driven tire pump.

"During the many years that Cole has been the builder of one of the finer motor cars he has been considered a pioneer and leader in the automotive industry. His products have always been received with favor and enthusiasm," says Benjamin.

"When, as a result of more than two years' experimental and research work, the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron, O., perfected the first of the new type of low-pressure 'balloon' tires, automobile manufacturers commenced to test them.

"As soon as the first set was received by Cole, he immediately started a series of tests to determine the practicability of making this tire a part of the Cole equipment. The set was placed on the record-breaking Cole Master model, piloted by E. C. "Cannonball" Baker, and was found to surpass expectations. The result of these tests was the adoption by Cole as standard equipment on the Volante, a Cole sport model, and optional on the other cars of the Master series.

"The most essential feature of the balloon low-pressure tire is the cushioning effect it gives the machine when on rough roads," says Benjamin. "It has been found by many experiments that when driving on a very rough highway, with many chuck holes, the car is given a kind of rolling effect instead of uncomfortable jolts."

FIFTEENTH BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED BY HUPP

November, 1923, is the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation. More than 200,000 Hupmobiles have been built and sold. More than three-fourths of these cars are known to be still in service.

"The exclusive concentration by our executive, engineering, manufacturing and sales departments on one type of car has resulted in a genuine economy in manufacture impossible otherwise," Charles D. Hastings, president and general manager of the corporation, wrote in a letter just received by George Weber of the Weber Implement and Auto Co., Hupmobile distributers.

Hupp was organized in November, 1908. Within three years after operations were begun its cars had attracted world-wide attention. In 1910 the development of the Hupmobile had reached such a stage that officials decided to do something never before attempted, and a thing then generally considered [illegible] infant industry as an extremely hazardous undertaking. This was to have a car driven around the world.

The trip took something more than a year, during which time 23 foreign countries where an automobile had never been seen up to that time were visited. Natives of these places were terror-stricken at the sight of the "strange contrivance." During the tour the car traveled 40,000 miles.

The Passing of Paige's Horse.

Those familiar with college songs will be interested to learn that the famous Amherst lament "Paige's horse is in the snow drift; Paige's sleigh is upside down" no longer has a basis in fact. The livery man, who for years supplied equine transportation for those wishing to spend an evening at Smith or Mt. Holyoke, has succumbed to modern tendencies. Paige's horse, alas, is in the discard. In the current issue of the New England Motor—Motor Trade Magazine one reads this simple but eloquent paragraph: "Melrose S. Paige has established a public garage in his old-established livery stable."

FISHER BODY COMPANY BUYS KELSEY HOLDINGS

John Kelsey, president of the Kelsey Wheel Co., confirms the sales to Fisher Body Corporation of a portion of the Kelsey interests at Memphis, Tenn.

The wheel division will be retained by the Kelsey Co. The property sold to the Fisher Body consists of 45 acres of land, a double band saw mill with a capacity of 50,000,000 feet of hardwood lumber per year, dry kilns, storage for 75,000,000 feet of lumber and an automobile body woodworking plant built in 1919. This plant contains over 150,000 square feet of floor space and was so constructed that its capacity can very readily be doubled.

The announcement of the acquisition of the Memphis plant has been preceded during the past 12 months by the announcement of practically new plants at Pontiac, Flint, Lansing, Mich.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Cincinnati, O.; St. Louis, Mo.; Oakland, Cal.; Janesville, Wis., and a new plate glass plant for the National Plate Glass Co.—a Fisher Body subsidiary, at Ottawa, Ill.

Men who can easily afford higher priced cars are buying the Chevrolet Superior Sedan. This is because they recognize the true merits of this wonderfully good car.

It's a quality car in every respect. No doubt about that! Anyone may well be proud to own it. In appearance, appointments, riding comforts and driving economy the Chevrolet Superior Sedan rivals many cars of higher price.

The well-built Fisher body with its graceful lines and handsome upholstery is a true index of this car's quality of design and construction.

Year 'round driving is made pleasurable by the adjustable plate-glass windows. When it's raining or snowing, lower the windows—no drop intrudes. Raise them, and have open car breeziness when the weather invites.

The famous powerful Chevrolet overhead valve motor is renowned for its quick "get-away."

Quarter elliptic spring suspension assures easy riding. No spring shackles to wear or rattle. Semi-float type rear axle with Hyatt bearings and spiral bevel ring gear and pinions.

Standard gear shift—3 speeds forward.

Safe, efficient, dependable internal and external brakes on rear wheels.

Worm and beveled gear steering device gives perfect and easy control. More mileage on gas and oil.

Fewer repair costs.

Saves 20% in operation.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

The Cat Whisker.

On some crystals, only a light contact of the wire is needed. Galena requires a very light contact, as does silicon. Iron pyrites takes a firm heavy contact, while in using carborundum the point of the cat whisker even can be jabbed under the surface of the crystal. Phonograph needles are excellent for use with carborundum.

CANADA PLANS RADIO BEASON

The Canadian Government is about to install a powerful direction-finding wireless station at Pachena, on the west coats of Vancouver Island, British Columbia, to protect ships of all nations entering the Straits of Juan de Fuca en route to American and Canadian ports. Numerous shipwrecks have occurred in this district, and it is expected that the new radio beacon will enable vessels to determine their exact positions in foggy weather, avoiding many dangerous reefs thereabouts.

PROGRESS OF RADIO IN OTHER COUNTRIES

Seven Direct Radio Circuits Now In Operation Between New York and Europe.

As a means of direct communication and for the entertainment of people of practically every race, radio is rapidly taking place in world affairs unprecedented and unanticipated by forecasters, not excepting the visionary Jules Verne who predicted several time and space eliminators.

Many new commercial radio circuits have opened within the past two months, while further construction is announced nearly every week. Broadcasting, born in the United States as recently as September, 1921, has spread rapidly, and is coming to be a necessary feature of practically every country, stations being operated either by the Government or private companies. But America still leads in commercial radio enterprises, broadcasting and in the manufacture of equipment which goes to 40 or more countries.

One of the latest developments is the formation in Italy of a huge radio manufacturing and operating organization at Rome, similar to the Radio Corporation of America and the Marconi Co. in England. The authorized capital is 7,000,000 lire, part of which is to be used for the purchase of the Italian rights to German and French patents and for the purchase of existing equipment in Italy.

Previous to the organization of this national body—and it is agreed that at least 55 per cent of the stock must be held by Italian citizens—Italy depended upon England, France and Germany for her international radio service. In view of its large colonial possessions situated at great distance from Rome, the need for a high-powered radio communication service is as great as in any country, except pernaps Great Britain.

Another recent radio incorporation, known as the Wireless Telegraph Company of South Africa, Ltd., plans to provide international telegraph service for that dominion within 18 months. The chief high-powered station will be situated about 30 miles from Cape Town. The power is to be 750 kilowatts, and the wave length will be about 16,000 meters, it is reported. Sixteen towers, 800 feet in height and arranged in circular form will support the aerials. Since the circle will be approximately a mile and a half in diameter, some idea of the size of the station is gained.

This project, together with stations planned in Canada, Australia and India and existing British stations, forms part of an Empire wireless system, each station of which is designed to communicate directly with the mother country and other British possessions.

Municipal broadcasting is planned by the city of Cape Town, South Africa. Recently David Granff, a prominent citizen, made a present to the City Council of a 6-KW broadcasting station built by the Marconi Company.

Bulgaria has just approved the erection of a wireless plant at Constanza to cost approximately 800,000 lei, and take the place of the present station there, which handles little except shipping intelligence.

A combination to control broadcasting in Sweden has been formed, but until the Swedish law forbidding private individuals the use of radio receiving sets is modified by the Riksdag, general broadcasting cannot progress very far. The King has authority to permit the use of receiving sets, and to date 300 such permits have been issued, it is understood.

Work on a new Government radio telephone station at Vardo, on the north coast of Norway, to cost approximately 95,000 kronen, is reported as underway, by Consul Ifft, at Bergen. It is expected that this station will soon be in communication with the telephone broadcasting stations at Ingo, Tromso and Spitzbergen. The main object is to maintain communication with the fishing fleets.

Radio fans in the Lille District of France are manifesting interest in American-made equipment, Consul Squire reported recently, pointing out that as permits for receiving sets may now be obtained from the government, there is no reason why the use of radio should not increase steadily. Broadcasting from Paris, London, Cardiff and Glasgow can be heard in Lille regularly, he adds, the Paris concerts coming in on 1000 to 1500 meters and the British stations on 200 meters.

Direct radio communication between New York and Warsaw, Poland, was established on October 4, the Department of Commerce has been advised by the Radio Corporation. This exchange of messages heralded the opening of the new government station at Warsaw, and makes the seventh direct radio circuit to be operated from New York to Europe.

ENGLISH AUTHORITIES "BREAK" RADIO TRUST

British Broadcasting Company Was to Have Exclusive Right to Transmit.

The British Postal authorities have succeeded in stopping what threatened to become a radio broadcasting trust, which would also have controlled the sale of sets, refusing listening-in licenses to all except those whose sets were stamped "B.B.C.", including homemade sets.

The letters "B.B.C." stood for British Broadcasting Co., which through a recent arrangement between the Government and the radio manufacturing industry, was to have exclusive right to broadcasting in the British Isles. This company was to be financed from tariff payments on manufactured receiving apparatus and from license fees to be paid by listeners to the Postoffice. It was a condition of the license that that apparatus of foreign origin, with certain exceptions, would not be available for use under the scheme—all British-made apparatus being marked "B. B. C."

In a report to the Postmaster-General on August 23, Major General Sir Frederick H. Sykes, chairman of the British Broadcasting Committee, says: "the system of marking apparatus and deriving revenue from broadcasting service from royalties or such apparatus gave the company a privileged position; we have had no proof that they have made any improper use of it; but the system is open to objection from several points of view, and should be abandoned as soon as possible." The report admits that the company successfully established a broadcasting service of considerable merit despite many difficulties, and was partly successful in ensuring that the demand for receiving sets during the initial period should mainly benefit British manufacturers, who established the service. But, the scheme "has broken down in certain respects," the report adds, "largely owing to the unforseen facility, cheapness and popularity of the construction of homemade sets."

Important among many recommendations made in the report which favors broadcasting, but does not want the Government to run it nor a single company to do so exclusively, is the recommendation that a broadcasting board be established by statute to assist the Postmaster-General. The broadcasting should be done under Government license. It is believed by the committee, which agrees that the service if the B. B. C. should be continued for a definite period, subject to modifications of the license. "The Government should keep its hands free to grant additional licenses," the report avers.

No part of the cost of broadcasting should fall upon the taxpayer, and the Government should not endeavor to make a profit on the administration, the committee suggests. Revenues should be derived from receiving license fees of 10 shillings per annum, of which 7s 6d might be allocated toward broadcasting expenses.

New licenses, simple and uniform in type are recommended to be placed on sale at postoffices without formalities. They would prohibit the use of "back-coupling," but put no other limitations on the apparatus allowed to be used, the report recommends. Statutory powers to enforce such licenses are recommended to aid the Postmaster-General.

The committee urges the removal of the restricted hours allotted to broadcasting, and that the wave band be increased from between 350 and 425 meters to two bands—300 to 436 and 461 to 500 meters.

Possibly tact restrains the committee from recommending any protection for the national radio manufacturers against foreign competition; the report admits that this must be dealt with by Parliament as part of the fiscal policy of the country.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

The Multiple Electric Products Co. have produced a new loud speaker called the "Amplitone," the chief part of which—the amplifying unit—is sold separately and by means of a special attacnment may be fitted to the tone arm of any type of phonograph, excepting the Brunswick. The feature of this instrument is "the double composition diaphragm," which is said to give astonishingly faithful reproduction. A concealed adjustment in the base permits meeting any variation of "B"battery from the 90 volts at which the loud speaker is adjusted to operate best when it leaves the factory. The wood fiber horn, 18 inches high, has a lustrous black crystalline finish and the base is of black or mahogany bakelite. It is withal an attractive instrument. No local battery is required, but it is important that the polarity of the terminals of the loud speaker be correct.

The "Voisometer" eliminates variometers and a vario-coupler—only a variable condenser being necessary to tune the set in which this instrument is used. It is claimed to give maximum selectivity of tuning and a minimum of interference. Any kind of tube may be used and the variable condenser should preferably be of .005 mfd. capacity (23 plates), with vernier. Broadcasting stations on both coasts have been heard with a three-tube set using the "Voisometer." It has a wave-length range of from 266 to 1170 meters, and is sold at about the usual price of a standard vario-coupler.

A number of new products are announced by the manufacturers of the Magnavox line; The "Semi-dynamic reproducer, a one-stage amplifier with horn, a two-stage amplifier with horn and a one-stage power amplifier contained in a metal case. The semi-dynamic reproducer, or loud speaker, was brought out to meet the requirements of dry-battery receiving sets, as no external battery is required for its operation. The one and two stage amplifiers differ only in the respective number of tubes employed. Both are provided with the electro-dynamic reproducer combined with one and two tubes for amplification and a modulating device for controlling the volume. A 14-inch "Curvex" horn is supplied with either of these models. The one-stage power amplifier is particularly recommended for use in connection with one or more stages of audio-frequency amplification. This instrument may be used with either six-volt, or dry-cell tubes.

"Jackstraw" vernier attachments consisting of a circular piece of rubber on the end of a slender stick of wood about the size of a pencil enable fine adjustment of instrument dials.

Miniature phone-tip jacks made by the Union Radio Corporation permit the insertion of telephone-cord tips so as to do away with the customary plug and jack of larger proportions.

"Ohio" antenna insulators are now for sale at a local dealers, in five and 10-inch sizes. The May (1922) issue of "QST" described a series of tests conducted with high-tension insulators, and this is one of the two types which they said "seemed to stand up best. Neither of them broke down on full power nor did they heat up." This is also the type which was claimed to be the best, mechanically. (Ed. note: Insulators of this kind are only required for transmitting aerials. Where antennae are to be used for reception only, a much smaller type may be employed with very satisfactory results.)

"Signal" 400-ohm potentiometers in a neat housing, with bakelite front, adapted to stand upright on a table, are to be had at a local dealer's.

Westinghouse loading coils will enable any receiving set of their manufacture, to tune to the highest wave length used by broadcasting stations.

Radi-Un loops wound with green silk wire have appeared. They are about one-half the size of loop aerials hitherto available. Compensation for their small size is made by two parallel turns of wire in place of the usual single turn.

RADIO CENSUS BEING TAKEN IN WASHINGTON

Listeners "Register" by Means of Postal Card—Accurate Returns Expected.

The question: "How many radio receiving sets are there in the United States?" may soon be answered, if a scheme under consideration by officials of the Department of Commerce works out satisfactorily.

As an experiment, the Radio section of the Bureau of Navigation permitted the two local class "B" broadcasters in Washington (WCAP and WRC) to request all residents of the District of Columbia who have receiving sets to report to the Department of Commerce by dropping a postal card. This self-taken census will give an accurate return, it is believed, as well as save the Government considerable time and money by eliminating the need for enumerators.

Those possessing receiving sets have a certain pride therein, it is said, which should hasten the reports. The Radio Section will classify and enumerate the cards, but that will be enough, it is pointed out, considering that no added personnel is available.

If the test radio census of the District proves accurate, the plan will be extended through all the states, in an effort to learn just how many sets there are in operation, what percentage are tube and crystal sets.

The latest authoritative estimate as to the number of receiving sets in this country on June 1, 1922, was 2,250,000, but it is not exact and is not official. Later predictions state that by June 1, 1924, a million more sets will be in use, making the total three and a half millions.

Results of the first day's mail following the broadcast of the census announcement brought the department 46 postals.

The sole purpose of the census is to ascertain the number of receiving sets in the country and to gain an idea of the popularity, value and extent of broadcasting. There is no intention to levy a tax on receiving sets, as done abroad, officials declare.

RADIO WAVES CANNOT STOP MOTOR VEHICLES

German Official Discredits the Stories That Airplanes Were Forced Down.

In an interview sent to Washington, Herr Thurn, administrative head of the German wireless service, dismissed the stories that German Government can stop and render powerless automobiles, airplanes or other motor vehicles by radio. He further stated that the correspondent who sent dispatches to papers in the United States to the effect that in June, a number of automobiles en route to Hamburg were halted when their magnetos were stopped by powerful radio waves from Nauen, was the victim of unscrupulous persons. "No such achievement has yet been anywhere reached," the German engineer asserted, adding that even if it had been attained by Germany, "it would have most certainly been kept secret and not bruited about by anybody connected with Nauen."

This official information also discredits the stories that airplanes of France flying over Bavaria were stopped and forced down by radio waves from German stations.

Both stories of radio magneto control are impossible, according to the German radio expert, who pointed out that: Magnetos are inclosed in iron or steel jackets and could not be influenced by radio waves; no matter how powerful, radio waves cannot be directed with precision so as to affect the magneto of a vehicle or vessel at any distance from the directing station, particularly when the vehicle is in motion; and that as definite or precise directing cannot be achieved, every vehicle or vessel within the zone of influence of the electrical wave would be similarly affected. This would stop, bring down or sink the vehicles or ships of the operating agency as well as those of the enemy.

Some skeptics may believe that the Herr Administrator would have denied the statements in an effort to protect Germany's secret radio control, but the official forwarding the dispatches believes implicity in this radio engineer and he feels that his negations and criticisms should be taken without reservation.

NAVAL COMMUNCATION SERVICE MAKING EXTENSIVE RADIO TESTS

Purpose of Tests Is to Determine Alertness of Watch Maintained.

The naval communication service is making extensive tests with radio on three cruisers and a battleship now at sea. The tests are designed to determine the alertness of watch maintained by ship and shore stations, the maximum reliable range of ship's transmitters, the maximum range of reception from shore stations and the efficiency in handling codes. These experiments are being conducted on board the battleship Colorado, operating off the Atlantic coast; the cruisers, Richmond, in the South Atlantic, Milwaukee, in the South Pacific, and Detroit in the Mediterranean. Similar tests will be undertaken on all new vessels when commissioned, and such of the fleet as are on detached service.

The Navy Department has decided to place naval communications on a competitive basis in a more or less similar way as is done for gunnery and engineering and has issued necessary instructions to commanders afloat. Each year vessels will be placed in three classes, and only vessels of class "A" will be considered eligible for battle efficiency pennant.

Each force commander will hold competitive radio exercises among the vessels of each unit and arrange the vessels in their order of merit at the end if each year.

In an interview sent to Washington, Herr Thurn, administrative head of the German wireless service, dismissed the stories that German Government can stop and render powerless automobiles, airplanes or other motor vehicles by radio. He further stated that the correspondent who sent dispatches to papers in the United States to the effect that in June, a number of automobiles en route to Hamburg were halted when their magnetos were stopped by powerful radio waves from Nauen, was the victim of unscrupulous persons. "No such achievement has yet been anywhere reached," the German engineer asserted, adding that even if it had been attained by Germany, "it would have most certainly been kept secret and not bruited about by anybody connected with Nauen."

This official information also discredits the stories that airplanes of France flying over Bavaria were stopped and forced down by radio waves from German stations.

Both stories of radio magneto control are impossible, according to the German radio expert, who pointed out that: Magnetos are inclosed in iron or steel jackets and could not be influenced by radio waves; no matter how powerful, radio waves cannot be directed with precision so as to affect the magneto of a vehicle or vessel at any distance from the directing station, particularly when the vehicle is in motion; and that as definite or precise directing cannot be achieved, every vehicle or vessel within the zone of influence of the electrical wave would be similarly affected. This would stop, bring down or sink the vehicles or ships of the operating agency as well as those of the enemy.

Some skeptics may believe that the Herr Administrator would have denied the statements in an effort to protect Germany's secret radio control, but the official forwarding the dispatches believes implicity in this radio engineer and he feels that his negations and criticisms should be taken without reservation.

NAVAL COMMUNCATION SERVICE MAKING EXTENSIVE RADIO TESTS

Purpose of Tests Is to Determine Alertness of Watch Maintained.

The naval communication service is making extensive tests with radio on three cruisers and a battleship now at sea. The tests are designed to determine the alertness of watch maintained by ship and shore stations, the maximum reliable range of ship's transmitters, the maximum range of reception from shore stations and the efficiency in handling codes. These experiments are being conducted on board the battleship Colorado, operating off the Atlantic coast; the cruisers, Richmond, in the South Atlantic, Milwaukee, in the South Pacific, and Detroit in the Mediterranean. Similar tests will be undertaken on all new vessels when commissioned, and such of the fleet as are on detached service.

The Navy Department has decided to place naval communications on a competitive basis in a more or less similar way as is done for gunnery and engineering and has issued necessary instructions to commanders afloat. Each year vessels will be placed in three classes, and only vessels of class 'A" will be considered eligible for battle efficiency pennant.

Each force commander will hold competitive radio exercises among the vessels of each unit and arrange the vessels in their order of merit at the end if each year.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Writer.

Q. (1) In a three circuit hookup does the detector grid return go to the negative or positive side of the "A" battery, or would a potentiometer be best? C. L. R.

A. A potentiometer would no doubt give finer control. Otherwise connect the grid return to the negative side of the "A" battery.

Q. What effect would a large tin roof adjacent to my antenna have on the receiving of signals? E. C.

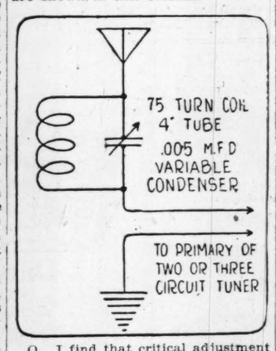
A. In direct proportion to its proximity and size, it would have a tendency to "dampen" or weaken the strength of received signals, as well as decrease the range of the set.

Q. (1) What is the best size of wire to use in winding a variometer for use in the Zahorsky circuit published Sept. 23? (2) What is the lowest and highest plate voltage that can be used on a WD-11 tube? (3) What sized wire is best to use in constructing a loop aerial? E. M.

A. (1) No. 24 double silk covered. (2) As a detector 18-22½ volts. As an amplifier, 45-90 volts. (3) Sizes between 18 and 22 stranded will serve satisfactorily.

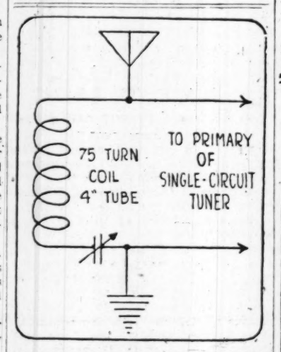
Q. Please explain through your radio column, the way to properly hook up a wave trap. F. B.

A. Diagrams of connections for wave-trap to be used with single, two and three-circuit receiving sets are shown in this column.



Q. I find that critical adjustment of the variable grid leak in my set means a great deal in successful long distance reception, but "experts" and otherwise say "set the grid leak and leave it alone." To do so would mean hearing only one outside station and no more. Which is right? J. D. K.

A. It happens that you have a "critical" tube which requires frequent adjustment of the grid-leak. Tubes vary and no set rule can be given for obtaining the "best results." Some work satisfactorily without any grid leak. Others work indefinitely with one adjustment.



Q. Please let me know if there are any rules and regulations regarding the time an individual may send code messages. We are bothered with amateurs, who keep it up almost continually from 8 until 12 every night. L. H. (Columbia, Mo.)

A. Communicate with the Radio Supervisor, Federal Building, Chicago, Ill., giving the names and addresses of the persons causing interference. Government regulations prohibit amateur transmitting between the hours of 8 and 10:30.

Q. (1) Does a "peanut" tube work as well as a 6-volt tube in a regenerative hook-up? (2) Is an aerial 140 feet long, including leadin, too long for broadcasting reception? J. N.

A. (1) This is a matter of personal opinion. Some enthusiasts claim that there is no notable difference between the two in operation. (2) No, provided a 43-plate variable condenser is connected in series with either the aerial or ground for low-wave stations.

Q. Please give the output in watts of the stations listed below. H. S. G.

A. WGY—1000. KDKA—1000. WJAX—500. WDAJ—1000. WOAW—500. WBAP—500. WPAD—100.

Q. Would it injure my three-tube regenerative set (detector and two stages of audio-frequency) to use 45 volts on the plate of the detector tube and 135 volts on the amplifier instead of 22½ and 90, respectively? Would this change be of any advantage in bringing in weak signals? J. C. G.

A. If the tube you are using as a detector is a "soft" tube, 22½ volts is the highest that can satisfactorily be used on the plate. One hundred and thirty-five volts would not likely injure your tubes and would increase the signal strength somewhat, but our suggestion would be to look over your set for poor or loose connections. Examine your aerial insulatrs and ground connection. Efficiency in the detector circuits will bring in louder signals than all the amplification that can be added above a certain point.

Q. Is it safe to attach the ground wire from a lightning arrester to soil or vent pipe on second floor? C. F. H.

A. No, the Underwriters specify that a separate ground wire must be used.

Q. What is the best kind of wire to use for an aerial—brass, copper, braided or solid? J. C.

A. Seven strands of No. 22 copper make an excellent aerial. Phosphor bronze wire is also used.

Concerning Condensers.

In selecting variable condensers, make sure that there is no lost motion between the shaft and the bearing, and that the provisions for panel mounting, if of that type, are suitable for the thickness of the panel in any particular set. To test a condenser for short circuits, connect the filament lighting battery and a small lamp in series, across the two binding posts on the condenser, and then rotate the movable plates. Lighting of the bulb will indicate when the plates are touching.

To Test B Batteris.

In testing a B battery for voltage do not leave the voltmeter on the terminals any longer than is absolutely necessary. This is a dead short circuit, and will use up the battery in a very short time.

GOVERNMENT BEGINS RADIO STANDARDIZATION

Receiving Tube First to Be Taken Up by Radio Advisory Committee.

The first step toward standardizing radio equipment, purchased by several departments of the Government in considerable quantities annually, was taken last week, when a conference of manufacturers and Government officials met to adopt for the Gvernment a single vacuum tube for reception.

The subcommittee on technical problems of the Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee invited representatives of the Western Electric, General Electric, Westinghouse and De Forest companies to meet with them in Washington to give them data and advice on radio receiving tubes. This was done, and Maj. L. B. Bender, Signal Corps chairman; Lieutenant-Cammander H. P. Le Clair, U. S.N., and J.H. Dellinger of the Bureau of Standards, of the technical subcommittee now have the information sought and will at once draw up specifications for a standard Government receiving tube.

Tentative specifications for a small, low-power consuming tube will be sent to all manufacturers of radio tubes for criticism and suggestions. Many tubes are purchased annually by the Navy, Signal Corps, Shipping Board, Postoffice and Coast Guard, and a single standard tube is desired.

This conference is the beginning of Government radio standardization, it is understood. As soon as receiving tube specifications are adopted the committee will take up transmitting tubes and various forms of apparatus. At present there are at least 12 American types and sizes of vacuum tubes suitable for use in receiving, made by four large companies.

Radiograms.

A radio relay league is to be organized by amateurs in England.

Radio has become so popular in the western part of France that owners of cafes, hotels and country homes are installing receiving sets.

David Grimes, 26-year-old inventor of New York, is said to have been paid $500,000 for 10 licenses to use this hookup in the manufacture of receiving sets.

The first complete college course in radio has been established by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It covers a period of four scholastic years and carries a degree.

A new record for long-distance transmission of commercial messages by wireless was established recently with the opening of a circuit between New York and Warsaw, Poland, which is more than one-sixth the distance around the earth.

Discoloration of Tubes.

Vacuum tubes are often discolored during the process of manufacture. This does not affect in any way the operation of the tubes. Some of the latest types of amplifiers are silvered in appearance, while others have a golden or varied hue.

CHICAGO STATION TO BROADCAST GRAND OPERA

"Lucia di Lammermoor" Saturday Nov. 10, First One of the Season.

KYW, Chicago, will broadcast grand opera productions beginning Saturday evening, Nov. 10, when "Lucia di Lammermoor" will be sung. The principals who will sing Donnizetti's beautiful score are: Giacomo Rimini, baritone; Florence Macbeth, soprano, and Giullo Crimi, tenor; as well as Jose Mojica, Virgilio Lazzari, Elizabeth Kerr and Lodovico Oliviero.

For the Notebook.

In place of flowers and fruit, small radio sets are becoming the popular gifts to patients in hospitals.

To prevent a hum in the set, keep the electric light wires away from apparatus. A drop light on the table where the set is located is sometimes responsible for a hum.

Never fasten an antenna permanently to the bough of a tree. Fasten it by means of a pulley, with a heavy weight at the end, which will keep it taut, yet allow the tree to sway without breaking the wire.

All crystals can be injured by touching with the fingers. It is best to handle them with tweezers or a piece of cloth and keep them in some kind of container when they are not in use.

Importance of Space.

The set builder should always remember that space is the best insulator for the high frequency currents used in radio. Especially in a multi-tube reflex set the wires must be kept as far apart as possible. The success of a reflex set depends very largely on well-spaced wiring, for the balance between the circuits is very delicate, and interference from one part may completely upset another.

Care Means Longer Life to Tube.

Vacuum tube filaments should never be operated with a greater filament current than is absolutely necessary to give maximum signal strength. When this rule is not followed, the tungsten wire forming the filament rapidly diminishes in size and shortens the life of the tube. Under proper use, a tube should give good service for 1000 hours of more.

To Eliminate Hazards in Radio.

Do not permit wires to trail into types of clamps or splicing devices, thoroughfares or across high-power electric lines.

Support the antenna mast with guy-wires to prevent its falling during a storm.

Lead-in and ground-wires should be kept at least five inches away from the building. All joints should be soldered or made with approved

If fuses are used in circuits, they should be of approved types and not make-shift devices, such as copper wire or copper pennies. Small fuses should be placed on a storage battery and connected in the storage-battery leads to prevent short circuits.

Keep all fires and sparks away from storage batteries, especially after the batteries have been freshly charged, as a highly explosive hydrogen gas is expelled. Be careful no liquid is spilled out of the battery this fluid will ruin almost everything onto anything of value, as acid in it touches.

BUSINESS SITES IN DEMAND ON LOWER WASHINGTON BLVD.

Developments Indicate Revival of Interest in Section of Street Between Jefferson and Grand.

DESIRABLE FOR AUTO CONCERNS

Overflow of This Class of Business From Locust Street Is Factor That Stimulates Sales.

By Berry Moore.

Developments indicate a revival of interest on Washington between Jefferson avenue and Grand boulevard, which apparently is receiving the attention of interests with building plans, as well as professionals. This is significant from sales reported during the last week and from negotiations said to be in progress for holdings in this section of the thoroughfare.

The sale of a three-story brick residence at 2732 Washington boulevard to N. Maloy was announced yesterday by the Franciscus Realty Co., of which James N. Franciscus is president, as agent for John Keegan. The lot, 60x234 feet, is to become the site of a two-story brick garage and the present structure is to be torn down to make way for this improvement.

A site, 75x235 feet, occupied by three old houses and a store at 3134-40-42-44 Washington boulevard, was also sold during the week by the Franciscus Realty Co. on behalf of John Keegan to H. F. McQuoid, having made the purchase as an investment, it was announced, with no building plans.

Buys 2 Brick Houses.

Keegan, in turn, purchased through the Franciscus Realty Co. two brick houses in the 2600 block of Washington boulevard, from a client of the Dyas-Schelp Realty Co. The houses occupy a spacious lot which is attractive as a site for an automobile building enterprise.

Negotiations have been concluded for several other holdings on Washington boulevard, including one in the 2900 block, but particulars are withheld pending execution of deeds. The purchase in the 2900 block, which embraces 60x235 feet and which forms a most desirable site for a building for the automobile business, was made as a speculation.

While the prices paid in these instances were not disclosed, previous purchases of ground on this thoroughfare between Jefferson avenue and Grand boulevard have been made at prices ranging from $300 to $420 a foot, according to Louis Franciscus, vice president of the Franciscus Realty Co. This part of Washington avenue has been made attractive for garages and for automobile sales rooms, through the widening of the thoroughfare, which has resulted in increased traffic thereon. Resales by professionals who snaped up the desirable plots on this thoroughfare when its possibilities were first perceived, have paid handsome profits.

Overflow From Locust.

While Washington boulevard is not regarded as a formidable rival of Locust street, the overflow from the latter will doubtless be a factor in the upbuilding of the former, between Jefferson avenue and Grand boulevard as an automobile business center. The situation in this connection, however, is notable.

The demand of the past week was more emphatic. It was characterized by several sales of West End residences, ranging from $35,000 to $75,000, the movement being of fair to broad proportions. Negotiations for a number of holdings in the business district were initiated, indications being that operations in this section will be on a comprehensive scale.

The Mercantile Trust Co., as agent for the Mutual Realty Co., owner of the southeast corner of Thirteenth and St. Charles streets, has received a number of inquiries as to this property from interests having large building plans, especially those contemplating hotels and theater projects on a large scale. The plot has a 192 feet on Thirteenth and 225 feet on St. Charles street, and is improved with an eight-story warehouse building occupied by Bugher, under a lease which matures immediately available.

BUSINESS SITES IN DEMAND ON LOWER WASHINGTON BLVD.

Developments Indicate Revival of Interest in Section of Street Between Jefferson and Grand.

DESIRABLE FOR AUTO CONCERNS

Overflow of This Class of Business From Locust Street Is Factor That Stimulates Sales.

By Berry Moore.

Developments indicate a revival of interest on Washington between Jefferson avenue and Grand boulevard, which apparently is receiving the attention of interests with building plans, as well as professionals. This is significant from sales reported during the last week and from negotiations said to be in progress for holdings in this section of the thoroughfare.

The sale of a three-story brick residence at 3732 Washington boulevard to N. Maloy was announced yesterday by the Franciscus Realty Co., of which James N. Franciscus is president, as agent for John Keegan. The lot, 60x234 feet, is to become the site of a two-story brick garage and the present structure is to be torn down to make way for this improvement.

A site, 75x235 feet, occupied by three old houses and a store at 3138-40-42-44 Washington boulevard, was also sold during the week by the Franciscus Realty Co. on behalf of John Keegan to H. F. McQuoid, he having made the purchase as an investment, it was announced, with no building plans.

Buys 2 Brick Houses.

Keegan, in turn, purchased through the Franciscus Realty Co. two brick houses in the 2600 block of Washington boulevard, from a client of the Dyas-Schelp Realty Co. The houses occupy a spacious lot which is attractive as a site for an automobile building enterprise.

Negotiations have been concluded for several other holdings on Washington boulevard, including one in the 2900 block, but particulars are withheld pending execution of deeds. The purchase in the 2900 block, which embraces 60x235 feet and which forms a most desirable site for a building for the automobile business, was made as a speculation.

While the prices paid in these instances were not disclosed, previous purchases of ground on this thoroughfare between Jefferson avenue and Grand boulevard have been made at prices ranging from $300 to $400 a foot, according to Lindsey Franciscus, vice president of the Franciscus Realty Co. This part of Washington avenue has been made attractive for garages and for automobile sales rooms, through the widening of the thoroughfare, which has resulted in increased traffic thereon. Resales by professionals, who maped up the desirable plots on this thoroughfare when its possibilities were first perceived, have paid handsome profits.

Overflow From Locust.

While Washington boulevard is not regarded as a formidable rival of Locust street, the overflow from the latter will doubtless be a factor in the upbuilding of the former, between Jefferson avenue and Grand boulevard as an automobile business center. The situation in this connection, however, is notable.

The demand of the past week was more emphatic. It was characterized by several sales of West End residences, ranging from $35,000 to $75,000, the movement being of fair to broad proportions. Negotiations for a number of holdings in the business district were initiated, indications being that operations in this section will be on a comprehensive scale.

The Mercantile Trust Co., as agent for the Mutual Realty Co., owner of the southeast corner of Thirteenth and St. Charles streets, has received a number of inquiries as to this property from interests having large building plans, especially those contemplating hotels and theater projects on a large scale. The plot has 182 feet on Thirteenth and 225 feet on St. Charles street, and is improved with an eight-story warehouse building occupied by Butler Bros. under a lease which makes it immediately available.

The Jefferson Hoted Co. recently purchased through the Mercantile Trust Co. the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets, having 102 feet on Thirteenth and 225 feet on Locust as a site for a $3,000,000 annex to the Jefferson Hotel, occupying the entire east half of this block facing Twelfth street.

Available Hotel Sites.

Prior to the publication in this connection in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, the public apparently was under the impression that the Jefferson Hotel Co.'s holdings comprise1, in addition to the east half, the entire west half of this block, including this Thirteenth and St. Charles street corner, owned by the Mutual Realty Co. and separated from the plot embracing the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets, acquirred as a site for the annex, only by the east and west alley of the block, which intersects with the north-south alley of the block. Both strips extend to the north and south alley of the block, which forms the west boundary of the present hotel structure, and an ordinance for the vacation of which has been passed.

These are the largest single bodies of land in the business district eligible for a large hotel or theater building enterprise on elaborate scale, and immediately available.

As was told in the Post-Dispatch, the Shuberts once considered the Thirteenth and St. Charles corner for a theater building project, with an arcade feature.

MAXWELL BROS' AUTO CO. LEASES NEW STORE

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports easing the building at 2735-37 Olive street, owned by Thomas Dunn, to the Maxwell Bros. Auto Co., which is controlled by Carl A. and Alvin T. Maxwell. This firm also has a store at 4106 Olive street and at 1905 Locust street, where they carry on a used Ford, automobile parts and accessory business. On account of their increased business, they were obliged to extend their facilities to leasing above mentioned store. Mercantile Trust Co. represented both parties in the transaction.

SALE OF 13 FLATS AND STORE AT 22D AND NORTH MARKET

Stanley Epstein reports the sale of a large piece of investment property on the southwest corner of Twenty-second and North Market streets. This property, which consists of 12 flats and a corner store, was sold for the Revenue Realty Co. to Sol Goldman. The consideration was said to be about $20,000.

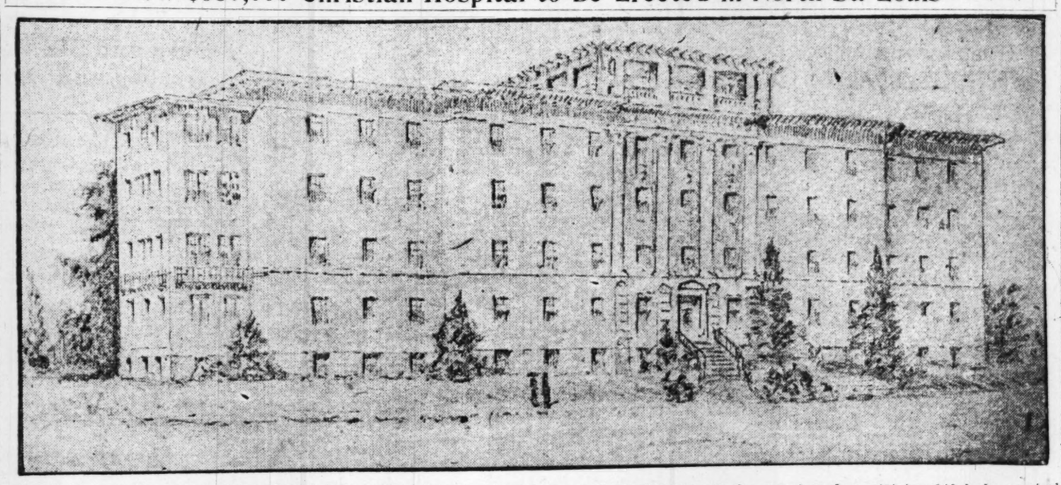
Epstein also reports the sale of the residence at 3621 McRee avenue for Alex Landau.

Epstein also reports the sale of a flat at 3818 Cleveland avenue for T. J. Potashnick to a client of E. A. Kamp.

GEORGE M'LONEY MANAGER OF SALES FOR FRANCISCUS COMPANY

George McLoney has assumed the post of sales manager of the Franciscus Realty Co. He has had wide experience as an organizer of selling forces. He entered the real estate business in the subdivision field several years ago, his subdivision projects including Gannondale on Delmar boulevard in University City, which was a success. The sales business of the Franciscus Realty Co. has reached such proportions as to require an organization on a large scale.

New $350,000 Christian Hospital to Be Erected in North St. Louis



North St. Louis is assured of two important improvements amounting in value to approximately $400,000, as the result of the sale last week of the Christian Hospital property at Grand boulevard and Palm street. The hospital building, one of the factors in the transaction, was sold through the Hartwig-Dischinger Realty Co., 3022 North Grand boulevard, to a client of the Hilmer, Dutton & Kohlenbrinck Realty Co., 2712 North Fourteenth street.

The Christian Hospital property occupies the southeast corner at Grand boulevard and Palm street, and its sale at an advanced price is noteworthy as showing the growth of real estate values along North Grand boulevard. The property fronts 71 feet on Grand boulevard and has a depth of 100 feet on Palm street.

The new owners bought the building with a view of reconstructing the building, with stores on the ground floor and office suites on the second and third floors.

The conditions of the sale permit the Christian Hospital Corporation to occupy the building until the completion of the new hospital on the block at Carter and Newstead avenues, which was recently purchased from U. F. O. Keller, 3531 North Broadway.

The purchase of this piece of ground was announced several weeks ago in the Post-Dispatch. The Board of Trustees of Christian Hospital have had plans drawn for the erection of a large modern hospital building on this plot. The plans call for a hospital building containing administrative section, rooms and wards containing 140 beds, surgical and operating rooms, sunlight kitchens, pantries, service rooms, roof garden, sun rooms and other adjuncts of the modern hospital building. A nurse's training school will occupy a separate wing.

According to the plans, the new hospital will cost in the neighborhood of $350,000, which will be raised in a financial campaign to be inaugurated Nov. 19 by Paul J. Wielandy, resident of North St. Louis, and an official of the Chamber of Commerce.

MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY REPORTS SERIES OF SALES

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports the sale of 26 acres of the old January farm near Florissant to a client of the Grafe & Case Realty Co., for the account of the Hydraulic Press Brick Co., consideration $10,000.

Also sold a lot on Bancroft avenue, 40x110, for the account of the Laclede Christy Clay Products Co., to Mrs. Elise Herzog, who is improving with a modern bungalow.

The fee to the northeast corner of Tenth and O'Fallon was sold by the Mercantile Trust Co. for the account of the St. Ann's Widows and Foundling Asylum to Myrtle Mylan and later transferred to Sam Hamburg. The buildings on the property, excepting 27 feet under lease to J. Margulus, were owned by the purchasers. The ground was given to the church many years ago and the income from it turned to charity. The money realized by this sale will be a substantial addition to the building fund of St. Anns. This is the consummation of a series of sales of fees in this district to owners of buildings thereon and puts the titles in a satisfactory condition. Jack Dubinsky represented the purchaser.

BUYERS OF WESTMOOR LOTS HAVE BUILDING PLANS

A number of sales of lots were concluded during the week, with negotiations pending for many others in Westmoor, according to Ralph Coale, president of the Westmoor Land Co., which is marketing this property in connection with the Cornet & Ziebig Trust, fiscal agents for this company. Indications are that this tract will soon be out of the market, so far as the Westmoor Land Co. is concerned.

The tract, situated at the southwest corner of Clayton road and Pennsylvania avenue, comprises 740 lots, of which less than 100 remain unsold. The majority of the purchasers have building plans. A number of houses have been constructed on the tract, with plans going forward for others. The remaining lots are being offered at original prices, notwithstanding the fact that the surface and underground improvements of the addition are rapidly nearing completion. The prices at which the lots are being sold include these improvements.

Hermann; 3428 Clark avenue, two-family flat for Charles Glessow to George W. Bickel; 3430 Clark avenue, two-family flat, for Charles Glessow to Patrick J. Murphy.

NEW BUSINESS BUILDING FOR GRAVOIS AND GRAND BOULEVARD

Construction has been started on an attractive business building at the southwest corner of Gravois avenue and South Grand boulevard. Love, Van Riper & Co., with offices in the Bank of Commerce building, are financing this enterprise with a $60,000 loan, which it is offering in first mortgage six per cent serial gold bonds. The location is declared to be one of the strongest in this section of the city. The building will be known as the Tebbe Building.

Kuhs Makes Sale for Estate.

A. Jay Kuhs reports the following sale: For A. Hollweg estate, double flat, two-story brick flat and frame cottage at Tenth and Barton avenue, to Dr. George Frye. The Albert Wenslick Realty Co. represented the purchaser. He also reports loans aggregating $15,000.

SAYS HOME SHORTAGE WILL BE FELT FOR 5 OR 10 YEARS MORE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — John R. Riley of St. Louis, who has been here in attendance at the national convention of the Investment Bankers' Association, asserted today that five to 10 years would be required to overcome the home shortage in those parts of the West and Middle West where housing facilities are most inadequate. Riley said architects as well as bankers shared this opinion.

"Business growth has called for more business structures, along with the tremendous demand for new homes. Our cities are growing in size. There is always a steady increase in population. Also, there is a gradual drift from the rural districts to the industrial centers. Cities like St. Louis attract thousands from the villages and towns by the lure of higher wages in factories and mills.

"This influx to the cities is increasing the need for housing facilities. It is not possible to say when this rising demand will be fully met. The general demand for buildings, to provide both living and business accommodations, is an outstanding factor in general business progress in the Mississippi Valley. The building industry is contributing in a large degree to the heavy spending power of the people. Money spent for materials and labor goes out into the channels of trade in a variety of ways, and helps to swell the total volume. Banks reflect in a remarkable degree this larger activity in the construction field."

DITTMEIER SALES AND LOANS

The Frank L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co. reports sales for the past week aggregating $110,000, as follows: 2724-28 Caroline, 2-story brick 6-family flat, three rooms each, for Stark Realty Co. to Melvin H. At 5471 Queens, bungalow, for Charles MacSkimming, who was represented by Harwitg-Dishinger Co., to Robert C. Kreplin Jr.

MANY LEASES NEGOTIATED BY ISAAC T. COOK & CO.

Isaac T. Cook & Co. reports having leased a large space on the second floor of the Republic Building, southwest corner of Seventh and Olive streets, to the Stange Co., wholesale and manufacturing jewelers.

The new location gives the company, in addition to more floor area, a very efficient layout for their manufacturing department, as well as on eof the most attractive jewelry salesrooms in the city.

A vacancy in the Leather Trades Building, southwest corner of Sixteenth and Locust streets, was filled up with the following new tenants: Clover Loose Leaf Specialties, Inc., manufacturers of loose leaf binders; West End Thread Co., wholesale thread dealers; Decker-Foshage Co., dealers and manufacturers of stationery and office supplies; R. G. Julow and Co., dealers in leather. All parties in these transactions were represented by Cook's office.

CORNET & ZEIBIG TRUST SELLS BUSINESS PROPERTY ON OLIVE

A two-story building at 3820-22-24 Olive street, comprising three stores and three apartments of five rooms each, was sold last week by the Cornet & Zeibig Trust for the account of Harriette A. B. Stuart of Washington, D. C. The property has a frontage of 50 feet on Olive street by a depth of 152 feet. The purchaser, Joseph Devoti, was represented by the De Martini-Zerega Agency Co.

The Cornet & Zeibig Trust also reports the following sales: Ten-room colonial residence at 5215 Cabanne for William Fisher to Dr. Fred W. Teiber; four-family flat, 3958-60 Fairfax avenue, for Richard M. Naughton and others to Casper H. Weber; eight-family flat, 906-9-10 Brooklyn, with lot 70x90 feet, for the Mary E. Silence Estate to the Summit Realty Co.

DEMAND FOR PROPERTY OF ALL KINDS BRISK, EPSTEIN FINDS

J. I. Epstein reports a brisk demand for all classes of property. He closed the following transactions the past week: 50 feet on the north side of Sarf Bonita avenue for A. G. Brauer to Jacob Althaus, who will erect several apartments; 210 feet on north side of Vernon place for Edward Sicher and wife to Margaret Garde; a two-family apartment flat, 4934 McPherson avenue, for Josephine S. Delmar Garden Apartments.

Jesse M. Sprague reports the sale of 815 Leland avenue, a new 6-family apartment building consisting of five rooms and sun parlor, to Ralph and Carolina Palmieri. Also 825 Leland avenue to Julia Dean Laidman, a similar building to 815 Leland. Each of these apartments sold for $40,000. Also 2855 Meramec street to the West End Realty & Construction Co., who intend to alter the present building, making several fine stores. Sprague also reports loans of $95,000 on three new apartments in the west end, which will be under his management.

BUS LINE ON GRAND AVENUE STIMULUS TO HOLLY HILLS

Transportation Facilities to Area Near Carondelet Park to Be Much Improved by New Service.

Holly Hills, the terminus of the new motor bus line, which begins operation on South Grand boulevard today, has been signalized by many sales since the announcement by the People's Motor Bus Co. that a regular schedule will be established. The solution of the transportation problem on South Grand has been a pressing one and its completion makes available for immediate building a choice area of vacant property.

The busses will operate from Holly Hills, at the entrance of Carondelet Park, proceeding north on Grand, thence east over Washington to Eads Bridge, making one continuous trip for a 10 cent fare and eliminating changes and transfers.

Grading and improvement work in Holly Hills is being pushed to accommodate purchasers who are planning to build early in the spring.

Although the subdivision has been on the market only a month more than $500,000 worth of this property has been disposed of and grading work nearly 50 per cent completed. With favorable weather conditions the grading work may be completed by the first of the year, permitting the street paving and sewer installation to follow at once.

Don A. Livingston of the Federer Realty Co., who is in charge of all sales and improvements in Holly Hills and Grand-Dover Park, has announced that a special corps of salesmen will be on hand Sunday to take care of the added number of visitors expected.

BOND ISSUE APPRAISERS OF REAL ESTATE APPOINTED

Farish, Hemmelmann and Cave Appointed by Nolte as Experts for City.

Real estate appraisers to represent the city in the purchase of property under the $87,000,000 municipal bond issue were announced today by Comptroller Nolte. They are John H. Farish, Theodore Hemmelmann Jr. and Elmore Cave, real estate dealers.

Recently the Citizens' Supervisory Bond issue Committee and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment authorized Comptroller Nolte, at his request, to appoint the real estate appraisers to guard the city's interests by experts in cases where owners of property to be acquired for improvements under the bond issue were willing to sell without condemnation proceedings.

Among the projects for which additional property must be purchased by the city are the Memorial Plaza, which is to cost approximately $6,000,000; Municipal Auditorium, to cost about $5,000,000; and the laying out of new parks, which will entail an expenditure of about $2,500,000 for land.

The appraisers will certify to the city whether prices asked are reasonable. Compensation for their work will be fixed later according to the amount of service they render and will be paid out of the bond issue.

MONUMENT TO CHILD AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIMS

Shaft to Be Unveiled in Twelfth Boulevard Plaza During "Safety Week."

A monument to children killed in automobile or motorcycle accidents will be unveiled in the Twelfth boulevard plaza Nov. 18, to remain during "safety week." A dirigible from Scott Field is to fly over the monument, and the Sixth Infantry band is to play a dirge.

Sermons on safety will be delivered in many pulpits on Sunday, Nov. 18, which inaugurates "Safety Week." The safe way of doing a wide variety of the everyday things of life will be demonstrated in some emphatic form on other days of the week. Members of the traffic squad will show how properly to signal a traffic policeman, and there will be demonstrations of how to cross congested streets safely.

It is estimated that 75 per cent of all accidents are preventable, stated Charles M. Talbert, president of the Safety Council. Concerted effort and unflagging vigilance have lowered the accident death rate considerably, and may do more. The Milwaukee Association of Commerce in two years reduced the number of lives lost in automobile accidents from 25 to 12 for every 10,000 motor vehicles. Talbert pointed out, and the accidental death rate in St. Louis has been lowered in three years from 27 to 14 deaths for every 10,000 motor vehicles.

Figures for United States.

Although the number of deaths resulting from careless driving of automobiles in the United States increased from 10,000 in 1919 to more than 14,000 in 1922, these figures, Talbert said, were small in comparison to the total figure for accident deaths in the United States in 1922, which was 75,000.

SITUATION ABROAD THREATENS CIVILIZATION, GILLETT SAYS

Speaker, Back From Europe, Declares We Should Aid If We Can. See it Will Do Lasting Good.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Representative F. H. Gillett of Massachusetts, speaker of the House, today returned on the Leviathan from an unofficial tour of Europe. He said he had come away with the deepest sympathy for the conditions of nearly every country of Europe and with a good deal of concern over the danger to sound economic principles and indeed to the safety of civil government.

"But I do not see," he added, "how any American can come back without from an instinctive feeling of selfcongratulation that we are not directly involved in their deep seated difficulties, though it ought to be coupled with a consciousness that civilization itself is threatened and that selfishness as well as philanthropy urge us to give assistance if we can clearly see when and how it will be permanently effective."

Gillett expressed belief that all the shipping board vessels should be turned over and operated, if possible, by private American capital.

St. Vincent's Institution to Hold Sale.

St. Vincent's Institution, Wellston, will have their first exhibition and sale of articles made by the patients in the occupational therapy department for three days, beginning Wednesday.

TO ANNOUNCE TUTTLE MEMORIAL PLAN TODAY

Dean Scarlett Expected to Announce Details for Building in Sermon.

Parishioners of Christ Church Cathedral have been notified by letter that an announcement of especial importance will be made by Dean Scarlett in his sermon at the Cathedral this morning.

An announcement has been anticipated for some time past as to plans for a building which should serve as a memorial to the late Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle, and should be known as the Bishop Tuttle Memorial.

The Living Chuch, an Episcopal weekly, in an article printed last July, outlined general plans for such a building, to stand beside the Cathedral in its downtown location, and to face, on one side, the Memorial Plaza, which is to connect the Municipal buildings with the Central Library.

The building would serve, it was then stated, for the use of church gatherings, as headquarters for the missionary activities of the diocese, and for the expansion of the social service work of the Cathedral parish.

The 104th anniversary of the founding of the Christ Church parish was last Thursday, which was All Saint's Day in the church calenrar.

JUDGE FAVORS RELEASE OF TWO SACRAMENTO PRISONERS

Concurs in Recommendation as to Tabib and Quigley—Reports to President on Trial.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGON, Nov. 3. — The campaign for the release of Federal prisoners still in jail for the expression of unpopular opinions during the war has been advanced a measureable stage by a telegram just received from Federal Judge Frank H. Rudkin of San Francisco, who tried and sentenced the I. W. W. prisoners of the so-called Sacramento group.

Judge Rudkin says that, "assuming conditions are as stated in telegram of Abby Scott Baker, I concur in the recommendation of Preston and Duncan recommending the immediate release of Tabib and Quigley."

Caesar Tabib and Edward Quigley are the two Sacramento prisoners who have contracted tuberculosis, they are at Leavenworth. Mrs. Baker of the Joint Amnesty Committee, has shown through the statement of a Kansas City physician, who examined the men, that both have the disease in very active form and probably will never recover unless released soon.

Preston and Duncan are, respectively, the former special assistant to the Attorney-General, and the man who conducted the Government prosecution of the Sacramento cases. Both recommended on Oct. 16 that the two tubercular prisoners be freed at once.

At the White House it has been learned that President Coolidge has received from Judge Rudkin, in response to a request, a report covering the whole Sacramento trial. Persons who have talked with the President lately have carried away the impression that Judge Rudkin's report is not unfavorable to clemency.

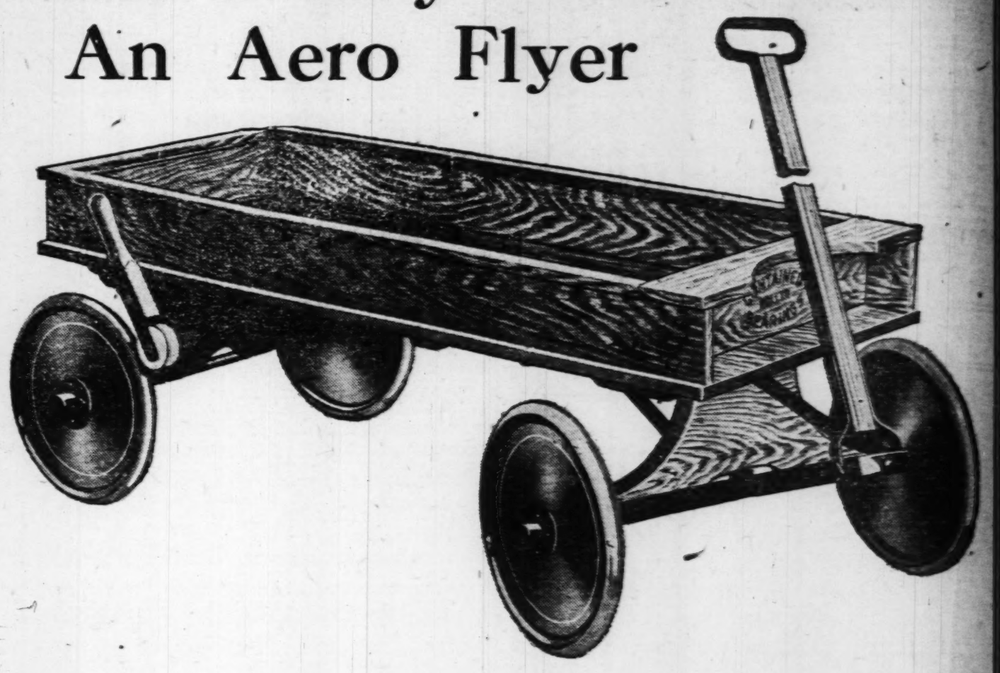
For a Boy's Christmas— An Aero Flyer



What could possibly suit a boy's fancy or compel a boy's enthusiasm to the same degree that this fleet, handsome coaster wagon will?

Whatever a boy may NEED, there can be no doubt that he WANTS—always—the things that GO! The things that respond to his urge for action—the speedier the better!

And so we suggest today to the parent, elder brother, sister or other adult relative, already searching the lists for the ONE gift that will bring greatest happiness to Junior on Christmas morning, that there need be no doubt about the manner of his reception of an Aero Flyer.

More than 3400 of these "Coaster Wagon Aristocrats" have been distributed FREE by the Post-Dispatch since September 2d. These three thousand are demonstrating, daily, in every neighborhood section of St. Louis and environs, Aero Flyer sturdiness, beauty and speed. They meet every test imposed by boy owners. They inspire boys who have received them to write us letters that praise, unstintingly, the prize we have chosen for boy subscription-getters.

The Aero Flyer model offered by the Post-Dispatch has a retail value of ten dollars. It is a worthy prize for spare-time effort, and no normal boy could fail to be delighted with it as a Christmas gift.

You May Count Upon

Post-Dispatch Co-operation With Santa Claus

First, by renewal here of the offer of an Aero Flyer for four new subscriptions, on the terms outlined below.

Second, by withholding publication of the boy's name from Honor Roll lists, when that is requested, and,

Third, by free storage of the Aero Flyer, if desired, to be delivered December 15th or later.

Resolve now that an Aero Flyer will delight some manly boy on Christmas morning. The first step is enrollment. Mail the completed Enrollment Blank NOW—while you have it in mind. Then read carefully, and be guided by these

Terms of the Offer

Offer is open only to persons who are not identified with the sale or distribution of the POST-DISPATCH, and who reside within St. Louis carrier delivery limits, including East St. Louis, Belleville, Granite City, Venice and Madison in Illinois; and Kirkwood, Webster Groves, Florissant, Valley Park and Maplewood in Missouri.

4 subscriptions are required—each for six months. No extra credit for yearly subscriptions.

New subscriptions are required—from persons not now reading the Daily POST-DISPATCH, whether purchased from newsboys or newsdealers, or delivered by carrier.

Daily subscriptions are required. No credit allowed for Sunday POST-DISPATCH subscriptions. A Sunday POST-DISPATCH reader who has not been reading the Daily POST-DISPATCH may subscribe through you under this plan.

Verified subscriptions are required. We investigate the validity of the order and the subscriber's responsibility. All orders are received subject to acceptance or rejection by the POST-DISPATCH.

Home-Delivered subscriptions are required. Business district readers are better served by newsboys and cannot be included under the terms of this offer. This makes necessary a definitely restricted area, and orders will not be accepted for delivery within the district bounded

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

S. C.—The year 1924 will be a leap year.

A. B.—See answer to "Mrs. Wo." for the formula for resilvering a mirror.

DAILY READER.—The quotation "United we stand, divided we fall," is found in the "Flag of Our Union," by George Pope Morris.

CONSTANT READER.—The address of the American Peace Award is 342 Madison avenue, New York, N. Y. The peace plan contest will close Nov. 15.

C. E. W.—It would be best for you to take the alligator skins to a tanner to have the hides tanned for that is a difficult process for an amateur.

C. Y.—Never use an apostrophe with the possessive pronoun "its," but in a contracted word, an apostrophe should stand in the place of the omitted letters; therefore, "it's" is correct if the meaning is "it is."

A. F. F.—Federal Reserve notes are not entirely backed by gold or silver. All other paper money issued by the Government, with the exception of a limited amount of United States notes, is backed by either gold or silver coin or bullion.

MRS. N. S.—A widow should always continue to use her husband's Christian name, or his name and another initial when signed on her visiting cards. In business and legal matters, however, a woman is necessarily addressed by her own Christian name, because she uses it in her signature.

INTERESTED READER.—Orange peel is candied by removing the peel from four thin-skinned oranges in quarters. Cover with cold water, bring to the boiling point and cook slowly until soft. Drain, remove the white portion using a spoon, and cut yellow portion in thin strips, using scissors. This is the first part of the operation. Then press lightly the renewed portion with cotton; it hardens almost immediately and the glass presents the same appearance.

LUCILLE.—The Wixford Process of treatment of water has been in operation at the Chain of Rocks pumping station since 1904. This process is based on the principle of the addition of lime to the point of approximate caustic alkalinity, to water containing other compounds in varying quantities. The quantity of ferrous sulphate put in the water is established by experiment. This is added before the lime, which is used in the form of milk and lime. The contents of commercial lime used are determined by chemical tests. By a volumetric test, the amount of lime is determined that will enter into complete reaction with free carbonic acid, ferrous sulphate, and all compounds in river water capable of producing insolvent precipitates with lime, leaving practically none of these compounds, nor free lime in water treated. The detailed account of the chemistry of the Wixford Process may be read at the Public Library.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

F. L. A.—If there was no agreement, expressed or implied, to heat the bathroom and halls, the landlord would not be under any obligation to do so.

ANXIOUS.—Notice to vacate, which is sent by mail, is legal, provided the landlord can prove the tenant actually received the notice. If the tenant signed the registry receipt, that would probably be sufficient.

INTERESTED.—If the will was entirely written, dated and signed by the hand of the testatrix herself, it would be legal in California and would dispose of the testatrix's personal property in Illinois. It would not be legal as to real estate in Illinois, however.

MRS. A.—Under the circumstances the executor and administrator and the heirs could object to the bill and oppose its being allowed by the court. We cannot say what would be a fair charge for the care and nursing you mention, as this would depend upon all the circumstances.

G.—"Lis pendens" means literally "a pending suit." It is frequently used in connection with the doctrine that a pending suit, or "lis pendens" is notice to the purchaser of the property which is involved in the suit, and binds and affects the interest by the decree. The purpose of this rule is to keep the subject matte- of the litigation within the power of the court until its final judgment or decree has been entered.

SUNDAY READER.—The amount of the bond of a Collector of Internal Revenue is fixed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury. There is no fixed amount prescribed by statute. Under the circumstances described, you could probably sue him in the name of the Government. You might write to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for information regarding the bond of the particular Collector of Internal Revenue whom you have in mind.

MRS. WO.—To resilver a mirror, clean the bare portion of the glass by rubbing it gently with fine cotton, taking care to remove any particles of dust. If this cannot be done very carefully defects will appear around the place repaired. With the point of a pen knife, cut upon the back of the mirror the glass round a portion of the silvering of the required form, but a little larger. Upon it place a small piece of mercury, a drop the size of a pin's head will be sufficient for a surface equal to the size of a nail. The mercury spreads immediately, penetrates the lining and eats away the glass cut off with the knife, and the required piece may be now lifted and removed to the place to be repaired. This is the most difficult part of the operation. Then press lightly the renewed portion with cotton; it hardens almost immediately and the glass presents the same appearance.

LUCILLE.—The Wixford Process of treatment of water has been in operation at the Chain of Rocks pumping station since 1904. This process is based on the principle of the addition of lime to the point of approximate caustic alkalinity, to water containing other compounds in varying quantities. The quantity of ferrous sulphate put in the water is established by experiment. This is added before the lime, which is used in the form of milk and lime. The detailed account of the chemistry of the Wixford Process may be read at the Public Library.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

S. R.—A person should be able to discontinue smoking by force of will. If a tonic should be needed for a few days to bridge over the withdrawal of the tobacco, the following is excellent: Tincture capsicum, 6 minums; tincture nux vomica, and tincture calumba, of each 1 ounce; tincture cinchona compound, enough added to make 4 ounces. A teaspoon in a little water should be taken after meals. For excessive sweating of the hands, soak them in hot water, as hot as you can stand; follow by applying a solution of boric acid.

"KATHERYN.—(1) It is possible for a person who weighs 140 pounds to have high blood pressure. (2) It can be brought to normal. (3) There is always some derangement that causes it to be higher than normal. (4) If the cause is corrected, the blood pressure will come back to normal. (5) It is possible to retain the normal blood pressure after it has been brought down. (6) A person who has high blood pressure may feel well at times. If you have abnormally high blood pressure, and are dizzy, nervous and irritable, you should consult a physician for examination, as these are danger signs when connected with blood pressure abnormally high.

MRS. WO.—For trouble which you descr.be is no doubt an enlargement of the prostrate gland, which is very common at your age. Internal remedies will not benefit it but hygiene may. Avoid exposure to the cold, draughts are also dangerous, and especially avoid wet feet. Clothing, especially under clothing, and foot gear, should be regulated by the thermometer. Light exercise is beneficial, and avoid all excesses, physical, mental, sexual or excesses of food and drink, excepting water, which should be drunk freely. Make the diet mainly vegetable. Avoid acid fruits. Many of these cases eventually call for surgical interference.

Mr. and Mrs. Light Housekeeper

You are compelled to use furniture. When you rent furnished rooms all you have left is a small trunk. Furnish your home when you come to our place and get an outfit you pay about the same per week, but in a few months your payments will cease and you have the entire outfit to show for the money you paid out. Now, isn't it better to buy than to rent? We have a fine line of slightly used high-grade furniture, stoves and floor coverings. No trouble to show our goods. H. WALKER FURNITURE CO. 1117-19 Locust. SETTING YOUR SWING TO MUSIC

Scottish professional at a St. Louis club has a way of timing the stroke to rhythm—Can have anybody "swingin' like Bobby Jones" in five minutes—The pupil sings "dumpty dum," and if he isn't dumb he quickly gets the knack—How an inveterate slicer sang the magic ditty and hit 'em straight ever after :: :: :: ::

By J. ROY STOCKTON.

THE poet long ago chanted that "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast, to soften rock or bend a knotted oak," but it took Charley Clarkson, Midland Valley golf professional to use music to soothe the savage golfer, to straighten slices and take the bend out of hooks.

Charley Clarkson is an unusual golf professional. Besides being an instructor he is course architect, greens keeper, agrostologist, referee of golf disputes and general course superintendent at Midland Valley. He is a wee bit of a Scot and he'll tell you with a wistful look in his eye that he's nae much of a golfer. He does nae hit a very long ball, he'll admit, but when it comes to making a thousand blades of grass grow where only one grew before, or when it comes to teaching golf, he'll take off his hat to no man.

"Perhaps it's my size that is a blessing," said Clarkson, with the Scotch burr that can't be put into type. "You can see for yourself that I do na' hit a verra long ball and I do na' play a whale of a game. And so I've had to make a study of things. Mehlhorn can play golf and get a reputation, but I have to produce a way of building courses and teaching members. And I've studied the thing out.

"Now take yourself, for instance. You do no' think that I can have you swinging in five minutes as perfect as a Bobby Jones or a Walter Hagen or a Gene Sarazan. You do no' believe it, eh? Well, I'll show you."

The writer was a crying subject for a golf professional. He had thrown away his wooden clubs and was doing the best he could with a driving iron, because wooden clubs were sending the ball far to the left or far to the right of the fairway. It had been months since the score card had shown an 18-hole total under 100. He gladly became a pupil.

Clarkson got a wooden club out of his bag. "Take this, man," he said, "and listen to me. I'm going to sing for you and mind you what I say."

Clarkson then instructed the pupil to take the wooden club in his hands with any kind of a grip and to swing it back and forth, with the arms close to the body, bringing the club far up to the right and then down in front and far up to the left, as though the arms and club were a pendulum.

"Now keep that up for three minutes," Clarkson commanded. "Don't bother about your feet or the ground. Just keep a-swinging and keep in time to my song."

And Charley Clarkson, golf professional, course architect and agrostologist, broke into a soothing lullaby tune. There were no words, except dumpty's and dum-dum's, and the tune was Clarkson's own arrangement of "Rock-a-bye Baby in the Tree Top."

The pupil noticed that he was pivoting naturally, that the weight was going to the right foot as the club swung that way and that it was shifting to the left foot as the club went the other way.

"Keep the arms close to the body and never mind the body and never mind the club; if you do that the club will be in the right place. Now, as I put an accent into my song, whip the club more.

"Dumpty dum dum dum, dumpty dum DUM dum," and Clarkson, also swinging a club and keeping time with his soothing melody, illustrated what he wanted done.

Music hath charms to soothe the savage dub.

"Now keep your swing just the same and look at the ground as you swing," and he crooned the lullaby some more.

"Now lay your club head on the ground and start the whole rigmarole from there. Keep your arms close to your body. Now! Dumpty dum dum dum, dumpty DUM dum—there you are; your swing is as perfect as Bobby Jones and the five minutes isn't up yet. Take a golf ball and sing to yourself for a while. Sing and swing for an hour or as long as you can and go out and break the course record for Midland Valley. Jimmy Manion shot it in 89. Go out and see what you can do."

The pupil swung and tried to sing to himself for a few minutes and then he took his bag of clubs, added a driver to it and set out to see what he could do with that course record.

The course record is still safe, but if it hadn't been for missing four short putts he'd have had an 87, which would have been the best round by 13 strokes that the pupil had had in six months. Those missed putts brought the total to 91.

It took much will power to make the swing in golf as it was made with Charley Clarkson singing his lullaby. The pupil's trouble had been that he had been putting the ball far out in front and had been trying to reach out for it in the swing.

"It can't be done," said Clarkson. "As the club goes back, so must it return, and when you take it back addressing the ball far out in front, you're bound to be cutting at the ball at an angle when the club returns. Swing as you sing and your club'll come back in a straight line and that's the only way you can hit the ball straight. As sure as your club comes into the ball at an angle, so surely will you put English on the ball and any Scot'll tell you that English is bad for anything.

"It don't make any difference if you never saw a golf club; I can take a raw beginner, man or woman, and in five minutes I can have him or her swinging as perfectly as a champion. It's all in the music. It's very interesting here during a tournament. You'll see some man slice or hook or dub a shot and he'll start swearing. Then he'll remember what I've been telling him and he'll start singing. And a few verses will put him back on his game and there'll be less swearing and more pars and birdies.

"That's the way I teach all my pupils. I take a beginner and have him swing and sing for an hour before I let them ever think of hitting a ball. When that swing has been mastered the rest of the game is easy. A frail bit of a woman can hit the ball 150 yards the first time she swings. I've had them do it time and again.

"And whenever you get off your game a few minutes of song and swing will always put you back.

"Try it at home. Pick out a good record on your talking machine. If your have no good song I'll be glad to make you a record, though my voice is not of the best. Only don't tell too many persons about it. A man wi' golf sticks can no' get chandelier insurance now."

CRYPTESTHESIA HAILED AS THE SIXTH SENSE

Wonder of radio communication has put noted scientists on the track of a hitherto undiscovered function of the brain—Mysterious waves that carry information of distinct happenings and bring them within grasp of conscious thought—A new and fascinating field of physiological research as seen by a famous French experimenter

AFTER centuries of study and experimentation, science at last is close on the trail of that elusive phantom, the sixth sense. It has, even been named, so that in the most advanced circles of physiological research the recognized senses now are sight, hearing, touch, taste, smell and cryptesthesia.

The mysterious stranger, cryptesthesia, is supposed to have the brain for its sense organ, and to it scientists attribute many of the strange manifestations which heretofore have been supposed to have their origin in the occult realms of "second sight" and spiritualism.

To the development of radio communication is largely due the fillip to the imagination of science and the dawning of an idea which a few years ago would have been considered revolutionary and subversive of all the established traditions of physiology.

Charles Richet, professor of physiology in the University of Paris, is blazing the trail for those hardy pioneering scientists who are now exploring the borderland of the senses. In a recent address before the International Congress of Physiologists in Edinburgh, as quoted by The Lancet, a leading British medical journal, Dr. Richet said:

"The thesis which I wish to sustain and to prove by the experimental method is that there may be a knowledge of reality obtained by other means than by the ordinary channels of the senses. Everyone knows that the external world is accessible to us by our senses, by vision, hearing and touch, and to a less extent by smell and taste. No other ways are known. It is the universal opinion that we can have no other notion of the reality that surrounds us except through our five senses, and that any fact must remain forever unknown unless sound, touch or vision has revealed it to us. This is the classic and at the same time popular idea. It is formal and exclusive, without itself ever having been demonstrated. To admit that a knowledge of occurrences can arrive at our consciousness by any other means than those of the senses is a daring and revolutionary proceeding, and yet this is the thesis that I am about to maintain."

Dr. Richet recounted a number of instances in which knowledge of occurrences at a great distance had been mysteriously conveyed to individuals either in dreams or in their waking hours. These are typical:

"Mr. Wingfield, on waking on his yacht, sees his brother appear in his cabin, pale and sad. Much frightened, he goes into another cabin and writes in his diary his brother's initials, followed by 'God forbid,' and the date and hour of the apparition. At the same hour his brother was killed while hunting in England by a fall from his horse.

"Mme. Guerin says to her daughter: 'I have just seen Mme. Lann pass; she died an hour ago.' And it was correct. Mme. Lann had not been at all ill."

Setting aside as untenable the propositions that these phenomena could be accounted for by fraud, chance or spiritualism, Dr. Richet made this significant assertion:

"The fourth proposition is neither an explanation nor a hypothesis, but is a simple enunciation of the fact, which is confirmed in a startling manner by experiment, that the occurrences of the external world, even when they do not affect our sense organs, can still influence our consciousness. By what channels I do not know, but the fact is there. Reality comes to us and then the reality takes a symbolic form, as in a dream. The unconscious part of Mme. Guerin is warned that Mme. Lann is dead, and in order to bring this fact to the conscious personality of Mme. Guerin her unconscious self imagines a dream. Hence comes the innumerable variety of these symbolic dreams, which all tend to the same result—a knowledge of reality, even though this knowledge arrives by mysterious and unknown channels.

"But however important these observations, which would suffice alone by their number and precision to make us admit that we are endowed with a hidden form of sensibility, which I cayy crytesthesia, there is a whole mass of still stronger evidence to demonstrate its existence.

"We may consider the experimental data under two heads: (1) Those observed in the hypnotic state, or in the so-called spiritualistic trance; (2) those which have been observed in normal individuals. Both sets of experiments are equally valid and lead us to the conclusion that, in addition to ordinary sensation, there exists a mysterious hidden sensibility—a cryptesthesia."

The distinguished French physiologist cited several instances in which persons in full consciousness had shown a mysterious knowledge of events happening at a great distance from them and he told of others who had the seeming clairvoyant power of reading sealed letters. He also told of the experiments with Mrs. Piper, an American medium.

"It is true," he said, "that in Mrs. Piper's case an explanation has been given which I do not consider legitimate. The facts are undeniable. But instead of supposing, as I have done, that it is the unconscious intelligence of Mrs. Piper which has obtained this knowledge by channels at present unknown to us, Oliver Lodge, R. Hodgson and even Myers, have preferred to assume that a human personality—that of a dead person, a spirit—has undergone incarnation in Mrs. Piper, and speaks by her voice, writes by her hand and thinks by her thought. This is the spiritualistic theory, which I cannot accept, even though in this special case it seems to furnish a very convenient and satisfactory explanation."

Dr. Richet recounted other examples of mystifying clairvoyance, including cases under his own observation, in which instant information of the assassination of Queen Draga of Serbia and of Jaures, the great French orator, were conveyed to persons a long distance from the scenes of these tragedies. He also told of the uncanny power of Stephen Ossovietzky, a Russian, in reading the contents of sealed letters. Of one of the tests he said:

"My illustrious friend, Sarah Bernhardt, sends a sealed letter to Warsaw which I keep carefully from the moment the postman delivers it to me until I give it to Ossovietzky, who feels it, presses it in every direction while Geley watches him assiduously, and says: "Life appears humble to us because it is (a word so French that I cannot read it—a word of eight letters)." Sarah Bernhardt had written: 'Life appears beautiful to us because we know it to be ephemeral.' I have made drawings which Stephen has reproduced faithfully. One paper he was able to read was inclosed in a leaden tube. Another time I wrote the word 'thou' on a paper which I rubbed into a little ball in my hand. Ossovietzky reads: 'Thou.' No cheating had been possible. I am as certain of that as of my own existence, and in order to assert my faith I should not hesitate to condemn a man to death on the strength of it. When a jury condemns a man to death they have less certainty than I have of the genuineness of my experiments.

"The access to our subconscious intelligence of these mysterious vibrations is an unusual phenomenon, but it is a phenomenon which is not in contradiction to anything," said Dr. Richet. "It is a new truth, that is all. And this new truth is wonderfully in agreement with the amazing notions which modern physics opens to us. At this moment I cannot hear any concert in this hall, nor do you. You

"We now know that there are vibrations everywhere even when we cannot directly apprehend them."

Now for the Real Air Flivver

Experimenters in England, France and Germany working hard to produce a small, light plane that can be used for commuting and by golfers and sportsmen—Already they have an aerial Ford that has made 87 1-2 miles on a gallon of gasoline and traveled 66 1-2 miles an hour ::

APPARENTLY the air flivver is going to be the next little wonder of the world. Fordization of the airplane is a dream fairly close to fulfillment. Experimenters in England, France and Germany, with the United States trailing behind as a poor fourth, are busy on the problem. The recent mammoth air tournament at St. Louis, it is hoped, may result in stirring up the American spirit so that competition in flivverizing the air lanes will be felt more keenly by our foreign friends. American airplane construction progress has been toward the bigger and speedier craft rather than in the opposite direction. It is a small and serviceable plane that is aimed at by those who hope to give the world and his wife a handy flyabout for everyday use.

Indications are that the ideal will be approximated in the not-distant future. Many men abroad are devoting their time and talents to the proposition. Already these patient experimenters have reached a point from which it is reasonable to predict success. The most enthusiastic of them are prophesying a time not far in the future when the air lanes will be alive with small, light planes darting about even as dart the multitudinous Ford cars of today; though not even the most sanguine inventor or adapter has ventured to predict, at any rate during the lifetime of the present generation of adults, an output of air flivvers so large as that of the American output of motor cars today.

It is interesting to forecast what the illimitable air above us will be like, or seem like, when it is more or less full of flivvers. Unless somebody is able to take the noise out of the motor and the propeller, the overhead clamor will become a matter of intimate concern to those who prefer an atmosphere that keeps quiet. One flivver will not disturb the peace of a whole community, but a flock of flivvers is a different thing altogether. When the small, serviceable and comparatively safe airplane is attained, a machine which can be bought at a reasonable cost and operated at an expense not prohibitive to the average citizen, there will be from year to year an increasing number of persons, of both sexes, who will find the air route handier for some purposes than the earth-bound highway.

One may imagine the country clubs in the suburbs of St. Louis providing landing and hopping-off fields for flivvers. Members desiring a game of golf will find it speedier to go by air than by automobile roads. But this use of the air flivver presupposes a place from which the machine can hop off. Obviously but few if any country club members have sufficient open ground included in their home premises to permit of hopping off there. Perhaps there will be a municipal starting ground, located as centrally as may be practicable. Or it may be that the up-to-date country club will find it necessary to acquire starting space at the edge of the city. In that case each air flivver owner will have his private hangar on the premises. The hangar will serve both for automobile and for airplane accommodation. When the plane is in use, the car will be locked up in the hangar, and vice versa.

The hunting and fishing clubs, most of which are considerably farther from the cities than are the golf links, should cause a considerable number of members to acquire air flivvers. Provided there is some suitable starting field near home, the owner of one of these Fords of the air will find it quite a convenient means of transportation to from his hunting preserves. The trip may be made very much faster than would be practicable by automobile, and at a great saving of gasoline. Records provide a basis of comparison between the automobile and the light airplane both as to speed and as to consumption of fuel.

In a series of light-airplane trials in England surprisingly good performances in economy, speed and altitude were made. A distance of 87 1-2 miles was flown on a gallon of gasoline, a speed of 66 1-2 miles an hour was reached. A climb of more than 6000 feet was made. These tests were made in a machine of a type very much smaller than any of those seen at the St. Louis air meet, excepting only the 30-foot biplane built and piloted by Lawrence B. Sperry of Farmingdale, L. I. The European machines were of the monoplane type. It is said that overseas experimenters expect to attain the air flivver by way of the monoplane.

The extreme lightness of these flivver-airplane motors is emphasized quite forcibly by the fact that at the recent trials Flight-Lieutenant Longton removed the engine from his craft and held it in one hand, almost shoulder high, when being photographed. With the airplane using this tiny motor Lieut. Longton equaled the record of the J. H. James plane for minimum gasoline consumption—87 1-2 miles on just less than a gallon.

Getting back, now, to that interesting possibility—the trip to and from hunting and fishing grounds by air flivver—let us bear in mind the distance flown on a gallon of gasoline and the speed recorded in the tests mentioned above. It will be noted that the speed was considerably more than a mile a minute. But let us say that the air flivver will average a mile a minute. The Ford flivver, on a fine concrete road and undisputed right of way, is capable of doing 35 miles an hour without extraordinary menace to life and limb; but let us say 30 miles for safe and sane going under ideal conditions.

We find, therefore, that under its best conditions of travel the ground flivver is only about half as fast as the air flivver at the present stage of the latter's development. But on the average country road 20 miles an hour is quite enough for any Ford, and on such roads as lead to the ordinary hunting club even that speed is hardly permissible. We may say, then, that the air flivver can reach a hunting club headquarters 60 miles from St. Louis in one hour, whereas a road flivver will require from three to four hours for the same trip. Our hunter or fisherman saves himself from two to two and a half hours for his favorite sport. Moreover, he travels to the club quarters on about three quarts of gas.

ity the Poor Prisoner

A pen picture, rather fanciful, of the reactions of a payroll robber to the comforts and extras supplied him in one of our present-day prisons — He finds it "just like a swell hotel," with shower baths, flower garden, radio, musical concerts, lectures, a library, all free—He even has a thermostat for regulating the heat in his cell, so he won't catch cold after his shower

He was summoned to the office shortly after his arrival.

"What courses do you want to study?" he was asked.

"Sure, and you'll do time. But we have a school here and prisoners can take up almost any course they want to. We teach higher mathematics, such as algebra, trigonometry and geometry. Then we have language courses and literary courses."

The prisoner's first letter to his wife read something like this:

Dear Carrie: Well, I'm here, and honest, Carrie, it's not so bad. I'd settle down here pretty well, I think, if it wasn't for thinking about you. I was talkin' with the sky pilot the other day, and he says there's a organization that looks after the families of men that's sent up, and I gave him your address and maybe they'll come around to see you. Guess maybe the little old bank account will tide you along for a little while.

This prison life's not so bad as you might think. They've got a baseball team here, and when they found out I was a real pitcher, why they yanked me up and put me on the team. And you ought to seen the way I was striking 'em out in the game last Saturday. We play every Saturday and some of these bozos can sure swing a wicked bat. Me? Well, you know I never was no sleepy guy with the stick. The team we beat was some local store team—the Jones Prides—and they're supposed to be some punkins, too.

And, say, Carrie, old girl, we got a big radio receivin' set in the mess hall, with loud speakin' horn to it, and we eat supper every night listenin' to jazz and highbrow music and the latest popular songs like we ain't got no bananas, yes.

Then the sky pilot they call the Charlie Chaplin or somethin' told us last Sunday in chapel that they'd signed up for a serious of musical concerts for the winter. High-class talent, he says, and all we got to do is to set snug and hear the programs, without coughin' up a red for tickets. Talk about gettin' somethin' for nothin'—well, you hear me, sweetie! Goin' to have a lot of lecturers blow in, too, and give us free advice and information, and if we don't like that we can sleep through it, I reckon.

We got a big swimmin' pool, too, and shower baths. Never had nothin' like that, free, when I was on the outside. Guess they're afraid we might ketch cold, so they give us a heatin' system with a thing they call a thermostat to regulate the heat. We can keep the temperature of our cells whatever we like, by hand, no work or trouble at all. Just like a swell hotel.

If we get sick there's prison doctors to look after us, and they even got tooth carpenters to do the fancy work on our teeth. No dentist bills to pay, and your teeth all kept fit and tidy for you!

And, say, Carrie, now don't you begin to get jealous—but I'll say there's some handsome skirts among these "cheer-up" ladies that visit the prison and ladle out the soothin' syrup for us every now and then. Seems mighty fine to have these good old girlies come around and smile and sing and talk taffy to us.

We got a fine big flower garden out in the quad—you know, this hoosegow is built sorter like Yale University, with what they call a quad in the center. Well, some of the old boys in here keep that flower farm right up to the minute, and it sure does a

The Condemned

THE long, canvas-covered cars of the World's Amalgamated Circus rocked and swayed with the uneven roadbed of a sideline railroad. It was night—a black night of slashing rain and shrieking winds and jagged lightning.

In the dripping, tarpaulin-covered cat cages the feline jungle beasts roared and hissed and leaped. Here and there along the rocking train huddled figures in slickers and storm coats made their way from one den to another, carefully listening at the sideboards for sounds of battle—the conflict of savage beasts which turn upon one another with a madness bred of darkness and fright.

In the horse cars the hostlers made the rounds of the animals, petting them and reassuring them. Back in the executive Pullmans, superintendents and managers made their plans for the next day, plans for wet lots, for dangerous, rutty rings and a slippery hippodrome.

The World's Amalgamated now was in the grip of a midsummer tempest, and with the next show stand a hundred miles away. Everywhere about the dripping train there was discomfort—danger.

Far ahead, in the biggest of the elephant cars, a great, shadowy hulk turned and twisted and trumpeted as he sought to evade the attacks of a "bull hook" in the muscular hands of a man who cursed and shouted at him. His chains had parted as he lunged in fright during an outburst of thunder; now he was an unfettered monster stumbling from one side of the car to the other. The trainer's voice rose to a scream:

"Get over there, Rajah!" he shouted, and drove the bull hook deep into the soft flesh behind the great elephant's ear. "Get over there, or I'll"——

Then he turned quickly, as a swish of rain sent his attention to an opened ventilator and the dripping figure clambering within.

"That you, boss?"

"Yes! What the devil are you trying to do to that bull?"

A man had dropped into the circle of light, his eyes blazing. "Haven't you got any more sense than to hook an elephant when he's scared? Get out of here!"

The other drew back sullenly.

"He broke his chains, Mason. I had to do something!"

"You didn't have to try to cut him to pieces. Rajah!"

The command was sharp, yet with a friendly quality. The beady eyes of the elephant turned in the direction of his master. Slowly Mason went forward. "Come on, Rajah, old boy!! he shouted. "Everything's all right—everything's all right!"

He grasped the brute's trunk and clung to it, slapping the pachyderm about the mouth, blows which were only friendly pats to the thick-skinned mammal. The elephant squealed—a call of friendship—then ceased his twisting. Soon he was only a great, swaying hulk again, his beady eyes fastened on the man who, to him, meant friendship and protection and love. Mason reached for the stay-chain; then as he turned, he paused.

"I thought I told you to get out of here," he said, abruptly.

"I'm going." Brace moved surlily toward the ventilator.

"Well, move, then. You've only got 20 minutes to pack your stuff. We stop for water at Larretsville."

"My stuff?" The assistant paused on the ladder, then slowly clambered down again. "Why—why, boss, you ain't going to red-light me?"

"Ain't I?" Mason dropped the chain, came forward. Brace stood with hands shifting along the taped-handle of his heavy bull-hook. "You're through! There ain't a man on this show can sail into a cat or a bull without getting stepped off for it. You get out of this car and off this train! You're through!"

"I've got a right to my money!"

"Money? Nothing doing! It's cowards like you that"—— He paused. "If you've got anything coming to you, you're fined that amount. And you're red-lighted at the next stop. Maybe the next show you go on, you'll—well, aren't you going?"

"No, I'm not going!"

Mason doubled his fists.

"Just as you please. Get off or be put off."

"I'm not going. You're red-lightin' me off this show because you're jealous o' me, Mason. I'm a better animal man than you ever thought o' being."

"Get up that ladder, Brace, and pack up!"

"I'll not. I'll"——

"Get up that ladder!" Mason came forward.

The bull hook circled; a snapping, clacking blow, a gasping cry! Slowly Mason sank to the straw-covered floor of the car. Brace stood over him, glowering, menacing. Then suddenly he went to his knees.

"He's dead!"

Trumpeting, the elephant moved slowly toward the body of his fallen master. Brace leaped quickly to the protection of the shadows. If one tremendous hoof could only obliterate the red mark of that blow!

Out of the shadows came Brace, his weapon brandishing high in the air.

"Rajah!"

The hook sank deep. The animal writhed and turned. A great hoof struck flesh—and for a second and third and fourth time. Then Brace, driving the elephant into the rear of the car, stood staring down. The mark of the bull hook was gone. A moment later, dripping, scrambling, he clambered from car top to car top, to the Pullmans, his voice shrieking:

"Flag down the train! Rajah's gone bad—he's killed Mason!"

Brake shoes gripped and slipped and shrieked. Half-dressed men tumbled from the Pullmans to race along the tracks to the bull cars. The gleam of the lanterns, through the hastily opened door, displayed Rajah's big form half-kneeling beside the crushed body of his master, his cry echoing again and again.

"All right, bull men! Put down the run and get that elephant out o' there before he takes another streak! Hop to it—Bartwell! Jones! Come on, Brace!"

They slipped the wide wooden runway into place and drove the elephant down to be chained and penned. Then, while the three other bull men picked up the crushed body of Jim Mason, the menagerie superintendent asked Brace:

"What happened?"

"I—I don't know, sir. I was making my way along the top of the bull cars when I heard Mr. Mason shouting down here, and a terrible racket. I climbed inside. Rajah trampled him. I drove him back with the bull hook, but it was too late. He told me privately that he always was a bit afraid of Rajah."

"Funny he never came to me about it. Mr. Mason always tried his best—guess he thought he could handle him."

"That was about it, sir."

"Hate to see this" There was a tone of regret in the superintendent's voice. "Old Rajah was the first elephant this show ever had." His eyes grew reminiscent. "Guess it wouldn't have been the show it is today without Rajah. Used to be about the whole thing—helped unload in the morning, walked around the lot, made parade, acted as about all the menagerie we had, went in performance, and helped put the show back on the train at night. But I guess he's gone now. Mason wasn't mistreating him."

Brace's eye gleamed. "Of course, when I saw him last, he was hooking him pretty bad; but then, he was fighting for his life."

"Sure. Sorry to see it happen. Mason was a good man, and Rajah was a good old bull. But I guess there isn't much chance for him now. Better watch him pretty close."

"Me, sir?"

"Yeh. You take all your time to Rajah—and if you can pull him out of it. If it was just a grudge proposition against Mason alone, there's a good chance. So"——

"Yes, sir. I understand, sir! I'll handle him right." Brace spoke cockily. "As soon as the other men get back, we'll run him into the car again and chain him. The storm seems to be letting up."

"Hope so." The superintendent went on. "Stick to it."

The train was again on the move, and Brace, in his bunk in the sleeping cars, stared fixedly at the face board of the berth above him. Safe! Free from suspicion! Safe—with a reputation of fearlessness. But the next morning——

The door of the big bull car slid open in the gray of dawn, and a man hurried to the shadowy form of the elephant within. He loosed his chain and prodded the beast in the shoulder.

"All right, Rajah," he ordered. Get with it."

The elephant wheeled grudgingly; his eyes blinked and his trunk began to curl slowly upward. A shrill trumpet blast sounded, angry, threatening. He moved into the more open space of the car.

"Rajah! Get around there and out of this car!"

wing of a child in a tantrum. His small beady e rolled, showing the red-rimmed whites. Sweat e to the trainer's forehead. Gray lips moved in whisper:

"He's next to me."

Again and again the shrill blast sounded. Then s trumpeting suddenly took on a new note, a murulous note. The padding of the great hoofs ased. A little squeal came from the elephant, and moved forward as a woolly little dog, barking ith all his midget strength, came bounding up the unway, bounced into the car, sniffed about the straw, then began joyously frisking about the legs of the phant. It was Rags, Mason's nondescript little mpanion of the circus, just released for the day from the dog wagon and searching for his master.

Here and there he trotted, barking with a surised note when Mason did not answer. The elephant stared down at him. Rags, merely an enbored thing until this moment—for an elephant, by stinct, hates a dog—invariably denoted the presence of Jim Mason. Rajah squealed delightedly and xtended his trunk slowly toward the little mongrel. Rags leaped and wagged his tail.

For a long moment they stood and sniffed at ach other in animal silence. They appraised each ther and were satisfied with their findings, while n the background a murderer stood staring at the trange pair. Brace bent forward, whistling to the ongrel and luring him with soft words and an exended hand.

Rags bounded and leaped about the man, sallying ward him, then rushing happily to the shelter of e elephant's legs. The trainer straightened, with knowledge that Rajah again was calm. Still tting the dog with one hand, Brace sought the oorway of the car, and turned.

"Come on, Rajah!" he ordered, and the elephant beyed. There was no attitude of yielding, only tolerance. A canine friend had intervened; that as all.

The dog often scurried about the circus lot in is search for his master—but inevitably he returned to Rajah. And the elephant came to watch or him. At night Brace tied a string to the collar f Rags and led him toward the cars, and in their ear, a shadowy bulk, followed Rajah in placid conidence. But he followed Rags, not the man!

Rags slept in the thick bedding of straw which overed the floor of the elephant car, a new home made for him by Brace.

As for Jard Brace—Rajah obeyed him because Rags obeyed him. There was nothing in the mentality of the dog to teach him distrust of the man who each day brought him dainties from the cookhouse, and who petted him, even while he wanted to choke him.

Brace longed to strike out into a new life where he could forget and be forgotten. But to leave would invite suspicion. He was blocked, baffled at every turn, imprisoned in his waking hours in the company of two beings which reminded him, hour after hour, of the man he had killed; at night he must sleep in a car which contained 30 other persons, any one of whom might wake to hear the ravings of his murdered dreams. He forsook the Pullman, with the intention of spending the night on the bull car with Rags and the elephant. But every shadow cast by a passing switchlight brought him visions of a tottering form; every clanking of Rajah's picket chain set him shivering; finally he clambered over the tops of the cars back to his berth in the Pullman.

He grew gaunt. His eyes hollowed; his features took on a haunted, beaten look.

The little mongrel rarely left Rajah now. Part time found Rajah leading the herd, and Rags trailing Rajah, his fluffy tail cocked at a rudderlike angle as he trotted ahead of the elephant line through the sun-strewn streets.

In the afternoons, when Rajah knelt in the straw for his daily rest, Rags clambered over his big head unmolested, and even nestled in the hollow behind the flapping ear for a bit of a nap. At night, when the torches gleamed on the street corners, to mark the route to the loading runs, side by side they would go to the cars, there to be locked up for the night, two lonely things, without a master, without an interest—save each other.

This, too, ate into the composure of Jard Brace. Rags he despised, even though he petted him. Rajah he hated and feared, and from this fear grew an idea. He had killed the master; now he must kill the elephant.

"I'm afraid we'll have to dig up some more chains around the show, Mr. Mathews," Brace said, with a tired whine. "He about wore me out last night."

"Wore you out?" The menagerie superintendent turned in surprise. "You don't mean"——

"Yep." Brace said it with an air of sorrow. "I've seen it for a couple of weeks—but thought maybe I could pull him through. But I had to stay in the car all last night and fight him most of the time. Almost got the best of me two or three times."

Mathews shook his head.

"Sorry to hear that, Brace. You're sure he's"——

"Sure of it, Mr. Mathews?" Brace stared at him. "Why, last night I was afraid I wasn't going to get out."

"I'd better order those chains, then. How many'll you need? Four or five?"

"I'd feel safer with six—forged."

"Sure. But we can't pick 'em up closer than Fort Worth."

"Fort Worth? Why, that's over a week away."

"I know it. Can't help it, though. It's the closest place. I'll wire in the order. You can have any help you need in the meantime."

Brace turned angrily toward the picket line. It was not help he needed; it was chains—chains that would bind the massive legs so that Brace could beat and gouge Rajah in the bull car at night, so he could torment him until he gained what he desired, a surly, vicious animal, waiting for the chance to crash with his trunk the first person who came within range. And that would happen; some passing workman would forget and walk too close. But those chains were a week away. It irritated him. Surlily, he turned to his work, only to growl at the query of an elephant tender:

"Bugles sounded for the parade. Hadn't we better lead 'em out?"

"Lead 'em out yourself! Rajah don't go in parade any more."

Then, while the rest of the elephants departed to join the long line of glittering wagons, Brace swerved roughly toward the barking Rags and struck him with his pitchfork.

"Cut that out!" he snarled, and went back to his work. The dog, puzzled by the absence of his big playmate from the parade, trotted under the side-wall to view the assembling of the street pageant. Then he hurried back again, once more to bound about Brace, barking and yapping. Again the pitchfork traveled in his direction.

"Get out of here!"

But Rags persisted. Seething with anger, the man struck him, cursed, and with a kick of his heavy boot sent him shrilling with pain to the protection of Rajah's legs.

Then it was that Jard Brace leaped screaming to one side and made for the side-wall as a bellowing roar came from behind him, and the wind from a smashing blow of a trunk fanned his face. Then came the crackling of wood and a tremendous form, loosed from his bondage, broke forward in pursuit. Jard Brace, his hands clawing, ran toward the assembled parade, his voice high with the warning:

"Quick—quick with those bulls! Circle 'em! Rajah's broken loose—he's gone bad again!"

The side-walling ripped from the menagerie tent, and, chains clanking, picket pins clattering, Rajah came, a trumpeting, plunging monster of revenge!

Shouts! Milling elephants hastily circled before the approaching beast. Scurrying horses—men running. Scattering clowns, white-faced acrobats, hysterical women performers. Rajah, blind with rage, smashed into one of the other elephants, rebounded, strove vainly to find a loophole in the circle, then slowly, grudgingly subsided. Far across the lot, huddled under a wagon, a wreck of a man cowered, ready to run again, should the elephant line break. The commanding voice of the menagerie superintendent rang out:

"Hold them bulls in line there until we can run a side wall around here. Somebody get the boss and tell him he'll have to make parade without the elephants. Where's Brace?"

"Over here." He crawled from beneath the wagon. The menagerie superintendent rode toward him.

"What happened?"

"He just went bad, sir. I was spreading the straw when he made for me."

For a long moment the superintendent was silent, biting his lip. At last: "Hate to do it—but I guess I've got to. Go down and tell the trainmaster we'll want two switch engines at 4:30. Tell him to spot the Rajah bull car between 'em, and to noose up two half-inch cables."

"Yes, sir." Jard Brace hurried for the railroad yards. An elephant execution. Free! Free at last!

While he stumbled on across the rutty lot, an inquisitive, fluffy little nondescript of a dog trotted through the elephant circle and took his place between the front legs of a thing condemned.

All that afternoon Rags remained there, looking inquiringly at the side-walling which had been thrown about the elephant, the legs of pacing armed men, which showed beneath the lower edge of the canvas, and the heavy, stocky hoofs of the circle of elephants on guard against another outbreak. Far away the band played in the big top, and the

Then when the day of which he dreams dawning across the scene of the encounter over which a cellar reading through the dust of the retreated enemy artillery, the last of all other implements of war, gunned, mauled and ruined in order to permit the infantry to battle with the opposing infantry. No matter what new conditions or methods of war may be brought into action there can never exist a substitute for a combat of the opposing armies with rifles and bayonets—the primary element in the decisive test."

For the professional officer there can be no question but that the possibility of such carnage must cause the forethought of every humane and right thinking man, woman and child in a possible nation.

The possibility of the return to use of mobile dropped type, dirigibles and the aerial fleet is constantly dread, while the cities Bleriot the age could have been thrown into panic by the sudden appearance of a new monster of the deep, a submersible warship which has navigated the coast line, entered harbors, sunk shipping, fired into buildings and successfully made its escape.

Such was the situation when the hostile armies moved toward each flight in parallel roads toward the first great battlefield.

Airplane reconnaissance in advance of both armies is the new and outstanding characteristic of the march in contact. Battles for command of the air are of hourly occurrence, but the air is a vast theater and positive command thereof cannot be obtained to the extent of preventing free movement of planes in any direction, and so no movement by day can escape the observation of the airmen. Marches in the theater of operations must therefore be conducted largely by night, while throughout the column anti-aircraft weapons furnished with armor-piercing (incendiary) ammunition must be

Hearts leap to the throats of the young riders as decision: "Charge!"

Behind the point thunder a hundred hoofs in the darkness in a headlong charge and there on the hilltop above the Comanche, man against man, our troopers fight for and win the ground so necessary for the success of our columns behind.

Let no honest dreamer convince our people that machinery has taken the place of men, or that any engine of war can outdo the human animal. I repeat, in battle "the human element is the decisive one." Whatever auxiliary methods may be employed—strategical, tactical, mechanical or moral—the final method is the physical encounter with bullet and bayonet. Modern development merely introduces new situations for the application of these fundamental principles.

And so, as darkness settles on this day of conflict, out from the woods and farmhouses come the doughboy with his pack, the field artilleryman, the engineer, etc., and on the column marches over a hundred-mile front to close in mortal combat.

Like the British cavalry in Palestine, our cavalry had splendidly vindicated itself. The airplane had not replaced but had merely supplemented the cavalryman's activities and broadened the scope of his usefulness. Thus it came to pass that during two days of almost incessant battle our cavalry divisions, reinforced by squadrons of airplanes, successfully held the heights of the Comanche until the infantry, crossing in solid column just before dawn, relieved the cavalry and rendered them mobile once more.

There could be no rest for the tired army. Territory must be gained beyond the Comanche less than two miles in rear of the advance echelons. The hostile infantry was but 20 miles away—marching to emerge from The Brambles, a vast, irregular forest that lay 10 miles beyond the Comanche.

A day of battle ensued which will live forever in the memory of the last survivor. Infantry, artillery, cavalry, the air service, each played its tragic role in forcing back the hostile cavalry upon the columns which it was covering. The sun was sinking beyond he heights of the Comanche when the heads of our infantry columns entered The Brambles and were wrapped up in the gloom of the forest. Where was the hostile infantry?

Airplanes reported that enemy columns had entered the opposite side of the forest about an hour before. Let us follow Private John Doe, 800th Infantry, at the point of the advance guard. Nerves strained like the steel springs of a watch, with darkness settling rapidly through the trees, John Doe suddenly sees a flash of fire, hears the sharp crack of a rifle and dimly recognizes crouching figures rushing into skirmish line in front of him. The opposing infantries have met in the heart of The Brambles. All that happened before was but a prelude to the battle to a finish to be waged by the doughboy, the supreme man of battle. Months, years may pass, but finally upon the results obtained by him rests the success of the army. Into the spitting flames he advances. To the crack of the hostile rifle, a new self-loader, are quickly added the bursts of fire of the opposing machine rifle, followed a few moments later by the unmistakable rattle of the machine guns, all new weapons, until the forest resounds with a deafening roar along a line which constantly extends as the assaulting elements feel their way through the darkness. It is like the Wilderness of Grant and Lee. Except for the flashes of fire no one can see or locate the enemy, but back from the front lines speeds a radio-phone message outlining the situation and our artillery moves into position.

Exact targets? There are none. We know only that the enemy entered the forest by roads shown upon the airplane maps and that he is probably now pressing forward in column on these roads. Guns trained on these avenues of approach, direction obtained by airplane maps, our artillery opens fire. Far out in the enemy territory soon comes the answering roar. Within an hour the earth fairly rocks and trembles, but all this complex machinery of war must be controlled by leaders thousands of yards away through the system of communications of which radio is the principal element. Sensation follows sensation until all the superficialities of life are swept away and the safety of a nation rests in the hands of John Doe, basic man, as we build him day by day in our homes, our schools and industrial life.

He can no longer be shocked or surprised. And so as darkness shrouds the forest and Private John Doe is sinking exhausted over his red-hot rifle a new sound greets his ear, but does not dismay him—that of a huge thing in flight. It passes above the forest like a great wind toward our artillery positions, and then all previous explosions combined seem small by comparison. It is the flying mine, radio controlled, which starts from a point many miles away and drops with a fair degree of accuracy on any desired area. It is the newest thing in modern warfare. Science has not been able to replace the light or medium heavy field artillery, but it has tentatively replaced the tremendously costly and burdensome heavy artillery with a weapon which is practically all projectile; and now, for the first time in history, it is playing its trial role. Again and again it sweeps over the forest, each time exploding nearer to our batteries. There is no protection against it except in wide dispersion and in sinking straight down into the earth so that only a direct or close hit will kill or shock into unconsciousness. In the presence of such danger as this man instinctively burrows. Cover, intrenchments and camouflage play a greater role than ever before in the history of battle. With bayonet, intrenching tools and mess pans, John Doe digs for safety. Dawn will find no living creature visible on the battle front.

The crackle of rifles gradually subsides, the exhausted soldier sinks on his arms, when overhead again is heard that dread sound, the deep-toned murmur of airships, and through the forest rolls the sound of exploding bombs.

It is vastly more than an incident of battle. A new phase of warfare is being tried for the first time—attack by airplane bombs on our supporting artillery. Our new anti-aircraft weapons, with which each battery is armed, lace the sky with the luminous while if he used his Ford he would burn three and a half to four gallons for the same journey. Quite a tidy saving for fishing tackle and shotgun shells!

And Now for the Airplane Flivver

The air flivver, when developed sufficiently, is expected to become a craft popular with suburban residents. In the St. Louis territory, for instance, men owning homes some miles out in the county could escape the crush on the highways by flying into the city and back home. This, of course, would necessitate some landing place in the city. Ample space for stopping and starting from home also would be required, it is hardly necessary to point out.

The fact seems to be that starting and stopping space is the chief consideration. Were that problem solved, the rest would be comparatively easy. The inventors have not contrived, as yet, an aircraft that is able to get up into the air and get down onto the ground again without using up a very considerable stretch of level ground with plenty of leeway to each side. Inventors are said to be working on a type of plane that is to ascend and descend vertically, but that for the present is a vague dream. Should it ever be realized, our country-seat citizen could build his hangar upon the roof of his house and hire landing and parking space for his air flivver atop the office building wherein he labors downtown.

It is true that young Lawrence Sperry managed to take the air from Lindell boulevard when in St. Louis, but the aviator had special police protection for his hop-off runway, and the whole matter was simply a stunt. Sperry's feat of making a landing in the corner of Forest Park and "taxi-ing" to the door of the Hotel Chase likewise was a stunt, but it showed the future possibilities of the airplane flivver. Later, in a plane of the same type and size, an aviator made a safe landing in Riverside Drive, in New York City, after one attempt that was more than half a failure.

Enthusiasts in aerial flivverization aver that by the time the small plane with a tiny engine is developed to the point where it will be in demand for commuters' and sportsmen's uses it will be able to take off and alight within a length or so.

The main thing just now is that earnest experimenters are at work in several countries and that they have achieved a surprising progress toward the successful air flivver.

At the recent tests in England at the Lympne airdrome, when the Duke of Sutherland and a London newspaper gave prizes for light airplanes showing superior points, 18 machines were entered. Not one of them was allowed to have an engine exceeding seven and a half horsepower, and it was instructive to see how each designer approached the problem of that power limitation. Some frankly attempted the production of a very light machine, to fly with a minimum of mechanical effort, while others devoted their attention more to a general utility machine which any future "owner-pilot" will find easy to run, durable in service and handy in size.

Handiness on the ground was one test. All the machines passed the transport test, the main features of which were the ability of the airplanes to pass through a 10-foot gateway; not to occupy more than seven feet six inches of road width, and to be capable of being wheeled a mile by two men. Three hours were allowed for this test, and the speed with which the machines were reduced from flying trim to the transport stage was particularly noted.

"The Vickers Viget, a biplane of 25 feet span, a length of 17.3 feet and a wing area of 200 square feet, with a 736c.c. twin Douglas engine, must be awarded the honors from the spectator's point of view in this connection," says a writer in the London Times. "I timed the operations on this machine, and it took two and one-half minues to get it ready for housing in its small shed. The secret lies in wings which fold back, and in self-locking pins, working on the 'umbrella-catch' principle. No other machine approached its speed, but the machine is not particularly light, and is really a quite conventional airplane, designed more for general work than any special economy performance. It is a proposition which would make a strong anneal to the private aviator on many points.

"Next to the Viget in handiness came the De Haviland 53, one of the neatest machines on the airdrome. This is also designed as a utility machine, with a good turn of speed. It is a monoplane, with the wings set low, so as to check 'wing-tipping' on the ground and to give 'cushioning' effect when landing. Its span is 30 feet, its length 19 feet 8 1-4 inches, its wing area 120 square feet. The engine is a 750c.c. Douglas. This machine has the De Haviland differential aileron control and embodies several novel features. Originally it was intended to have folding-back wings, but it appeared with detachable wings, and was ready for the road in nine and one-half minutes 'all on'—that is, with the wings locked along the fuselage by simple metal straps and hooks, and nothing left behind."

The little Wren monoplane, the pioneer of the low-powered craft seen at Lympne, was regarded as one of the most interesting machines in the tests. It made 45 miles an hour with a small engine (398c.c.). The correspondent continues:

"As a cantilever monoplane the Wren has no supporting wing struts, and its 37-foot span wings were detached in three minutes. Supports have been designed for placing the two halves of the wing on the fuselage, but as nearly three hours were available to transport everything a mile these were not used. Mr. Manning, the designer, and Squadron Leader M. Wright, the Air Ministry test pilot, with Flight-Lieutenant W. H. Longton, made three trips, a procedure adopted by some of the other entrants of monoplanes. The tail plane of the Wren is left in situ, and as it is seven feet five inches wide there was just half an inch to spare on each side when passing the road test. Its clean design—even the fuselage in side elevation conforms to a thick wing section—is a pleasure to behold.

"Another monoplane which runs it close is the A. N. E. C. machine, though this design has two outside struts under each wing. It has a span of 32 feet, a length of 16 feet, a wing area of 145 square feet, and a 698c.c. Blackburn engine, mounted upside down to secure streamline throughout. The main plane is mounted a little above the fuselage, and the pilot drops in through a hole in the plane and shuts a celluloid flap after him. There is more room inside than one would imagine, and the result is a perfectly clean and unbroken top surface to the wing, fixed flaps having been made to cover the aileron hinge gaps. Beyond the struts already mentioned and the under carriage wheels there is nothing outside the fuselage except an inch or so of elevator rod and a few inches of control cable to the rudder. The wheels are novel; they are built up of three-ply wood with a leather tread, and weigh half a pound less than a much smaller wheel and tire of the ordinary pattern. It took seven minutes to dismount the wings.

"A fourth monoplane, the performance of which was watched with interest, is the Gull, the twin-screw pusher machine with a Blackburn 700 c.c. engine, which is the joint production of Maj. Gnosspelius and Mr. J. L. Parker. It was dismantled comfortably in nine minutes. It has several unconventional features, including a streamline body shaped like that of a bird, and wings cut back towards the outer ends of the leading edge. It has already shown itself very efficient in the air.

"During the morning the Avro biplane and monoplane arrived by road, were assembled, and went through their test, while late in the afternoon the Parnall Pixie monoplane came in by road, showing an extremely well thought out scheme for packing up its wings. Mr. F. P. Raynham's Hadasyde monoplane, with its black body and yellow wings, was dismantled in five minutes, the whole wing span being in one piece. As it was brought to the airdrome by road, with the wing on a framework above a motor car, and the fuselage trailing behind, it certainly may claim to be transportable."

A Profitable Market for Worm-Eaten Oak

THAT it pays to investigate needs of foreign markets is shown by the following incident which occurred in a European country a short time ago, recently reported to the lumber division of the Department of Commerce.

An American exporter sent an unusually poor consignment of oak, which was found to be wormy, to his oversea connection, but no market could be found for this parcel. This consignment would have caused a great loss to the exporter were it not for the fact that the consignee happened to visit an antique furniture factory. The manufacturer was at that time busily engaged in making antique grandfather's clocks and found the oak in question to answer his purpose very nicely because it eliminated the work of boring worm holes by hand. The parcel was disposed of at a premium and a profitable connection was established.

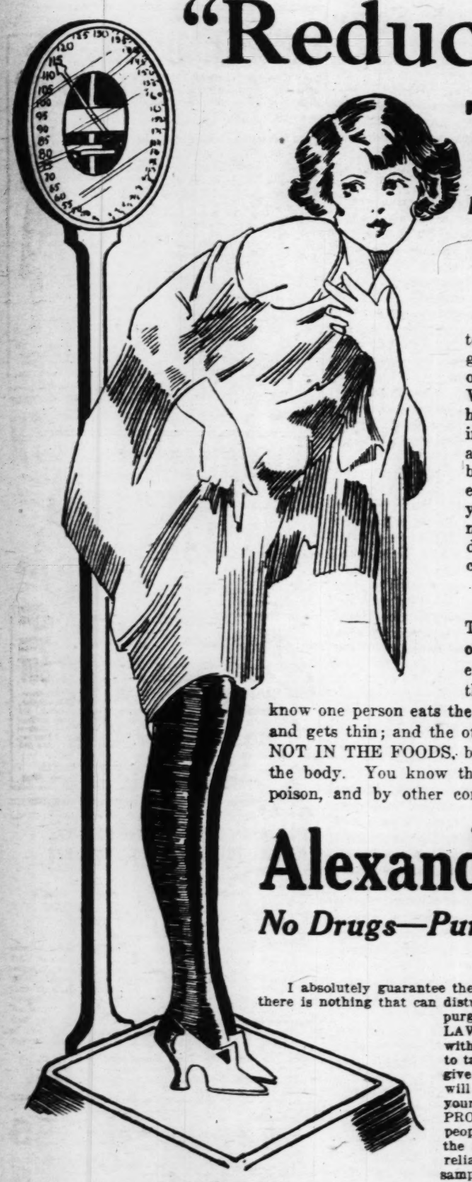
"Reduce a Pound a Day! This Delightful Easy Way"!



Fat Melts Away Without Starving—Without Dangerous Drugs—Without Loss of Time—Without Discomfort. Here's the Simple Natural Way. Eat Palatable Reducing Vitamines With Your Meals and Grow Thin.

(These statements have been confirmed by high dietic and biological authorities)

Who wants to be fat? What woman wants to be stout, heavy on her feet? The slender graceful figure of youth is covered by rolls of flesh. Hitherto what agonies to reduce? What sweatings, what fastings, what violent heart damaging exercises? Or perhaps taking dangerous thyroids extracts warned against by all physicians. But now you can be trim and graceful. You can reduce easily, and naturally. You need not deny yourself food. No, eat heartily. Food is necessary for strength and energy. You don't want wrinkles in your face such as come from starving yourself.

Science now offers you REDUCING VITAMINES. What controls the conversion of food into blood, muscle, flesh, bones, energy and life? A process that goes on in the body known as METABOLISM. You know one person eats the same food to the same amount as another, and gets thin; and the other person gets fat. What is the reason? NOT IN THE FOODS, but in the way the FOODS are handled in the body. You know that by combining certain foods you get a poison, and by other combinations you get wonderful benefit.

Now you can EAT AND GROW THIN. Now you can burn up starch cells. Now you can oxidize the rolls of flesh like extra fuel is consumed quickly when a blast of air stirs up the fire.

Quick results follow the use of Alexander's Reducing Vitamines. THE WAIST LINE IS THE FIRST TO SHOW RESULTS. THEN THE SHOULDERS, BUST AND HIPS. Before you realize it trim ankles and a beautiful figure are yours. And you feel better than ever before. Because VITAMINES give energy. You actually increase in strength. Your complexion brightens.

Thousands are experiencing these marvelous results. You read about how famous opera singers and actresses use this method. Ask your physician. He will confirm the scientific facts given in this announcement. He, too, will warn you against drugs, fasting, over-exercise. He will tell you FOOD COMBINATION is the right and only way to reduce.

NOW YOU CAN TRY without risk or expense. Make this amazing test in your own home, in all privacy. Don't take my word. Don't take anybody's word. Try for yourself. This trial is free.

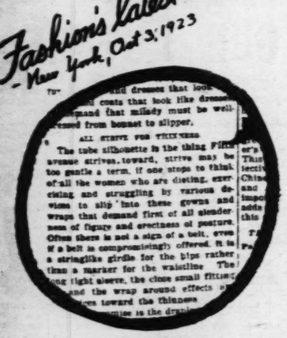
What a shame to be fat, to be self-conscious. Be slender and fashionable. Have enough energy to dance all night. Just write me, NOW, TODAY.

Easy Now to Have Graceful Figure



"I am simply delighted with the results of the Reducing Vitamine treatment. In a very few days I began to notice results. The flesh around the abdomen and shoulders seemed to melt away. It is so easy and simple to eat and grow thin by combining Vitamines with diet. Any woman can have a normal graceful figure in proportion to her height, and I have noticed that the excessive appetite for sweets and starches that most stout people exhibit tends to disappear. I have already reduced fifteen pounds and know that I can now regulate my weight exactly as I desire without fasting, or taking drugs, or expensive massages. This is an ideal treatment for women who are on the stage or go out in society, as it requires no time or abstinence from daily duties or pleasures."
Mrs. William Austin, Rochester, New York.

GALLSTONES

Simple Home Palliative Treatment Advised to Stop Suffering

About one person in ten has infected gall-bladder or gallstones. First symptoms are indigestion and bloating, agonizing attacks soon follow and often neglect leads to surgery. But many have a horror of surgery; many are too old, weak or ill for dangerous operations. Palliative treatment with medicines is being more and more advised by many noted authorities except in extremely dangerous cases.

Dr. E. E. Paddock, Dept. 41, Kansas City, Mo., has prescribed such treatment for 25 years. Being a close student of drugs and their action, he has been able to formulate a treatment that has brought relief to hundreds of sufferers. Ministers, lawyers, farmers, actresses, judges, civil engineers, railroad men, merchants, army officers, laborers, writers, society women have used his treatments to their satisfaction. Hundreds of letters testify to health restored and freedom from suffering. Write the Doctor at the above address and he will gladly send any sufferer a free booklet describing gallstone troubles and explaining this home treatment.

Cryptesthesia Hailed as the Sixth Sense

m'ght even assert that there are no musical vibrations here. What a mistake! If a wireless receiver were placed here we should all immediately hear a concert that is taking place perhaps three miles, or even 100 miles, away. The receiver proves that the vibrations are present. Thus it is with those mysterious paths of consciousness. They do not reach us, but they are there. Only a sensitive person, in other words, a receiver, is needed to prove their reality. Therefore, do not hesitate to accept this new fact that unknown vibrations strike an intelligence and bring to it unexpected knowledge.

"Here is a field spread out for your investigations. It is true that the difficulties are great. But when has difficulty turned us away from the study of any problem? On no account be put off by the credulity of the spiritualists. I do not wish to speak ill of the spiritualists, in spite of their frequently having been hard upon me. But we do not share the same principles. I believe only in science, experiment and observation. But they have ready-made theories. They start from the idea that there is a survival of the soul and they endeavor to find in the facts a confirmation of this conviction. I certainly do not deny that their theory deserves to be examined. In spite of puerilities and absurdities it subsists; although terribly fragile, it often gives a more satisfying explanation than any other. All the same, I cannot make up my mind to accept it.

"I should like to see physiologists of ripe experience bring their powers of careful inquiry to this attractive study of cryptesthesia. They must first read the literature on this subject and become acquainted with the experimental methods which we have, among us, initiated, and perhaps invent others. And the harvest will be abundant. * * * Physiology has no right to remain a backward science when her great sister, physics, takes such a lofty flight. We now know that there are vibrations everywhere, even when we cannot directly apprehend them. Therefore why not admit that certain vibrations exist which strike the intellect in order to bring to the brain knowledge through this?

"Can physiologists and medical men assert that they have completed the physiology of the brain; that there is nothing further to be discovered about it, and that they have delimited all the modes of vibration of which it is capable? The brain is a much more complicated machine than we are wont to consider it in our innocence. Why may not this marvelous machine be sometimes capable of receiving vibrations which pass unknown to consciousness?"

Pity the Poor Prisoner

fellow good to smell the blossoms and see 'em grow. Never had anything like that when I was outside. Kind of rather sad world, outside, I say to myself sometimes.

And I'm going to school, too. Some bird told me once that hittin' the ball was a mathematical proposition and so I'm takin' up math. I don't know what it's all about yet, but then I've only been to two classes yet. You can study anything you want to here. The bird that's in the cell next to mine is a lifer, too, and he's taking a course in literachure. Imagine a guy what's busted safes for a livin' studyin' literachure. They've got a big library here, too. You can go in and get any kind of books you want and sit around and read in silence. I went in the other evening and the guy at the desk asked me what did I want. I didn't know, and he told me they was havin' quite a run on "Arabian Nights" an' the Home Book of Verse." Now, I ask you, can you beat that?"

About the funniest sight I've seen since I come here is two big ex-burglars a-slammin' a little tennis ball over a net at each other. Honest, I laughed 'til I thought I'd die.

Judgin' from the way they give pardons to lifers here I oughta get outa here in a year or two. They let out a guy a coupla days ago that was just put in six months ago for passing a bad check. They said they thought he'd had a lesson enough and would be all right now. Another bird that was supposed to do 15 years for stealin' a auto was let out at the end of a year because he was a victim of circumstances and hard drink. They let out a colored guy that was up for life for killin' another colored guy when he came home and found him in the house with his wife because they said they thought there'd been a miscarriage of justice.

Course, I'll have to stay a while, but I'm not worrying. There's a lot of poor honest guys on the outside that'd give a lot to enjoy all the advantages of a first-class penitentiary, and that ain't no lie.

Well, I gotta pitch another game tomorrow and I gotta go to bed. Love.

SPEEDY.

The foregoing is a rather fanciful picture of the simple life as it is lived in some of our present-day penitentiaries. There is, of course, another side to the picture. But this side is presented here for the study of those who pay the taxes to support the prisoners in surroundings such as many outside the walls of jails are seldom able to provide for themselves.

The Condemned

crowds shouted and applauded; the clowns roamed about the hippodrome track; the rings flashed with the spangles of equestriennes and resounded with the cludding hoofs of the "rosinbacks." Only one thing was missing—no massed elephants appeared, no cracking of bull whips or shouts of command from the pachyderm trainers, no ludicrous "hootchie-cootchie," no baseball game, no blowing of harps in the trunks of comical giant clowns. For the elephant herd of the World's Amalgamated stood at their posts of duty, the death guard about a condemned member of their town tribe.

An anxious-eyed lot superintendent glanced toward the sky, then sent forth scurrying messenger to summon the stake and sledge crews. Word traveled within the tent to the bandmaster; and the music—the clock of the circus—quickened in signal of the approach of bad weather. The chariot races thundered about the hippodrome track; the ropes of the reserved seats were loaded, and the crowds massed for the homeward journey. At the menagerie connection, the manager summoned his first assistant.

"Cut the concert short. Blow coming. Looks bad. Want to lower the peaks of the big top. Look after it will you? I've got to go down to the runs. They're going to bump off that Rajah bull. He's gone bad again."

Outside the menagerie, the strip of side-walling pulled away, the elephants were being pushed closer to the condemned Rajah and formed into a hollow square. Then came the query:

"All set?"

"Aye!

"All right. Jones and Kendall lead off; the rest of you keep pace. Now"——

"Hey, Mathews! "It was the voice of the lot superintendent. "How long you going to be?"

"Don't know. 'Bout an hour, I guess."

"Well, keep the bull herd down at the cars, will you? And send back any men you can spare. She looks awful black over there in the west."

"I'll let you have five in half an hour —as soon as we get the nooses hitched."

Mathews spurred his horse to rejoin the strange march of death—where a titanic beast went willingly forward because his comrades of the herd were near him and beside him trotted a faithful little companion of fair weather and foul—the dog Rags. Far in the background another figure moved, a gaunt-faced man who watched the great mass of the hollow square as it crossed the lot and reached the railroad tracks. The wind had risen, scudding the black clouds across the sky, and whistling eerily through the slats of the stock cars. Rajah raised his trunk and trumpeted querulously; it was the first storm since the night Mason died. Again he shrilled, and again. Mathews, the superintendent, spurred his horse about the hollow square.

"Hold them bulls tight in line! Jones —Kendall! Swing to the right and bring Jennie and Maud straight up to the runway. Then pull 'em off quick, one on each side of the run—hold 'em there. The rest of the herd will force him in!"

At the runway Rajah hesitated, then, crowded from the rear by his herd mates, went onward. But the little dog stood on the runway and barked, with a new threat in his tone. The canine mind is quick to sense the unsual, and Rags never had seen his great companion sent to the cars at any other time save nightfall. From the right and the left two switch engines puffed lazily. The engineers climbed from the cabs to receive their instructions. Mathews leaned from his saddle.

"I'll give the signal," he announced. "We've got those cables strung through the ends of the cars. The neck noose is fastened to the roof with light twine. He'll walk into it as soon as he begins to tug away from the other lariat, when we slip it around his hind feet. I'll wave my hat. Then pull away!"

The engineers returned to their cabs. Canvasmen looped the cables through the drawbars of the engines and fastened them. A menagerie attendant slid to the opening of the car and started to creep within. But Rags, back bristled, teeth showing, blocked him. Mathews raised in his saddle.

"Somebody get that dog away from there!"

Attendants called and cajoled. To no avail.

A driving rain began to patter. Men turned up the coat collars and glanced hastily at the sky.

Rajah's trunk was curled high. His eyes showed white rims and red rims. His forefeet moved restlessly. A blinding flash of lightning creased the sky, and the elephant bellowed excitedly, milling nervously about. Then something tightened on his hind legs, and a shout came from the rear of the car.

"All right, Mr. Mathews! I've got him. He's caught tight."

"Good! Step alive up there, noosemen!"

Figures moved atop the car. Then came a curse.

"The string's slipped—it ain't in position for his head!"

The menagerie superintendent gritted his teeth.

"Have to get in the car and put it around his neck, then. Somebody get that dog away from that door—we'll never be able to do anything with him keeping that bull stirred up. Here, you!" He turned toward a gaunt man, slinking along at the side of the cars. "You know this dog—get him away from here."

Jard Brace stared.

"Is—is"——

"Oh, he's safe enough. Hind legs lassoed. Grab that dog! We've got to go in the car to put on the neck noose!"

The trainer hurried forward. He called—but the only answer was a snarling bark. Again—again. Then a chorus came, excited, tense:

"Quick! Grab that dog—grab that dog; That bull's going bad again!"

Jard Brace seized the snapping, yapping mongrel and ran with him out of the ring of elephants and men.

"Keep on going with him—take him over to the tent and keep him there!"

Back in the elephant car, Rajah bellowed and raged. For he had seen! He had recognized a being whom he hated, bearing away the one thing in the world he possessed and loved!

Vainly they strove to enter the car. Then shouts! Steam shrieked from the whistle of the rear switch engine. Then the engine began to pull, striving by main machine strength to throw the great beast to the floor and hold him there. But a new shout of warning sounded, a new milling of men:

"Ease up, there! This knot's slipping! This knot's"——

The switch engine whistled in warning —at the jerk of the release of a heavy load. Rajah kicked and padded with his bleeding hind hoofs, freed them, then with one crash struck the side of the car with his full weight and tore through!

In vain they strove to block his path with the other elephants. An opening showed, and through it he went, in a straight, rushing drive toward the one thing in the world he hated, just fading under the side wall of the menagerie tent, still with Rags in his grasp.

The storm broke. The great tents swayed and bellowed, dripping figures clung to the guyropes. Planks crashed. Straight on Rajah went—on to the side wall and within.

One thing stood before him, arms wide, face white, ghastly. The great trunk swung high and laced downward; hoofs tamped; long tusks drove deep, and yellow ivory dripped carmine. Again—then Rajah turned, at a frightened yelp. Above, something crackled; ropes gave way in the gale. A quarter pole fell, then a second and third. The tent sagged; the centerpoles began to sway.

Rajah wheeled and trotted to his little companion. He pushed at him gently with his trunk, and the dog crawled toward him. Then, slowly, the big brute first settled to one knee, then the other, and finally to a crouching position on all fours, while the little mongrel crawled to the protection of his heavy breast and nestled there, whining no longer.

A centerpole crashed downward,

GET THIS WONDERFUL RING. If You Can Tell It From a Genuine Diamond Send It Back

These amazing, beautiful CORODITE diamonds positively match genuine diamonds in every way—same blazing flash and dazzling play of living rainbow fire. They, alone, stand the diamond tests, including terrific acid test of direct comparison. Mail us coupon at once and let their experience tell you the difference. Proves this yourself.

Wear a Corodite Diamond 7 Days Free

Make this test. You risk nothing. Wear a genuine Corodite and a diamond side by side on the same finger for 7 days. If you or your friends can tell the difference, send it back; you won't be out a single penny. That's fair enough. If you keep the ring, the price printed here is all you pay. No installments. Remember, Corodites alone have the same cutting as genuine stones.

No. 1—Ladies' Solitaire 14K Gold S. Ring	$2.84
No. 2—Ladies' Hand-Carved Basket Setting, 14K Gold	$3.68
No. 3—Ladies' Solitaire Bridal Blossom Engraved	$3.54
No. 4—Gents' Heavy Solitaire 14K Gold S. Ring	$3.09
No. 6—Gents' Massive Hand-Carved Octagon Grecy	$4.28

Carat size stones. Beautiful mountings of most modern design. Choice of gold or latest white platinum finish. Unqualified 20-year guarantee. Handsome art-leather case free with each ring.

SEND NO MONEY Keep your money right at home. Just send name, address and number of ring wanted and size as shown by strip of paper, fitting end to end around finger joint. Your ring will come by return mail. When ring arrives deposit amount shown above with postman. If not feeble not to keep ring after 7 days' wear, send it back and your money will be immediately returned. Send today.

against the thick-boned head of the elephant. But it did not touch the warm, fluffy little thing against his breast. And slowly, softly, the canvas came down and covered them from the wind and lightning and slanting rain.

The storm passed. Drenched workmen, hurrying to the rescue of the animals jerked the canvas from a high-piled mound, to stand staring at a little dog sheltered beneath the bulky head of Rajah. Mathews, the superintendent, was summoned on the run. Then they heard:

"Don't you red-light me, Mason!" It was a high-pitched, frantic voice from somewhere beneath the canvas. "I had to hook that bull, I tell you! Don't you lay a hand on me—I'll kill you—I'll kill you!"

"Tear off that canvas! Quick!" Mathews knelt beside a torn, red-marked thing, whose eyes stared but saw not, whose foam-specked lips repeated again and again:

"I'll kill you, Mason—I'll kill you!"

"Brace—what are you talking about?"

"The hook-mark's gone! They'll never see it—never know but what—tell 'em he's gone bad—bad—told Mason to leave me alone—had a right to beat Rajah—right—they'll nev"——

The voice ceased. Mathews rose.

"That's all right, boys," he said, tersely. "Go on with your other work. Guess I can handle this bull by myself."

Late that night the torches gleamed on the lot of the World's Amalgamated. Horses, hook-roped by the dozen to hub-deep wagons, struggled and panted and coughed, while down at the runs a great beast in a rope harness pulled wagon after wagon into place for the journey. Beside him walked a tired man who turned now and then to pat him. There was kindness in the man's voice as he spoke:

"Good old boy! That's it—take 'er away there. Take 'er away. That's the stuff—slack up now, old boy! Just a few more trips—then you hit for the hay."

Mathews walked on again, while behind him a great animal followed, faithfully, placidly, limping slightly, and still farther in the rear there trotted a cocky, fluffy little nondescript dog.

Future Fighting, as Seen by American Officer

tracer and take their toll, but one bomb exploding in a battery may kill or disable every cannoneer serving the unprotected pieces if the airman can but drop his bomb with accuracy.

Then is heard a sound unlike all others—the whine of a falling bomb containing liquid. Bursting among the guns with a noise which is half explosion, half splash, a dense white cloud rolls along the ground—Gas! Dropped for the first time from airplanes. In spite of agreements, conventions, treaties express or implied, the enemy has resorted to this, the most dread of all weapons. Gas will claim more victims than any other agency. The roar of field pieces ceases and men struggle madly to get into gas masks which the Chemical Warfare Service has so wisely provided, but through the clothing of the men the deadly fumes filter and the flesh is stricken as if by liquid fire. Through the forest roll the terrifying fumes, but the front lines are safe, for the enemy cannot lay down gas so close to his own troops; so in his fox hole Private John Doe lies watching and waiting while a night of terror passes into history. To escape destruction guns disperse, batteries dispose themselves in greater depth and the system of communication is modified accordingly.

Dawn ushers in the greatest air battle of all time; squadron against squadron they battle, while the air attack against the supporting artillery is furiously resumed by both sides. Relying upon efficiency of his gas attack the hostile infantry plunges forward against our lines and there in the heart of The Brambles man meets man with bullet and bayonet to decide the fate of nations. John Doe must be able to stand the test.

Numerous independent conflicts are waged along the entire battle front. Heads of columns flatten out; the lines extend and join through the forest. Days extend into weeks, weeks into months, while the battle line constantly reaches to the right and left and men burrow deeper and deeper into the ground to escape the deadly fire from rifles, machine guns, airplanes, artillery and flying mines. Clothing to resist gas has become the standard uniform. Our flanks rest on no impassable obstacles, but are guarded by our ever-active cavalry.

Far beyond The Brambles extend the battle lines, and trench warfare, with its deep dugouts, its barbed-wire entanglements, its labyrinths of trenches, is once more the normal form of battle.

The faddists have had their day. He who would paralyze all airplanes and all other motor-driven vehicles by radio activity has tried and failed; he who would harness the magnetic field of the earth, concentrate the sun's rays and fuse cannon, detonate powder magazines thousands of miles away and terminate war by utter annihilation of personnel and material is heard no longer; war is still waged as always, full advantage being taken, however, of every application of science that the ingenuity of man can devise.

Victory can come quickly only as the result of a surprise attack. Vast numbers of troops must be thrown against a single point just as in Napoleon's time; the line must be broken and division after division flung into the breach until the separated fragments of the opposing army may be beaten in detail. Speed and secrecy of concentration on the point of attack are vitally necessary. Secrecy can be secured only by operations under the cover of darkness; speed by improved methods of transportation. From points in the rear area 100 miles distant whole divisions must be picked up with all their personnel

New Invention Conceals Your Fat!

Reduces waist in 10 seconds and in short time PERMANENTLY removes fat without dieting, exercise or drugs. Try it for 5 days.

ALL stout persons will be interested in a wonderful new invention by which—without tedious exercise, dieting or drugs—the appearance may be immediately improved and actual PERMANENT loss of fat quickly and easily achieved.

It sounds almost too good to be true, but over 400,000 men and women who were once disfigured by sagging, unsightly abdomens—who suffered with shortness of breath, weakness, backache, constipation and many other ills—have now, through this new device, completely lost their "enlarged stomachs"—carry themselves like West Point cadets—and look and feel ten or fifteen years younger.

You can have the same delightful experience. The instant you put on the Wonder Health Belt your waist is drawn in, your chest expands, your head and shoulders go back, and with the new support and the natural deep breathing it facilitates, your "tired feeling" completely disappears and you are filled with an exhilarating new vigor and energy.

And that is not all.

Soon the Results are PERMANENT

In a few weeks you will find four to six inches gone from your waist for good. The Wonder belt seems to work like magic, but that is because the action is perfectly natural, based on thoroughly scientific principles. Physicians and surgeons everywhere endorse it.

Due to its scientific construction, every breath you take and every movement you make while wearing the belt, imparts a gentle massage to the abdomen. This speedily wears down the fat and builds muscle, exactly like exercise. And the new, strong, muscular wall holds the formerly sagging internal organs in their proper, healthy positions, and brings with youthful slenderness, a glorious new health and vigor.

The Wonder Health Belt is made from strong but light-weight fabric, and is easily adjusted and easily washed. It is so comfortable and really bracing you will enjoy wearing it.

Try It at OUR Risk

So that even the most skeptical may be convinced, we are making a special offer. Simply mail the coupon now without sending a penny. Be sure to give your present waist measure next to the skin, or, if no tape is handy, send a piece of string cut to your exact present size.

When the belt arrives—it will come in a plain container—deposit with the postman only $1.00. If, after five days' trial, you are not delighted—if you do not already notice a remarkable improvement in appearance, bodily comfort and health—return the belt and your $1.00 will be instantly refunded. But if you keep it—as we feel sure you will—merely send the balance of $2.00 in full payment.

No longer need any one be burdened with disfiguring, unhealthy fat. Mail the coupon today and prove for yourself that this is the easiest, pleasantest and most effective device ever perfected for reducing the waistline immediately and permanently.

and material of war, moved by night, concealed by day, and released within striking distance of our jump-off trenches under cover of darkness, to go over the top the next day at dawn, all in co-operation with other divisions along a front several miles in extent.

For this great crisis America has been getting ready. The new caterpillar trucks, capable of traveling across country, types of which were developed during peace, are now available in great numbers. New tractors for the field artillery have been perfected pursuant to the specification that they must "be capable of crossing any terrain over which infantry may advance in attack," thus rendering the field artillery independent of the roads and insuring the flow of ammunition necessary for sustained attack. Light caterpillar motor cars capable of floating have been developed to carry machine guns, light mortars and one-pounders, thus relieving the overburdened doughboy from duty as pack bearer of ammunition.

The manifest defects of material of the World War have been remedied and so, on the night of D-5 day, divisions 100 miles apart step out from concealment and, with all the materials for fighting and living, roll silently off through the night in trucks to concentrate upon The Brambles for the battle of the century. Behind the lines the new types of tanks, heavy and light, provided with practically noiseless motors, roll toward the front on railroad trains. Each night as darkness falls the divisions surge forward and at dawn of D-1 day they move up just within the edge of The Brambles, where tons of ammunition lie concealed from the ever-watchful airplanes. Through the forest they press under cover and as darkness falls they advance to the front-line trenches and all is ready. Miles in the rear of our lines other divisions are moving forward to "leap frog" those engaged in the first attack—when sheer exhaustion makes it impossible for the survivors to advance further. Most of the forest is already ours. All must be conquered, the enemy driven into the open and his lines ruptured.

Zero hour has arrived. Through the gray mist an infernal roar breaks upon the silence. Tons of metal crash on the enemy lines. The tanks lumber over the top and crash through the barbed-wire entanglements which protect the enemy trenches, while behind them follow John Doe and his doughboy comrades, rifles flashing through the semi-darkness. Man is pitted against man with bullet and bayonet.

Machine guns lay down a curtain of fire; the stokes mortars and one-pounders attack machine-gun nests. Far above and deep in the enemy's territory our air squadrons soar and down come tons of bombs upon the enemy's batteries. Behind the leading air squadrons follows a second and lower group, dropping large smoke bombs, and over the field flows a dense white bank of smoke screening the infantry as they advance into the enemy trenches. Onward press the successive waves, fighting, paying the staggering price, on through miles of trenches and barbed wire, on with John Doe through the mouth of hell, until victory complete and overwhelming is about to be realized. Wise provisions had been made for this moment by creating in time of peace transportation units capable of keeping pace with the attack.

Across the shallow stream on which the enemy had relied to stop our advance float our motor carts with machine guns, light mortars and one-pounders, all keeping pace for the first time with rapidly advancing infantry. Close behind the first line come the infantry batteries of field artillery and the accompanying guns successfully hauled for the first time by the recently developed tractors. By echelons the artillery advances, communication by radio intact, the guns close up to the supported troops. Transportation for the first time is successfully meeting the supreme requirements of battle. Captains of field artillery carrying radio phones are marching with the assaulting echelons of infantry, controlling the fire of their batteries by word of mouth, shifting it in perfect harmony with the requirements of the assaulting infantry. Communication has assumed an importance heretofore unknown in battle. Rolling barrages are a thing of the past. Infantry and field artillery are operating almost as a single branch. Vast numbers of pioneers and engineers work with feverish haste in the rear area, laying bridges and preparing routes for the flow of food and ammunition to the attacking divisions in front.

Night falls upon the ruptured battle front, all of our units closed up on the attacking echelons which hold their lines, while the rear echelons pass through at dawn and resume the attack. The leading divisions, fought to sheer exhaustion after several days of battle, hold their places, while new divisions "leap frog" and the fight goes on; on to the last bit of strength of man, the greatest of all animals; on without interruption; on to a finish even more complete and perfect than that achieved by our predecessors on Nov. 11, 1918, on the battlefields of France.

Here is a description of a future imaginary victory—America demands victory as her birthright. No aspect is introduced which is not believed possible of realization. The picture assumes great changes in material; not greater, however, than those which were introduced during the World War; the next great war will find all or most of our present weapons wholly or partialy obsolete.

To win such a victory within the time contemplated, the national draft act recommended by the American Legion should become law in time of peace; types of trucks, tractors, motor carts, tanks, etc., fulfilling the specifications herein contemplated, should be immediately developed and arrangements perfected for quantity production; radio phone and radio telegraph units, in weights suitable for transportation by man power, should be produced to stand the severest tests of battle, for rapid communication over the far-flung battlefield has become essential to success; types of anti-aircraft weapons firing armor-piercing tracer ammunition of greater range, accuracy, and rapidity of fire than any yet developed should be constructed; the menace of gas, the most serious of all weapons, should be recognized; military and commercial aviation should be stimulated and the best talent in the country enlisted in the solution of the problems which this new arm introduces.

These are the aspects of the problem which demand public attention and cooperation; five-sixths of the whole burden of national defense rests on the citizen soldier. In behalf of John Doe and his million buddies who may have to pass through the ordeal herein described I enlist your interest in the belief that to insure a solution of a great national problem the American public needs but to know the problem. In God's providence one of those boys at the front may be your son—or mine.

Makes Any Skin Beautiful
Trial Costs Nothing
Now, every woman has it in her power to have a beautiful complexion that is a source of continual satisfaction to herself, the secret envy of her woman friends and the open admiration of all men. Dr. Thos. J. Newlyn, Dept. 1113, El Paso, Texas, has perfected a marvelous new skin beautifier that goes deeper than the temporary "doiling up" of the outer surface of facial blemishes. It causes the fresh, new underskin to build up and throw off the old outer skin, revealing a marvelously fresh, clear, smooth, satiny pink and babylike complexion. The effect is astounding. Muddy and oily skin, sallowness, pimples, blackheads, freckles, wrinkles, skin discolorations, tan and diseased skin ailments, such as eczema and many others, yield readily to this wonderful new treatment. Formerly only in the best beauty parlors could you get such amazing results, and then only the wealthy could afford the cost of from $25 to $100. Now you can obtain Dr. Newlyn's discovery to use in your own home without inconvenience for a mere fraction of the above cost. It is simple to use (three times a day for only a few days), is absolutely harmless and the wonderful results are lasting—for months, not days or hours. No matter what your complexion trouble is, write Dr. Newlyn for full particulars of his Special Trial Offer. Write today and enjoy a beautiful complexion soon.

Gray Hair Unnecessary
As I Have Proved

I proved it many years ago by restoring the original color to my own prematurely gray hair with the same Restorer I now offer you. This time-tested preparation never fails, as hundreds of thousands of gray haired people since have learned.

There is not space in this advertisement to tell my story. Send for Free Trial bottle and learn all.

Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer is a clear, colorless liquid, clean as water. No greasy sediment to make your hair sticky and stringy; nothing to wash or rub off. Application easy, restored color perfect, in any light. Faded or discolored hair just as surely and safely restored as hair naturally gray.

Experience my teacher

I invented my scientific hair color restorer to bring back the original color to my own hair which was prematurely gray. Since, millions have used it and so will millions more. It is the most popular and biggest selling preparation of its kind in the world.

Now I have something new to offer and almost as important, in the shape of a new preparatory powder which puts your hair in perfect condition for restoration. This powder is a recent discovery of my laboratories and its action is that of tonic and antiseptic. A package now comes with each full sized bottle and a trial sized package is included in my special patented free trial outfit. I urge you to send for this patented outfit today and prove how easily, surely and beneficially you can restore your own gray hair to its natural color.

BEFORE

Photo of Mrs. Grace Horchler, 4352 Michigan Ave., Chicago, before getting thin to music: weight 234 lbs.

AFTER

Mrs. Horchler just four months later, showing what Wallace reducing records did for her: weight only 160 lbs.

From 234 lbs to 160

"I had just about given up hope when I heard of Wallace" said the lady whose pictures appear above. "I had tried everything for reducing without success, but Wallace's records have made me a normal woman."

This case should convince anybody that Wallace has really solved the problem of overweight! Seventy-four pounds reduction in four months; a bulky figure re-proportioned; with new health and activities.

No Starving—No Punishment

Mrs. Horchler will tell you she had tried everything from fasting and Turkish baths to drugs and mechanical devices and could scarcely believe her eyes and feelings as Wallace's delightful method started her superfluous flesh to fairly melt away. You don't starve; you don't study tedious books or go through any irksome rigmarole. Just a natural, enjoyable method done to music—that works as surely as heat and cold works on the thermometer. Here is the weight you can attain with Wallace records—regardless of how much more you may now weigh:

Height	Age 20 to 29 yrs Lbs.	Age 30 to 39 yrs Lbs.	Age 40 to 49 yrs Lbs.	Age 50 & Over Lbs.

THE largest and most widely known maker of Sterling (solid) Silver in the world—GORHAM has made its name on a piece of silver as desirable as the Sterling mark itself. This prestige is due to a just combination of quality, artistic design and price—there is a distinct difference between articles bearing the Gorham mark and those without it.

Leading Jewelers Everywhere Have Gorham Sterling Silverware

All articles illustrated are, of course, Sterling (Solid) Silver.

In the group photograph above, at the left in the foreground, is a Bowl of simple elegance, appropriate for use on numerous occasions, $32.00, WW-2993. With it is an "Old London" Spoon $10.50. In the background a Cocktail Shaker of great durability $38.00, A-6990. The gilt Cocktail Cup is gracefully shaped and a set of these with Shaker makes an interesting present. Cups $94.00 a dozen, WW-7325. In the centre, assembled on a tray, is the "Plymouth" Tea Set, an example of pure Colonial design, the six pieces $435.00, A-2411. The Tray is $360.00, A-2816. The Pitcher in the background is also finely representative of early silversmithing, and is $62.00, A-11709. At the extreme right a Fruit Basket $38.00, WW-7845.

Sallow skin

You can awaken it

You can give a sallow skin color and life simply by using a more stimulating method of cleansing.

Follow this treatment once or twice a week, and see how it will rouse the inactive pores and blood vessels:

JUST before retiring fill your basin full of hot water — almost boiling hot. Bend over the top of the basin and cover your head and the bowl with a heavy bath towel. Steam your face for thirty seconds. Now lather a hot cloth with Woodbury's Facial Soap. With this wash your face thoroughly, rubbing the lather well into the skin. Then rinse the skin well, first with warm water, then with cold, and finish by rubbing it for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

After three or four of these treatments you will notice a wonderful improvement.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

Two Rows of Pretty Teeth

Belong to every smile
Learn now how millions get them

There is a way to prettier teeth, and millions now employ it. You know it, for those whiter teeth are seen everywhere today.

Now we urge you to learn the way. Send for this free test. Watch the delightful effects. Why be content with clouded teeth when others' teeth now glisten?

That cloud is film

You feel on your teeth a viscous film. Much of it clings and stays, for no ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat it.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

There are 49 chances in 50 that you will suffer film-caused troubles, so you should fight the film.

Dental science has in late years found two film combatants. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Now leading dentists the world over advise this new-day method. And millions of careful people in some 50 nations are enjoying its delights.

Other discoveries

Dental science has found that other things were needed. So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

Every use of Pepsodent gives manifold power to these great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth. The result is a new dental era to the homes which adopt this method.

You'll see and feel

You will see and feel the Pepsodent effects. No one can doubt them. And every result is a joy.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Do that for ten days, then decide for yourself if you and your family desire such help. Cut out the coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

She is No Longer Fat

She found a way to reduce her fat. It was a way far more pleasant than dieting or exercising would have been. This new way allowed her to eat foods without danger of becoming fat again.

She found Marmola Prescription Tablets. They aid the digestive system to obtain the full nutriment of food. They help Nature to turn food into muscle, bone and sinew instead of fat.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are made from the famous Marmola prescription. Thousands have found that these handy tablets give complete relief from obesity. And when the accumulation of fat is checked, reduction to normal, healthy weight soon follows.

All good drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar a box. Ask your druggist for them, or order direct and they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid.

The skin with the velvet finish

By Mme. Jeannette

THOUSANDS of women have sat before their mirrors just after they have finished powdering and wished they could retain the lovely little velvet look that powder gives!

Of course it is quite possible to keep just that flower-petal look if the right steps are taken. And the first important step is the "laying of the foundation" for your powder.

Pompeian Day Cream is the most effective of foundations. It is a disappearing cream that vanishes under your very finger-tips as they smooth it over brow and cheeks and chin and neck. This forms a delicate protective film for your skin, as well as an adherent base for your powder.

Over this foundation you apply your powder—Pompeian Beauty Powder—that should be applied with lavish hand in order to cover all parts evenly. When your powder is carefully distributed and lightly brushed to an even consistency you will realize that Pompeian Beauty Powder does give that velvety look to your skin.

Pompeian Beauty Powder comes in the four essential shades—Flesh, Naturelle, Rachel and White. Part of the success in using powder is the selecting of the right shade for your type.

After the powder comes the application of Pompeian Bloom. It will make the roses bloom among the lilies. The new Orange shade is very popular.

Lastly, the piquant touch of Pompeian Lip Stick to bring the mouth into color-harmony with the cheeks.

NOW . . . . A NEW WAY

in solving woman's oldest hygienic problem

Immaculacy, charm, exquisiteness under circumstances which most women find exceedingly trying

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND, G. N.

MODERN science has discovered a new way in personal hygiene. A way immaculate, exquisite, safe.

It supplants old-time "sanitary pads" and other make-shift methods.

Discovered only a short while ago, it is today used by eight in every ten women in the better walks of life throughout America.

The name is Kotex. And this offers you a test—free. Simply use the coupon.

What Kotex does

Kotex is a delightfully soft, pure white absorbent of extremely rapid absorption. It takes up moisture instantly. And it absorbs 16 times its own weight! Made of Cellucotton, it is far more absorbent than ordinary cotton.

Then it is easily disposed of—totally different from the method you now use—a point every woman will appreciate.

In comparison with old methods, it presents safety, assurance and daintiness in contrast to uncertainty, lack of poise and frequently embarrassment. It has 5 times the absorbency of ordinary sanitary pads.

A trial without charge

I think every woman and every girl owes it to herself to try Kotex.

Once you use it and feel the peace of mind and comfort it brings, plus 2 other secret advantages I cannot mention here, no other method will ever satisfy.

In my own hospital practice, I've given it to hundreds and hundreds of women. And never have I found one who failed to thank me heartily afterwards.

Every mother should acquaint her daughter with this hygienic method. In scores of schools, teachers are acquainting their girls with Kotex. Its use has become a universal hygienic movement.

Now I have asked the Kotex laboratory to permit me to offer women generally a a trial of Kotex—free. And they have consented—for a short while, at least.

Simply mail me the coupon. You will receive a packet in absolutely plain, unmarked wrapper, by return mail, postpaid. Clip it now, before you forget.

Note, too, that Kotex is obtainable at all drug and department stores. Simply ask for Kotex.

Two sizes: regular, containing twelve generous folds and hospital size (extra thickness), containing six folds. Both nine inches long and folded in fine gauze with convenient tabs for easy pinning and turning.

Also obtainable from Kotex cabinets in rest rooms—a single fold in plain wrapper.

Charm. Exquisiteness. Immaculacy, under all and every condition, EVERY day! Yet, under old methods the average woman spent at least 1/6th of her time in a state of discomfort, uncertainty —and frequently embarrassment.

WHO DO YOU GUESS IS COMING TOMORROW TO PAY US A VISIT ?

MOTHER ?

NOPE - GUESS AGAIN

ONE OF MY BROTHERS ?

NOPE - NONE OF YOUR RELATIVES

NONE OF MY RELATIVES?! WHAT DO YOU MEAN "NONE OF MY RELATIVES" - IS IT ONE OF YOURS?

YES - BROTHER FRANK

THAT FOOL!?

WHY WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH HIM? HE'S MY BROTHER?!

I THOUGHT IT WAS ABOUT TIME FOR THAT FOOL TO HORN IN ON US

HE HAS A RIGHT TO COME HERE JUST AS MUCH AS ONE OF YOUR BROTHERS

OF ALL THE PEOPLE IN THIS WORLD I'D RATHER NOT SEE IT'S HIM

HE HASN'T AN OUNCE OF BRAINS -- HE'S JUST COMING HERE TO SPONGE OFF OF US

HOW LONG IS HE GOING TO STAY?

HE'S COMING HERE TO LOOK FOR A JOB - AND I WROTE HIM HE COULD LIVE WITH US UNTIL HE FOUND SOMETHING

FOR - THE LOVE OF MIKE!

YOU TOLD ME ONCE YOU MIGHT BE ABLE TO DO SOMETHING FOR HIM IN YOUR OFFICE

DO YOU THINK FOR ONE MINUTE I'D HAVE HIM IN MY OFFICE ?

WELL LISTEN HERE HE'S JUST AS CAPABLE AS ANY OF YOUR RELATIVES --- IF HE HAD A CHANCE HE'D MAKE GOOD - FRANK IS A GOOD BOY AND I FEEL SORRY FOR HIM

NOV 4-23

I TELL YOU VI HE DOESN'T KNOW ANYTHING -- I DON'T CARE IF HE IS YOUR BROTHER

I DON'T TREAT YOUR BROTHERS THAT WAY WHEN THEY VISIT US -- I'M ALWAYS NICE TO THEM AND TRY TO MAKE THEIR VISITS PLEASANT

REG. N.Y. TRIBUNE, INC.

BRIGGS '23

I NEVER SAID YOUR GRANDFATHER WAS A RAGPICKER AND YOU KNOW IT --- YOU'RE JUST MAKING THAT UP -- I DON'T CARE WHAT YOUR GRANDFATHER WAS FOR THAT MATTER ---

YOU'RE ALWAYS PICKING ON MY RELATIVES AND I'M GETTING JUST ABOUT ENOUGH OF IT --- I DON'T SEE BUT WHAT THEY STACK UP JUST AS WELL AS YOURS -- I GUESS YOU KNOW IT TOO --- I'D KEEP MIGHTY QUIET IF I WERE YOU

AND SO - FAR INTO THE NIGHT -

DORA, I WAS LOOKING A-

YOU'RE GO MY DAUGHT LET'S STA CAREFUL -

Something pretty swell for an opener, showing McCabe and McCall in "Acrobatics a la Carte." Mr. McCabe plays the waiter very roguishly, as you can see, and Miss McCall plays a society girl, who steps in for a bite to eat to the life. Very snappy act.

This is the nut comedian, being the well-known scream he always is, pretending to pick a fight with the trap drummer.

"Why, you insignificant little whipper snapper! How dare you address a lady like I! I want you to know—" etc., etc. Joe and Letty La Tour have a pretty snappy dialogue leading up to a subtle bit of comedy. The lady, at the conclusion of her speech, throws the young man out in the wings. Whereupon, from behind the drop, the young man kicks the lady, and all is merry as the well-known marriage bell.

The pocket Melba's pianist, doing his bit on the ivories. He's playing "Three O'Clock in the Morning" the way Sousa would have written it.

Twice a day the poor musical director has to up and answer back the nut comedian. "And why," says he, "is an old maid like a tomato?" And for an encore he has to lend N. C. his fiddle.

Till ready. Bessie is waiting for the opening bar of "Why Should I Cry Over You?" or its successor. After the second chorus, all the words will be flashed upside down on a screen and then won't the audience enjoy itself?

"Oi, oi, yes, we got no bananas, I can't get over it!" is the Yiddish comedienne's opening remark.

"The Five O'Toole Sisters"—or maybe they're the "Five Wellesley Girls" on the billing—putting a great deal of melody into "You Know You Belong to Somebody Else, So Why Don't You Leave Me Alone?"

WHAT - YOU WERE HELD UP LAST NIGHT ON YOUR WAY HOME FROM THE OFFICE - AND RIGHT IN FRONT OF YOUR OWN HOUSE?

YEP, YOU KNOW HOW DARK IT IS THERE - WELL, A MAN JUMPS OUT OF THE BUSHES AND SLIPS ME THIS BUMP AND TAKES MY WAD!

IF I WERE YOU, MEEK, I'D ASK THE MAYOR TO PUT A LIGHT IN FRONT OF MY HOUSE!

GOOD IDEA! I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT!

-HE SOAKS ME RIGHT ON THE COCO, MAYOR. — -THAT'S THE DARKEST SPOT ON MAIN STREET - RIGHT IN FRONT OF MY PLACE! I CERTAINLY NEED A LIGHT THERE BADLY!

I AGREE WITH YOU, MR. MEEK.

HELLO - ELECTRIC LIGHT DEPARTMENT? PUT A LIGHT IN FRONT OF 82 MAIN ST.

THAT LIGHT'LL BE UP TO-NIGHT, MEEK.

THANKS, MAYOR.

-AND THAT'S HOW IT HAPPENED - SO I WENT TO THE MAYOR - HE'S GOING TO PUT A LIGHT IN FRONT OF MY HOUSE!

THAT'S THE TICKET!

WILBUR JUST CAME IN, MEEK - HE HASN'T HEARD ABOUT YOUR HOLD-UP!

WHAT! IS THAT THE TIME?!! HAVE I BEEN HERE GASSING FOR THREE HOURS? I'LL HAVE TO BEAT IT FOR HOME RIGHT AWAY — I KNOW MY MISSUS!

I HAD NO IDEA IT WAS SO LATE! OH WELL, I CAN SNEAK IN ON HENRIETTA - I'VE DONE IT MANY A TIME BEFORE!

BLAME THIS WINDOW!

SQUEAK SQUEAK

11-4-23

HENRY? -TRYING TO SNEAK IN, EH? BUT YOU CAN'T HIDE ON ME ANY MORE — I CAN SEE YOU NOW AS PLAIN AS DAY!

SAY, MAYOR, TAKE THAT LIGHT OUT — I'D RATHER TAKE A CHANCE WITH HOLD-UP MEN!
